SOUTH KOREANS ANNIHILATE RED BATTALION

REDS' SUCCESS MAY SPEED U. S. MOBILIZATIONS

Military Planners Probably Will Start Training Troops Faster

FOUR GUARD DIVISIONS TO BE WARTIME STRENGTH

By Elton C. Fay

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—(AP)—New successes by the Korean Red army may compel a revision in American mobilization plans to bring more combat-ready troops into action faster.

High military planners have been talking recently of the probability that it would be late fall or early winter before additional National Guard divisions could be brought into federal service under the present mobilization plan. They explained that facilities of the regular army are limited and that men must be trained to bring up to wartime strength the four divisions already selected.

But that was before it began to appear the last water barrier on the perimeter of the South Korean defense line might not be held and still more desperate fighting might have to be done in mountain positions closer to the key port of Pusan.

At the Pentagon today, spokesmen still maintained, emphatically, that the South Korean beachhead would be held until the time when a build-up of strength would allow a break-out and the beginning of a counter-offensive.

But they did not insist that the Naktong river line was the final position.

Fighters Report Tanks Knocked Out At Red Assault Line Near Naktong

TOKYO, Aug. 5.—(AP)—U. S. B-29 superforts today blasted railroad yards at Seoul, fallen South Korean capital, leaving the target in flames.

The big superforts dropped 100 tons of bombs on the yards in their second consecutive assault on the yards. Eighty tons were dropped Friday. Both days the yards were heavily choked with freight.

Fighter pilots reported today they knocked out five enemy tanks at Waegwan within a half mile of the U. S. Naktong defense lines. Waegwan is 15 miles northwest of Taegu, which is 55 air miles northwest of Pusan, U. S. supply port.

Three other tanks were reported destroyed Friday. Seven other tanks were damaged, 34 trucks destroyed and 29 more vehicles damaged.

A new U. S. air attack record was set Friday as fighters swept up and down the Korean battlefront, hitting Red troops and supplies moving toward the Naktong river, main allied defense line.

A record-breaking 550 - flights were flown.

Rain slowed Saturday's tactical air program.

A raid by four B-26 light bombers resulted in the sinking Friday of a 10,000-ton enemy freighter-transport in the harbor of Inchon, on the west coast of South Korea.

One bomb fell flush on the unarmored deck of the vessel. Credited with the bull's eye hit was First Lt. Kenneth J. Appel of Milwaukee, Wis.

The mission was one of several against enemy shipping facilities by the light bombers.

Four villages near Chinju were destroyed yesterday by U. S. napalm bombs. The bombs are made of jellied gasoline and scatter intense flames when exploded.

Long Reveals 26 Proposals On Special Session Agenda

Will Require Public Vote On Any Move To Extend Terms Of State Officials; Governor Addresses Joint Assembly

BATON ROUGE, La., Aug. 5.—(AP)—Gov. Earl K. Long tonight told the Louisiana legislature he favored making the governor's term six years instead of four, but that if the constitutional convention made such a change the people should have a chance to pass on it at an election.

However, he added that, "I have never publicly said that I favored extending anybody's term" and observed:

"I also have a plan to cut my term two months in order that we may hold the elections in November or December and that the legislature may meet in March."

The governor's observations were contained in a speech for delivery to a joint session of the legislature tonight, opening its special session, and for statewide broadcast.

"They are saying that I want to extend my term as governor, "he continued, "I am recommending to the legislature that the call for the convention be amended so that if the term of public officials, including my own, is extended by the convention, that this cannot go into effect unless it is approved by the people."

He said that sheriffs, clerks, assessors, district attorneys, district judges were all reported to want their terms extended.

"I have said that if one is extended, you may as well extend all. I sincerely believe we are having two and three times as many elections in this state as we should have. Many elections could be made to fall on the same day in order to save the taxpayers' money."

The governor said he was happy to let the people decide this issue "and they will understand this because I have faith and confidence in the people; but I don't have faith and confidence in certain special and vested interests of this state who are for nothing but special privileges at the expense of the people." He continued:

"I believe the term of the governor should be six years but that he should not be able to succeed himself. I feel the same way about the president of the United States."

Gov. Long said also that he was sponsoring a bill requiring the

Resigns Post As Local College Head To Assume Post As L. S. U. Professor

Dr. Rodney Cline, dean of Northeast Junior college for the past nearly six years, gave the statement Saturday that he had informed the Louisiana State Board of Education at Baton Rouge, which is is now to operate the college here as the Northeast Louisiana State college, that he does not desire to be considered as candidate for president of the college.

Also at the same time he announced that he has accepted a professorship in the Louisiana State University college of education and will report for duty there when the fall semester at the university opens in September.

Dr. Cline became the head of Northeast Junior college December 1, 1944 and was sucessor to Dean C. C. Colvert who resigned to become coordinator of junior colleges in the University of Texas.

Northeast Junior college, by virtue of action taken at the last session of the state legislature, was transferred from the status of a junior college of Louisiana State university to the Louisiana State Board of Education and is now to become a four-year college.

SPEED-UP TAX PLAN ACCEPTED

Senate Approves House Plan To Shorten Time On Corporation Payments

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—(AP)—A house plan to speed corporation tax collections by shortening the time-to-pay period was accepted today by the senate finance committee.

The tax writing group's agreement on the so-called Mills plan brought the two chambers a little closer together in the drive to expedite President Truman's request for an additional $5,000,000,000 of revenue.

At the same time, however, the senate committee turned down another house plan to require a 10 per cent withholding tax on corporation dividends.

Both actions came during an unusual Saturday session called to accelerate the effort to meet more of the mounting costs of the military effort.

Government tax experts estimate the payment speed-up plan, sponsored by Rep. Mills (D.-Ark.) and passed by the house, would add about $800,000,000 of revenue for each of the next five fiscal years. It would not, however, result in any tax increases.

Under present law, corporations may pay a year's taxes in four equal quarterly installments during the following year. The Mills plan would bring the cash into the treasury faster by gradually reducing the payment period to six months.

The 10 per cent withholding tax which the senate committee rejected calls for collection of taxes on dividends in the same way income taxes now are withheld from workers' pay checks.

Draft Picture As It Now Stands Gets Explanation

By Douglas B. Cornell

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Worried whether the draft might yank the boy out of school? or whether you yourself can get a deferment?

Nobody can tell you for sure what will happen. But selective service officials say this is the policy, laid down partly in laws and partly in regulations:

Only persons in the 19 through 25 age group can be drafted now, although 18-year-olds must register.

If you are in the right age bracket and have a job, it's up to your local draft board to decide whether your type of work is of the kind and importance to warrant a deferment. The board is supposed to defer anyone whose employment or occupation "is found to be necessary to the maintenance of national health, safety, or interests."

Nobody is giving the board yet a definite list of jobs the government considers vital. So the board is on its own to a large extent, and it has pretty wide discretion.

The commerce and labor department have given the armed services lists of critical occupations to use as a guide in calling up members of the reserves and National Guard. But selective service shows little interest in such lists. After all, its job isn't to see that business has enough manpower, but that the armed services do.

Still, selective service might get around later on to using job lists. It had them during World War II, although only for purposes of advising draft boards.

Either you or your boss can ask for a deferment because of the nature of your job. And the board has to be convinced you can't be replaced and that putting you in uniform would mean a "material loss of effectiveness" in the activity in which you are engaged.

Suppose your boy is going to school and is eligible for the draft. He can stay in high school until he graduates, reaches his 20th

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 5.—(AP)—W. H. Talbot, Louisiana National Democratic Committeeman, said today that he had heard that Gov. Earl Long would attempt to oust him as an appeasement to the "Truman dictatorship."

"I am told that I am to be sacrificed on the altar of appeasement," he said in a letter to members of the Democratic state central committee. "This will not hurt me."

Talbot, who managed Long's successful gubernatorial campaign in 1948, said he had no intention of resigning as national committeeman.

MONROE GIRL IS KILLED IN TEX.

Neville Student Shot While Spending Summer Vacation On Ranch

Ann Trent Hornbeak, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Hornbeak, was accidentally killed near Cedar Point, Texas, Saturday when she apparently fell over a log while taking a walk, causing the discharge of a .22 caliber rifle she was carrying.

Miss Hornbeak, a stellar student at Neville High School, had been visiting with relatives on a ranch for six weeks.

Her relatives reported that she went for a walk yesterday afternoon, carrying with her the .22 rifle. When she didn't return, a search party was formed. Her body was found in a secluded pasture.

Her parents are enroute to Center Point to return the body.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete as to the time, but will be under the direction of Peters Funeral Home of Monroe.

Surviving besides her parents are a younger sister, Linda; maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Dalton, of Mississippi, and paternal grandmother, Mrs. James Hornbeak, Mer Rouge.

HARRY BRIDGES IS ORDERED TO JAIL; BAIL IS REVOKED

OUTSPOKEN WATERFRONT BOSS STOPPED AT LAST

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Harry Bridges was ordered to jail today. The court denied a motion for a week-end stay of the order.

Deputy Marshall John Roseen said he would take Bridges to the county jail.

The Australian-born Bridges, head of the C. I. O. Longshore Union, had been free on $25,000 bail since his April conviction of perjury. The jury held he swore falsely in his 1945 citizenship hearing he wasn't a Communist.

The government charged that his activities since the Korean war broke out have been 'inimical to the security of the United States."

Bridges' attorneys asked Federal Judge George B. Harris that the Longshore chief be permitted to spend this weekend with his wife and family and then go into the U. S. circuit court of appeals Monday.

Judge Harris said "No," and spoke about wives and children of various soldiers fighting in Korea.

Judge Harris declared from the bench:

"I'm satisfied to a moral certainty that Harry Bridges was and is a member of the Communist Party.

"The jury in the principal case (the perjury trial) came to that inevitable conclusion after months of evidence and argument.

"I'm also led to believe he is probably one of the most cogent figures in the Communist Party in America today.

"As such, he is an agent dedicated to execute the Communist program nationally and internationally.

'As such, his allegiance cannot be to the United States of America. His conduct since the beginning of the Korean crisis, and his remarks at this proceeding, are of such a nature as to justify this court including that his loyalty and allegiance are and must be with the Communists."

CITIZENS' GROUP ASKS REFERENDUM

Urges 'Absolute Requirement' That People Vote On New Constitution

BATON ROUGE, Aug. 5.—(AP)—The greater Louisiana citizens' committee today called on the state legislature "to incorporate without fail an absolute requirement" that the new constitution be submitted to the people of the state "for acceptance or rejection."

Lloyd J. Cobb, New Orleans attorney and chairman of the citizens' committee, wrote Gov. Earl K. Long and legislators that "collectively we are unalterably opposed" to the constitutional convention as presently proposed. The governor has said he was opposed to a popular vote on the new state constitution.

The legislators were meeting in special session tonight to take up, among other things, the proposed constitutional convention.

During the regular session, the legislature voted to submit a proposal for a constitutional convention to the people in the Nov. 7 elections.

Shortly after the act was passed, the greater Louisiana citizens' committee was formed, Cobb said. Civil and business organizations such as the New Orleans Chamber

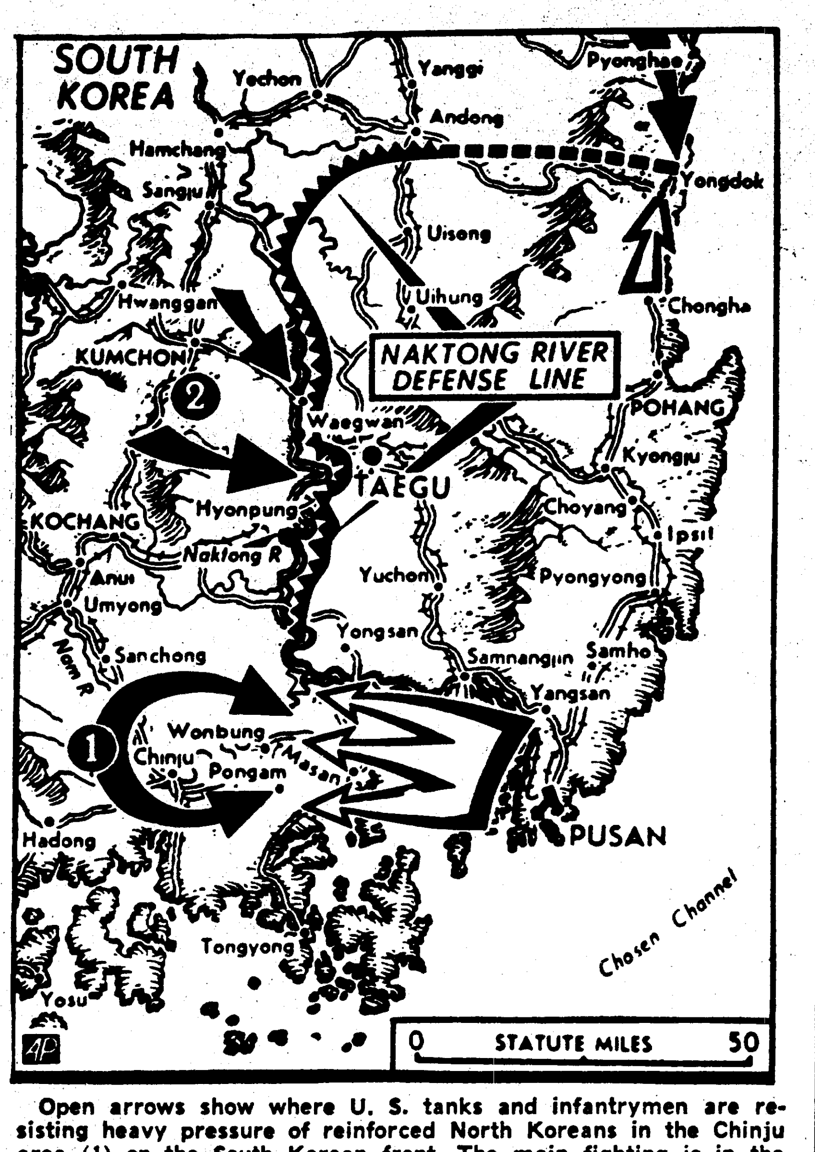
Church-Bound Auto Crashes, 5 Killed

ROSEBURG, Ore., Aug. 5.—(AP)—A speeding automobile and a car loaded with church-going youngsters crashed head-on near here last night. Five were killed and seven injured.

There were six in each car. The youngsters had attended a night-time church service at Sutherlin, 13 miles north of here, and were headed to their homes in Glendale.

On a straight stretch of the Pacific highway, they collided with a north-bound car about 11:30 p.m. Three of the youngsters were killed: Brenda Stackhouse, 12; Don Farthingham, 13, and Willie Ernest Morris, 16, who was driving the car, owned by his father.



Open arrows show where U. S. tanks and infantrymen are resisting heavy pressure of reinforced North Koreans in the Chinju area (1) on the South Korean front. The main fighting is in the Wonbung area where one Red column got to Pongam, 37 miles from Pusan, before it was thrown back. Action on the central sector (2) was limited to artillery duels across the Naktong river. (AP Wirephoto Map.)

Old People Boost Worth, Not Their Age

By Arthur Edson

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Maybe you hadn't realized it, but America is growing old. In 1900, four per cent of the people in the U. S. were 65 or older. Now the percentage has grown to 7.6. That's more than 11,000,000 old people.

Old people?

Well, it depends on how old you are. When you're 10, everyone over 30 seems equally ancient and uninteresting. But when you hit 65 you still may feel like a kid—and resent alleged humor on alleged senility.

At least that's the impression gathered from letters that have rolled into the federal security agency since the old age conference was announced.

"Having passed my 83rd birthday, I feel somewhat qualified to express myself on this subject. Our lives are made unnecessarily unpleasant by varied offensive remarks. Some are fond of telling us that 'you're too old' to do this or that. Many seem unable to realize that it is condition and not years that determine one's usefulness."

"What we want is a job and a chance to make our own way," an unemployed 65-year-old steelworker from Gary, Ind., wrote in. "Will it take another war for us to prove to our younger fellows once again that we, too, can do a useful job?"

An Oakland, Calif., widow complained:

"It is just impossible to find a position after 40 if you are a woman. With a fine written recommendation, with a youthful appearance (no gray hair), with perfect health, physically and mentally, and being the terrifically old age of 50, I am being told at all personnel offices that my age is against me. What an injustice.' "

CHARITY PATIENTS MUST BE IN NEED

Hospital Board Announces Definite Rules For Admissions

BATON ROUGE, La., Aug. 5.—(AP)—Definite rules for admission to Louisiana's charity hospitals will be put into effect immediately, State Hospital Director Jesse H. Bankston said today.

Bankston said the rules, which provide income standards for persons to be considered "medically indigent" and also make allowances for individual consideration of cases, had been considered by the state hospital board since April. He said that previously complaints had been received that the state's charity services were being abused.

The rules have been considered also, the hospital director said, by representatives of the Louisiana State Medical Society, Louisiana State Dental Society, Louisiana Hospital Association, state departments of health and public welfare and private and public hospitals.

The regulations require that admission to charity hospitals shall be refused any person, except in emergencies or under the following conditions:

"1. Any recipient of public assistance, other than the old age pension, shall be considered eligible for hospital and clinic care without further certification.

"2. Any person whose annual income does not exceed the following financial scale is eligible for hospital care, provided he does not have hospital insurance covering cost of illness: single person, $1,020; couple, $1,320; couple with one child, $1,500, and each additional child or dependent, $180.

Data Obtained By Pauley Helps Bombers In Korea

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Senate sources today credit a big assist on air force bombing of North Korean Communist targets to Edwin W. Pauley, former special ambassador for President Truman.

They said that photographs and descriptive data obtained by Pauley in 1946 despite Russian protests have helped guide recent U. S. B-29 bombing strikes.

Senators still are trying to learn the background purpose and personalities involved in the public testimony here Thursday on Korea by Pauley. The wealthy oil man and politician was billed as a mystery witness by Chairman Tydings (D.-Md.) of the senate armed services committee.

During his testimony, Pauley expressed the personal opinion that the United States should have gone to war with Russia if necessary to compel the Soviets to live up to agreements on Korea.

Just who in the government suggested that Pauley be billed as a witness has not yet been disclosed.

Discussing Pauley's visit to Korea, several senators told a reporter privately today that the information he brought back has proved of value to the U. S. air force. Pauley himself testified that air force and other military leaders had been using the data.

Pauley in 1946 was serving as U. S. representative on war reparations. He and his party insisted on making a spot check of Japanese-built plants and industries in North Korea, then as now in Communist hands. The spot check was desired because Russians had looted other captured areas.

Pauley said it required "extreme pressure" before the Americans finally were committed to North Korea by Russian officers and then Russians ran trains ahead and behind them filled with armed guards.

"Not a picture could be taken without an argument before, and dire threat after," he said. "But we did get some pictures of the plants we were inspecting and the type of guards we were under."

BIG FIGHT LOOMS

Communist Patrols Feel Out Allied Positions Before All-Out Assault

NAKTONG RIVER SECTOR WILL BE BATTLE SCENE

TOYKO, Sunday, Aug. 6.—(AP)—South Korean forces annihilated a Communist battalion that crossed the Naktong river on the northern front, General MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

Headquarters said the Communists were building up considerable strength southeast of Hamchang and had sent other elements across the winding river line against South Korean defenders in that area.

TOKYO, Sunday, Aug. 6. —(AP)—Numerous North Korean patrols slipped across the Naktong river today along a 40-mile front, feeling out allied positions for the big blow, expected momentarily.

The Communists are expected to unlimber two attacks in an attempt to blast reinforced U. S. and South Korean divisions from the southeast beachhead, now 50 miles wide and about 100 miles long.

A field dispatch said major patrol activity was along the river south west of Taegu. This is the frontline supply city 55 miles northwest of the beachhead port of Pusan.

One of the major attacks is expected in this area. The other undoubtedly will roll up along the south coast, where four enemy divisions are ready to attack 35 miles west of Pusan.

Other Communist patrols were across the river 40 miles or so north of Taegu. The South Koreans defending this part of the front, swapped patrol jabs with the enemy. So did the Aemricans farther south.

There still was no evidence that the enemy had infantry in force or any tanks across the Naktong, the last-ditch defense line for the Americans in Korea.

General MacArthur's Sunday morning summary said U. S. and South Korean patrols had kept the enemy "off balance" in an action that lasted through Saturday and Saturday night.

The North Koreans were daringly massing in daylight, despite the threat of the aerial wrath that they can expect from superior allied air power. They have been moving mostly by night.

MacArthur's headquarters said their switch to daytime movements of men and supplies indicated they "are desperately striving for a main effort and an all-out attempt to break through the new defense lines."

These lines were along the Naktong river, although the Communists were already on the east side of that stream in the marshy south coast area.

Taking advantage of a rainstorm, Saturday afternoon, they also made unopposed crossings of the

Writes Wife From Hospital In Japan After Being Shot In Battle

WINNSBORO, La., Aug. 5.—(Special)—A report on the fighting in Korea was disclosed by Sergeant 1st class James Monroe Cruse who was wounded in action on the Korean front in a letter to his wife, Mrs. James Cruse of Winnsboro.

Excerpts from the letter are as follows:

"There were about 300 of us who got it at a river crossing on July 16th. We have had so few men on the front over there that they kept us bottled up about all the time. We lost everything we had twice including most of the men, and it is surprising to know that a few of us got out.

"The whole front including everybody and every outfit were trapped Sunday from the front, rear and both sides. We fought until we could take off through the mountains ang get away. Just thousands of them and only a few of us, but we managed to steal our way through their lines to ours where we got medical attention.

"Then they put us on a British hospital ship and brought us to the Osaha hospital in Japan."

Sgt. Cruse was originally a member of the 25th division, but saw action with the 24th division as a replacement.

Mrs. Cruse stated that she had learned from the war department that her husband was to receive the purple heart for action at Taejo. on Sunday July 16.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—(AP)—A house plan to speed corporation tax collections by shortening the time-to-pay period was accepted today by the senate finance committee.

The tax writing group's agreement on the so-called Mills plan brought the two chambers a little closer together in the drive to expedite President Truman's request for an additional $5,000,000,000 of revenue.

At the same time, however, the senate committee turned down another house plan to require a 10 per cent withholding tax on corporation dividends.

"oth actions — the during an unusual Saturday session called to accelerate the effort to meet more of the mounting costs of the military effort.

Government tax experts estimate the payment speed-up plan, sponsored by Rep. Mills (D.-Ark.) and passed by the house, would add about $800,000,000 of revenue for each of the next five fiscal years. It would not, however, result in any tax increases.

Under present law, corporations may pay a year's taxes in four equal quarterly installments during the following year. The Mills plan would bring the cash into the treasury faster by gradually reducing the payment period to six months.

The 10 per cent withholding tax which the senate committee rejected calls for collection of taxes on dividends in the same way income taxes now are withheld from workers' pay checks.

TALBOT FEARS HE WILL BE OUSTED

Says Long Plans To 'Sacrifice' Him As Appeasement To 'Truman Dictatorship'

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 5.—(AP)—W. H. Talbot, Louisiana National Democratic Committeeman, said today that he had heard that Gov. Earl Long would attempt to oust him as an appeasement to the "Truman dictatorship".

"I am told that I am to be sacrificed on the altar of appeasement," he said in a letter to members of the Democratic state central committee. "This will not hurt me."

Talbot, who managed Long's successful gubernatorial campaign in 1948, said he had no intention of resigning as national committeeman.

MONROE GIRL IS KILLED IN TEX.

Neville Student Shot While Spending Summer Vacation On Ranch

Ann Trent Hornbeak, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Hornbeak, was accidentally killed near Cedar Point, Texas, Saturday when she apparently fell over a log while taking a walk, causing the discharge of a .22 caliber rifle she was carrying.

Miss Hornbeak, a stellar student at Neville High School, had been visiting with relatives on a ranch for six weeks.

Her relatives reported that she went for a walk yesterday afternoon, carrying with her the .22 rifle. When she didn't return, a search party was formed. Her body was found in a secluded pasture.

Her parents are enroute to Center Point to return the body.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete as to the time, but will be under the direction of Peters Funeral Home of Monroe.

M. H. A. PROJECT TO START SOON

Contract To Be Signed Next Week, Work To Start Immediately

Monroe Housing Authorities have been authorized to execute a $984,000 contract with R. B. Farnsworth of New Orleans for the construction of housing projects 6-1 and 6-2 in Monroe.

Joseph S. Guerriero, chairman of the Monroe Housing Authority, said he was notified yesterday to proceed with the contract. He said it would be signed next week and work would begin on both projects immediately.

The telegram authorizing the M. H. A. to proceed with the construction follows: "Monroe Housing Authority,

Draft Picture As It Now Stands Gets Explanation

By Douglas B. Cornell

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Worried whether the draft might yank the boy out of school? or whether you yourself can get a deferment?

Nobody can tell you for sure what will happen. But selective service officials say this is the picture today as shown partly in laws and partly in regulations:

Only persons in the 19 through 25 age group can be drafted now, although 18-year-olds must register.

If you are in the right age bracket and have a job, it's up to your local draft board to decide whether your type of work is of the kind and importance to warrant a deferment. The board is supposed to defer anyone whose employment or occupation "is found to be necessary to the maintenance of national health, safety, or interests."

Nobody is giving the board yet a definite list of jobs the government considers vital. So the board is on its own to a large extent, and it has pretty wide discretion.

The commerce and labor department have given the armed services lists of critical occupations to use as a guide in calling up members of the reserves and National Guard. But selective service shows little interest in such lists. After all, its job isn't to see that business has enough manpower, but the armed services do.

Still, selective service might get around later on to some job lists. It had them during World War II, although only for purposes of advising draft boards.

Either you or your boss can ask for a deferment because of the nature of your job. And the board has to be convinced you can't be replaced and that putting you in uniform would mean a "material loss of effectiveness" with the activity in which you are engaged.

Suppose your boy is going to school and is eligible for the draft. He can stay in high school until he graduates, reaches his 20th

HARRY BRIDGES IS ORDERED TO JAIL; BAIL IS REVOKED

OUTSPOKEN WATERFRONT BOSS STOPPED AT LAST

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Harry Bridges was ordered to jail today. The court denied a motion for a week-end stay of the order.

Deputy Marshall John Roseen said he would take Bridges to the county jail.

The Australian-born Bridges, head of the C. I. O. Longshore Union, had been free on $25,000 bail since his April conviction of perjury. The jury held he swore falsely in his 1945 citizenship hearing he wasn't a Communist.

The government charged that his activities since the Korean war broke out have been "inimical to the security of the United States."

Bridges' attorneys asked Federal Judge George B. Harris that the Longshore chief be permitted to spend this weekend with his wife and family and then go into the U. S. circuit court of appeals Monday.

Judge Harris said "No," and spoke about wives and children of various soldiers fighting in Korea. Judge Harris declared from the bench:

"I'm satisfied to a moral certainty that Harry Bridges was and is a member of the Communist Party.

"The jury in the principal case (the perjury trial) came to the inevitable conclusion after months of evidence and argument.

"I'm also led to believe he is probably one of the most cogent figures in the Communist Party in America today.

"As such, he is an agent dedicated to seek to advance the Communist program nationally and internationally.

'As such, his allegiance cannot be to the United States of America. His conduct since the beginning of the Korean crisis, and his remarks at this proceeding, are of such a nature as to justify this court including that his loyalty and allegiance are and must be with the Communists."

CITIZENS' GROUP ASKS REFERENDUM

Urges 'Absolute Requirement' That People Vote On New Constitution

BATON ROUGE, Aug. 5.—(AP)—The greater Louisiana citizens' committee today called on the state legislature "to incorporate without fail an absolute requirement" that the new constitution be submitted to the people of the state "for acceptance or rejection."

Lloyd J. Cobb, New Orleans attorney and chairman of the citizens' committee, wrote Gov. Earl K. Long and legislators that "collectively or individually you have ... opposed" to the constitutional convention as presently proposed. The governor has said he was opposed to a popular vote on the new state constitution.

The legislators were meeting in special session tonight to take up, among other things, the proposed constitutional convention.

During the regular session, the legislature voted to submit a proposal for a constitutional convention to the people in the Nov. 7 elections.

Shortly after the act was passed, the greater Louisiana citizens' committee was formed, Cobb said. Civil and business organizations such as the New Orleans Chamber

Church-Bound Auto Crashes, 5 Killed

ROSEBURG, Ore., Aug. 5.—(AP)—A speeding automobile and a car loaded with church-going youngsters crashed head-on near here last night. Five were killed and seven injured.

There were six in each car. The youngsters had attended a nighttime church service at Sutherlin, 13 miles north of here, and were headed to their homes in Glendale.

On a straight stretch of the Pacific highway, they collided with a north-bound car about 11:30 p.m. Three of the youngsters were killed: Brenda Stackhouse, 12; Don Farthingham, 13, and Willie Ernest Morris, 16, who was driving the car, owned by his father.

Open arrows show where U. S. tanks and infantrymen are resisting heavy pressure of reinforced North Koreans in the Chinju area (1) on the South Korean front. The main fighting is in the Wonbung area where one Red column got to Pongam, 37 miles from Pusan, before it was thrown back. Action on the central sector (2) was limited to artillery duels across the Naktong river. (AP Wirephoto Map.)

Old People Boost Worth, Not Their Age

By Arthur Edson

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Maybe you hadn't realized it, but America is growing old. In 1900, four per cent of the people in the U. S. were 65 or older. Now the percentage has grown to 7.6. That's more than 11,000,000 old people.

Old people?

Well, it depends on how old you are. When you're 10, everyone over 30 seems equally ancient and uninteresting. But when you hit 65 you still may feel like a kid—and resent alleged humor on alleged senility.

At least that's the impression gathered from letters that have rolled into the federal security agency since the old age conference was announced.

"Having passed my 83rd birthday, I feel somewhat qualified to express myself on this subject. Our lives are made unnecessarily unpleasant by varied offensive remarks. Some are fond of telling us that 'you're too old' to do this or that. Many seem unable to realize that it is condition and not years that determine one's usefulness."

"What we want is a job and a chance to make our own way," an unemployed 65-year-old steelworker from Gary, Ind., wrote in. "Will it take another war for us to prove to our younger fellows once again that we, too, can do a useful job?"

An Oakland, Calif., widow complained:

"It is just impossible to find a position after 40 if you are a woman. With a fine written recommendation, with a youthful appearance (no gray hair), with perfect health, physically and mentally, and being the terrifically old age of 50, I am being told at all personnel offices that my age is against me. What an injustice."

CHARITY PATIENTS MUST BE IN NEED

Hospital Board Announces Definite Rules For Admissions

BATON ROUGE, La., Aug. 5.—(AP)—Definite rules for admission to Louisiana's charity hospitals will be put into effect immediately, State Hospital Director Jesse H. Bankston said today.

Bankston said the rules, which provide income standards for persons to be considered "medically indigent" and also make allowances for individual consideration of cases, had been considered by the state hospital board since April. He said that previously complaints had been received that the state's charity services were being abused.

The rules have been considered also, the hospital director said, by representatives of the Louisiana State Medical Society, Louisiana State Dental Society, Louisiana Hospital association and other segments of health and public welfare and private and public hospitals.

The regulations require that admission to charity hospitals shall be refused any person, except in emergencies or under the following conditions:

"1. Any recipient of public assistance, other than the old age pension, shall be considered eligible for hospital and clinic care without further certification.

"2. Any person whose annual income does not exceed the following financial scale is eligible for hospital care, provided he does not have hospital insurance covering cost of illness: single person, $1,020; couple, $1,320; couple with one child, $1,500, and each additional child or dependent, $180.

"3. When diagnosis and treat-

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Senate sources today credit a big assist on air force bombing of North Korean Communist targets to Edwin W. Pauley, former special ambassador for President Truman.

They said that photographs and descriptive data obtained by Pauley in 1946 despite Russian protests have helped guide recent U. S. B-29 bombing strikes.

Senators still are trying to learn the background purpose and personalities involved in the public testimony here Thursday on Korea by Pauley. The wealthy oil man and politician was billed as a mystery witness by Chairman Tydings (D.-Md.) of the senate armed services committee.

During his testimony, Pauley expressed the personal opinion that the United States should have gone to war with Russia if necessary to compel the Soviets to live up to agreements on Korea.

Just who in the government suggested that Pauley be billed as a witness has not yet been disclosed.

Discussing Pauley's visit to Korea, several senators told a reporter privately today that the information he brought back has proved of value to the U. S. air force. Pauley himself testified that air force and other military leaders had been using the data.

Pauley in 1946 was serving as U. S. representative on war reparations. He and his party insisted on making a spot check of Japanese-built plants and industries in North Korea, then as now in Communist hands. The spot check was desired because Russians had looted other captured areas.

Pauley said it required "extreme pressure" before the Americans finally were committed to North Korea by Russian officers and then Russians ran trains ahead and behind them filled with armed guards.

"Not a picture could be taken without an argument before, and dire threat after," he said. "But we did get some pictures of the plants we were inspecting and the type of guards we were under."

BIG FIGHT LOOMS

Communist Patrols Feel Out Allied Positions Before All-Out Assault

NAKTONG RIVER SECTOR WILL BE BATTLE SCENE

TOYKO, Sunday, Aug. 6.—(AP)—South Korean forces annihilated a Communist battalion that crossed the Naktong river on the northern front, General MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

Headquarters said the Communists were building up considerable strength southeast of Hamchang and had sent other elements across the winding river line against South Korean defenders in that area.

TOKYO, Sunday, Aug. 6.—(AP)—Numerous North Korean patrols slipped across the Naktong river today along a 40-mile front, feeling out allied positions for the big blow, expected momentarily.

The Communists are expected to unlimber two attacks in an attempt to blast reinforced U. S. and South Korean divisions from the southeast beachhead, now 50 miles wide and about 100 miles long.

A field dispatch said major patrol activity was along the river south west of Taegu. This is the frontline supply city 55 miles northwest of the beachhead port of Pusan.

One of the major attacks is expected in this area. The other undoubtedly will roll up along the south coast, where four enemy divisions are ready to attack 35 miles west of Pusan.

Other Communist patrols were across the river 40 miles or so north of Taegu. The South Koreans defending this part of the front, swapped patrol jabs with the enemy. So did the Aemricans farther south.

There still was no evidence that the enemy had infantry in force or any tanks across the Naktong, the last-ditch defense line for the Americans in Korea.

General MacArthur's Sunday morning summary said U. S. and South Korean patrols had kept the enemy "off balance" in an action that lasted through Saturday and Saturday night.

The North Koreans were daringly massing in daylight, despite the threat of the aerial wrath that they can expect from superior allied air power. They have been moving mostly by night.

MacArthur's headquarters said their switch to daytime movements of men and supplies indicated that they "are desperately striving for a main effort and an all out attempt to break through the new defense lines."

These lines were along the Naktong river, although the Communists were already on the east side of that stream in the marshy south coast area.

Taking advantage of a rainstorm, Saturday afternoon, they also made unopposed crossings of the

WINNSBORO MAN TELLS OF KOREA

Writes Wife From Hospital In Japan After Being Shot In Battle

WINNSBORO, La., Aug. 5.—(Special)—A report on the fighting in Korea was sent home by Sergeant 1st class James Monroe Cruse who was wounded in action on the Korean front in a letter to his wife, Mrs. James Cruse of Winnsboro. Excerpts from the letter are as follows:

"There were about 300 of us who got it at a river crossing on July 16th. We have had so few men on the front over there that they kept us bottled up about all the time. We lost everything we had twice including our clothes. It is just surprising to know that a few of us got out.

"The whole front including everybody and every outfit were trapped Sunday from the front, rear and both sides. We were trapped so we could take off through the mountains and go around. It cost thousands of them and only a few of us, but we fought our way through their lines to ours where we got medical attention. They put us on a British hospital ship and brought us to the Osaha hospital in Japan."

Sgt. Cruse was originally a member of the 25th division, but saw action with the 24th division as a replacement.

Mrs. Cruse stated that she had learned from the war department that her husband was to receive the purple heart for action at Taejon on Sunday July 16.

Russia's Greatest Weapon

"You find waves and waves of men approaching you. You fire your machine gun and row after row goes down. But they never stop coming. You fire until the gun is hot in your hands and still that irresistible tide sweeps toward you. . . . .

"It is like trying to stop the ocean coming in, and after a while you feel it is hopeless to try to stop them, and you either give up or run away."

Sounds familiar, doesn't it? Like a G.I. talking about the fanatical North Koreans. But it isn't. It's a former German officer telling an American reporter in Paris about the Russians in World War II. . . . .

There's a crucial parallel, nevertheless, between the North Koreans today and the Soviet soldiers of 1941-45. In the Soviet Union, in China and the various Russian satellites, human life is cheap. In much of the Communist realm, it is also plentiful.

Communism emphasizes masses of men, not individuals. A man is literally the property of the state. Whether in peace or war, he's expendable. As a soldier, he's a weapon of war in a very real sense.

Much is being made these days of Russia's great superiority over the eWst in tanks, planes, guns and submarines. Rightly so. But even if we devise effective defenses against this materiel, that will not be sufficient. How do we plan to throw back those waves upon waves of men?

Korea has shown us how hard it is to check advances by an army which utterly disregards its own manpower losses. We can be sure that wherever communism marches, that same callous use of men as weapons will be evident.

To make it worse, Russia and her Communist satellites have a defensive weapon of unparalleled value: millions of square miles of space. As it takes extraordinary means to offset the great mass of Red forces, so it requires similar measures to win and control such space. . . . . . .

The western world naturally hopes it never will have to try conquering Communist manpower and space. But it is now preparing to defend itself against a Soviet Union which might want war.

It's entirely fitting that we should be thinking of new and better anti-tank, anti-aircraft and anti-submarine weapons as we build that defense. But shouldn't we also be devising some highly destructive anti-human weapons?

The west can't match communism's numbers if a test comes. And we can't count either on the costly atomic bomb. Its practical worth against millions of men on a battlefield is unknown.

Any American and western military planning that does not take Red manpower and land area into account is unreal. The enemy foot soldier is still the man to be beaten.

The New Concepts

In the light of current events, it is interesting to look back about a year, to the time when the headlines were largely occupied with the debate over what kind of weapons we needed, and how the next war would have to be fought. The star of the air force was then in its ascendancy, and its more extreme partisans were arguing passionately that the airplane—and most especially jet fighters and the huge intercontinental bombers—could do practically all of the job. The navy, the argument ran, would in the future be only a minor, auxiliary service, and should be deprived of most, possibly all, of its own planes and carriers. The tank was obsolete, or nearly so, because new weapons had made it practically as vulnerable to fire as a jeep. And the role of the foot soldier, always paramount in past wars, would be a relatively minor one next time.

This is what prompted U. S. News and World Report, in an article on military planning and strategy, to say: "War (in Korea) is putting U. S. military ideas, new weapons, and strategy plans to the test of experience. On the basis of the record to date, the report card on first performance can be marked: 'Flunked.'" For our experience in Korea has certainly proven that, in this particular kind of "small" war at least, the new weapons and new ideas have not worked the expected wonders.

In this war, the biggest bombers have not been used, nor are they likely to be used to any extent. They are adapted to global, all-out war, in which they would carry A-bombs to vital enemy targets thousands of miles away from their bases.

The air force has performed splendidly in Korea, and has inflicted heavy damage on Red forces. But reports from the front have said time and again that the jet planes, in this type of campaign, have been a disappointment. Valuable as they are in air combat, they are too fast, and too limited in the time they can stay aloft, to operate as well in close support of troops as piston-engined planes.

Navy air, once written off as an obsolete weapon, has proven enormously vital. The carrier planes operate in support of the ground troops, and are a major defense against amphibious landings. A traditional navy dominates the sea lanes and the harbors.

The most dramatic example of the worth of an old weapon is found in the tank. It was the greatest single factor in making posible the North Korean drive. The Russian tanks which the Red troops used apparently were superior to ours in fire power and armor.

Finally, the role of the foot soldier has again been all-important. Despite all the new and revolutionary concepts yet uttered, the "poor, bloody infantry" has been the queen of battles in Korea.

It may be that in the future, and in another kind of war if it comes, those new concepts may find some justification. They have not so far, and it is evident that it would be a disastrous folly to accept them at theoretical value.

WALTER WINCHELL

JACK LAIT
(Walter Winchell is on vacation.)

My pretty blonde granddaughter, Beth Lait, was married yesterday, one week after her eighteenth birthday, one week before her youthful bridegroom, who was her schoolmate, was inducted into the army of his country.

Men just fight and women must wait.

Men must fight and women must pray.

It comes a bit hesitantly to me, this thinking of Beth as a women. She was such a lovely dimpled dumpling as a baby, not long ago. Now she is a wife, a soldier's wife.

Her decision came so suddenly, though we expected it in time, that I didn't even have time to fly to California to be present at the ceremony.

So I say to her here what I would have said to her had I been there:

"My dear, you have my blessing, my benediction and my profoundest sentiments.

"May your man do his duty to his flag with courage and honor, and come back to you in victory.

"You have chosen your happiness and your cross. You have married for love. You, in whose veins flows the blood of brave women, will be brave.

"May God, in His infinite mercy, bring your man through to you well and safe."

My son George, Beth's father, has no son. Jack Jr. is unmarried. We may be the last of the Laits. There are three granddaughters to carry on the line.

It is a thoroughly American admixture, mingling the breeds of many races and creeds, pioneer settlers and second-generation immigrants. Beth's grandmother's grandfather was a Union captain in the Civil War, who enlisted in Chicago when it was a village. He was present when I married his granddaughter, whom Beth resembles.

Captain Gerhardi, of Italian descent, was greatly esteemed. He was the master mechanic of the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad, the inventor of the one-flange car-wheel, on which he refused to take any royalties because it helped to make traveling safer for his fellow-men.

His wife was of Bohemian descent, a Novak. Their daughter married Frederick Leusch, who had left a German farm to make his way in America. Their daughter became my wife. Beth's mother's parents were born in Scotland. Her bridegroom, of full Caucasion lineage, stems from Honolulu. His father was an American soldier.

These are only some of the elements of the melting-pot which brought forth the blonde, blue-eyed bride, and will be fused into her children.

How can any inbred foreign nation hope to conquer people of such combinations, with the aptitudes and many metals of so many hardy peoples?

We have millions like them. And we will have many more millions as they are born of children of all the countries and races who had the courage and the initiative to leave the decadent kingdoms of the old world and challenge the seas to come to the land of opportunity, strangers, to seek new limitless horizons and to find freedom.

For that liberty their sons will take up arms and their daughters will send them forth and cheer them on.

They are not warlike.

But freedom has been their birthright now so long that they could not breathe without it. They inherited it from those who came here to achieve it and to battle for it.

These are Americans.

If such sentiments sound corney, forgive me. There is a third generation of my own life and there may soon be a fourth. That is a tremendous privilege—to see the fructification of life, in its natural human progress, seeding our good earth to flourish and multiply its sturdy offshoots.

It is not an uncommon adventure, but to each it must bring a realization of God's benefactions and responsibilities.

That consciousness cannot come fully except when one can say, "This is my own."

There are and will be many hurried marriages, like the one of which I speak, as war comes again.

There will be many children born of our young men summoned to the colors.

They will take up the traditions and the burdens and the glories of their fathers and their fatherland.

And in their arteries will pump the lifeblood of those who threw off the shackles and the circumscriptions of worn-out, cruel, medieval government and fled amid hardships to seek an outlet for their energies, ambitions, and the hunger of the strong for liberty and equality.

For the yet unborn there await even greater, grander destinies.

I am proud that my blood will mingle with some of these.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

SADDEST STORY EVER TOLD

A couple of week ends ago, the missus and I were driving up to the country in our '41 gas buggy when it stalled on a hill outside of Tarrytown and the radiator began to boil up like a miniature Bikini.

"Don't you think it's time we got a new car," asked Eleanor, "or should we wait until the axles fall off?"

The following Monday, primped, preened and pomaded, I walked into the Rolls Royce agency.

Yes, you read it right—the Rolls Royce agency! And before you throw that soapbox at me, let me explain.

Ever since I was knee-high to the Allen street gutter, I've yenned, above all else, to own one of these regal runabouts. Somehow, for reasons best left to psychiatrists, I've never been able to pass one without picturing myself in its lush, plush confines, daintly holding the speaking tube with lifted pinky and giving the hoi pollai the Marie Antoinette treatment. "Since I have to buy a car," I said to myself, "it might as well be the luxurious lizzie I've always dreamed about, even if it means hocking a couple of insurance policies."

The salesman, a natty little man whose accent you could cut with a crumpet, let me inspect one of the British beauties.

"Would you like to see how it runs?" he said. "I'll have one of our men drive you."

As I climbed in, I could feel my blood blueing up.

"We'll go down Broadway," said the chauffeur, "and you can see how it performs in traffic."

A shudder ran through me. There is a red light on 51st street, and I knew that if this bejabbers buggy stopped in front of Lindy's, the songwriters and vaudeville agents were a cinch to come running out and pelt me with pastrami sandwiches.

"They're digging up the street on Times Square," I said.

"How about the East River drive?" said the chauffeur. "We can cut across Delancey street and come up the West Side highway."

My shudder turned into a quake. Somewhere on the East Side I figured to be spotted by an old poolroom pal, and I envisioned the words, "You stink, Jack," being chalked on the elegant fenders. Even a rock through the windshield was a distinct possibility.

"Ride around Central Park," I said. 'It's nice this time of the year."

As I settled back into the form-fitting upholstery, I began to do some hard thinking, and the more I thought about it the more I realized that if I bought me a Rolls Royce there was literally no place I could go with it in this town. If Eleanor and I got out of it in front of a theater on opening night, the mob we know would split their sides laughing, and the columns next day would be asking whether Lord and Lady Rose were finding it hard to buy petrol instead of gas.

The only thing on the credit side was that if I owned a Rolls I'd be sure to get plenty of exercise—I'd never have the courage to park it less than ten blocks from my usual hangouts.

"It's too much automobile for me," I said to the salesman when we pulled in. "Besides, I just remembered—I get carsick."

An hour later I had made a down payment on one of the standard Detroit jobs, and I guess the moral of the story is that a hepcat may look at a king, but he'd better not try to ride around like one.

OUR CHILDREN

PROBLEM PARENTS

Some of the difficulties parents find in rearing their children to the high standards they set for them originate in their own attitudes. Being human they have certain strong characteristics, some fixed attitudes, a few comfortable habits that annoy other members of the family. As each member of the group has his own traits and tendencies, tastes and habits, friction is certain to arise. A little of it is not too bad. When wisely handled, sensibly controlled, it smooths the edges of the differing personalities. The whole difficulty centers in the sensible control.

Take an ordinary family situation. There are in the group, the father, quick tempered but basically kind, the mother, reasonable but firm in her convictions, a boy aged eleven and a girl aged four. There is, naturally, a wide span of difference between the interests and the experiences of the two children and their prsonalitis often clash. When that happens father gets after the boy, without investigation; mother rushes to his rescue. A family jar is the result.

Sister, knowing that Daddy is on her side, makes life miserable, at times, for her brother. She knocks his book out of his hands when he is absorbed in a thrilling bit, orders him to read her a story. When he says no she slaps him. He slaps back. Father, without asking why, what or who flies into a temper, grabs his son and shakes him violently, cuffs him about the ears and reduces him to a shaking wreck. Mother rushes to the rescue once more, tells Daddy he is impossible — that he is spoiling Daughter and ruining Son. The home is in an uproar. When the storm settles Daddy is sorry, Mother is in tears, so are both children. But it is likely to happen again tomorrow.

If grown people could be persuaded that they are occasionally in the wrong, that there may be flaws in their personalities that they could mend, that by giving in a little here, granting another his ideas occasionally, allowing, however impossible it seems, that somebody else may be in the right now and then, their own lives and certainly the lives of others would be much happier. Counting ten, a hundred, a thousand, before speaking or acting in an emergency or tumult would go a long way toward keeping home on a comfortable base. Nobody can be right all the time, nor wrong, either.

When the children become a cause of battle take time out, calm down, take a look at their fond parent. It could be—

THESE DAYS

UN AND SOVIET CHINA

Dr. Stanley Hornbeck used to be chief of the far eastern division of the state department (1928-1937). From 1937 to 1944, he was adviser on political relations of the state department. Then he was kicked out to make room for the Alger Hiss crowd; he was made our ambassador to the Netherlands, and then retired.

Hornbeck has been the leading far eastern expert of the United States since he went to the Versailles conference in 1918. Those most familiar with China, Japan, Korea, the Philippines and such countries realize that Hornbeck's specialized knowledge is extensive, intimate and important.

At the annual meeting of the American Society of International Law last April, Dr. Hornbeck delivered an address which has just become available to me, in which appears the following:

"The United States withheld recognition of the Soviet government until a new administration here had become convinced that that government met most of the standard tests of what constitutes a recognizable government and that it would be reasonable and advantageous to accord it recognition. Then we laid down conditions; we asked and we were given pledges. And, even at that, we were deceived. The Russian Soviet government has disregarded both its general legal obligations and its particular pledges, including those made then to us and those made before and since to us and to other countries.

"There is little if any warrant for an expectation that, with or without recognition and with or without pledges, the performance of the Communist regime in China will differ very greatly from the performance of the Communist regimes in Russia and in other "Communist" countries. All Communists are committed to the destruction of persons and peoples, institutions and agencies which stand in the way of world domination by communism. The Chinese Communists, whether they are or are not controlled by the Kremlin, are allies of the Kremlin. They imitate the Russian Soviet system, they use its methods and they follow the made-in-Moscow party line."

The particular purpose of Dr. Hornbeck's address was to discuss the recognition of Soviet China by the United States and the United Nations. Despite the war in Korea this is not an academic question. Nehru of India is pushing Soviet Russia's demands for such recognition. Nehru is naturally scared of Russia which, moving out of China, Afghanistan and Mongolia, can over-run Pakistan and India as Genghis Khan did.

Nehru hopes that by playing the role of the honest broker, he might save India and even enhance its influence in international affairs. This has never succeeded with Soviet Russia. The best known example of the destroyed middle man is, of course, Jan Masaryk. It is generally forgotten that at the beginning of his career, Chiang Kai-Shek played exactly that role in China.

" . . . The Chinese Communist regime demands that it be admitted (in the United Nations) and the representation of the national government be expelled. The Soviet Union supports those demands and is trying, with its walkout and boycott tactics, to blackmail the United Nations into compliance with that two-fold demand. The United Nations, embarrassed first by the Chinese national government's preferring of charges against the Soviet Union, and embarrassed further now by the Chinese Communist government's demands and the pressure applied by the Soviet government in support thereof, is greatly concerned about the menace to it of this Soviet pressure, more concerned, it would seem, than it has thus far appeared to be about the menace to the world of Soviet pressures of the past five years in China and against a government there which the Soviet government had expressly pledged itself in special agreements to support.

"In and regarding this situation, the government of the United States has taken an affirmative position toward side-tracking consideration of the Chinese government's charges against the Soviet Union and has taken a negative position toward the question of representation of China in the United Nations. Its spokesmen have declared that its delegation will vote against recognition by the United Nations of the Communist regime but will not resort to a "veto" and will accept such verdict as may be arrived at by the votes of others."

How can the state department justify not using the veto as long as we are actually at war with Soviet Russia and Soviet China and every Soviet country in Korea?

There is a picture of the century-old covered bridge in ruins. West Union was the town worst hit.

As I've said heretofore, I don't read anonymous communications. But Daughter Pat, who went over today's mail for me, asked me to read this one, signed "Friends in Worcester, Mass." It is assurance from a group of readers that the column is read faithfully on holidays, as well as on other days. Friendly Anon, I thank you.

There is a note from George Matthew Adams, written at his summer camp, Weskawenaak, near Halifax, N. S. George assures me that he is enjoying the solitude. He has a chunk of it up there, on an island, where there is scarcely a human habitation within a two-hour sail. George can live in the Big City gracefully, but he can live without it, too.

A good book that I didn't get around to until this week is "Victoria Through the Looking-Glass. The Life of Lewis Carroll," by Florence Becker Lennon (S&S). Despite the awkward title, it's a good piece of biographical work. While not in the debunking class, it does not spare the character it's telling about. Carroll was not altogether a normal man, and he wrote some awful tripe.

Requests have come from several sources for permission to reprint some of my remarks about the postal service. Grant, in every case. Yes, that was the first item I noted about the difference between New Yorkers and other people.

Recently I walked along for a block, on 42d street, beside a plump gentleman of middle age, neatly dressed and barbered, who held his hat in his hand while he sweatingly berated his boss. "He was steaming up for the evening's report to his wife, I suppose. "I told him. . . ." was the burden of the speech and if he really told the boss all of that the poor boss must have jumped out of the window.

Thurman Sensing,

DOWN SOUTH

SHOULD BEGIN IN WASHINGTON

The administration is calling upon the American people to make many sacrifices in order to make certain that the war in Korea shall be won. And this is only the beginning—because we know now that we must be strong enough and ready at all times to repulse Communist aggression wherever it breaks out.

That is as it should be; a people who are not willing to make whatever sacrifice is necessary to preserve their freedom do not deserve freedom.

But the administration is overlooking a very important point in this connection. The administration seems to think that the necessity for rigid economy rests only upon the taxpayers. The administration seems to think it is not necessary for the same rigid economy to be applied to governmental expenditures.

In the president's recent message to the country, he said nothing whatever about what the government could and should do about putting a stop to the unessential and enormous and wasteful expenditures that are totally unrelated to the national defense. These unnecessary expenditures have been pointed out many times by such individuals as Senator Byrd, of Virginia, and by such groups as the Hoover commission.

Even as charity begins at home, so economy begin in Washington. It's a poor government that is not interested in sharing the load with the people! Even before the people are asked to pay higher taxes in order to successfully prosecute the war, the government should cut to the bone all expenditures for non-military purposes. A good example is the best sort of leadership. The government should say to the people: We are cutting out agricultural subsidies, we are dismissing all superfluous governmental employees, we are withdrawing all pork barrel appropriations, we are discontinuing anything and everything that is unessential to the winning of the war. Then, in all good conscience, the government could call upon the people to do their part.

Expenditures by the government were never cut between the wars as they should have been. Taxes were never lowered as they should have been. Now, when it is going to take billions of additional dollars in the federal budget to conduct the Korean struggle and to place the United States of America on a strong military footing, we must face some facts about our economic way of life or we must face the consequences.

Even as it was, we have been heading straight toward bankruptcy in this country—and no claims of prosperity by the president or his economic advisers should cause us to think differently. We have spent more than we have taken in during eighteen of the last twenty years. We have been living off our fat. We have been living on accumulated resources. We have been ignoring the national debt. We have been squandering the public monies.

We have even taken it upon ourselves, with all our unsound finances at home, to take care of the rest of the world. In addition to rehabilitating our supposed friends among the free nations of the world, we have occupied and have been rebuilding the conquered nations of our enemies.

It is high time we were asking ourselves in this country, Is it humanitarianism to commit economic suicide?

In fact, if we are to continue our policy of wet-nursing the world, it is perhaps even time we were optimistic enough to begin thinking about the day when we shall occupy the conquered Communist countries of the world after the third war world war! What, then, about the American budget?

In 1931 there came to the United States senate a younger member, then just over fifty years old, who approached the somewhat more venerable Republican leader and spoke as follows:

"Senator McNary, I know that you are older than I in years and experience, but I am the leader of the bar in my state of Vermont and I think that I am entitled to a position in the United States senate commensurate with my standing. What is your opinion?"

McNary, now dead, related the story to his friends with some astonishment. He had replied to the surprising proposal of the new Republican senator from Vermont with the usual suggestion that Austin take his place at the foot of the committee on judiciary, where eminent constitutional lawyers, have begun their climb to prominence in the United States senate from time immemorial.

Warren Austin, twice elected to the senate from Vermont after his short term choice in 1931, became the United Nations representative of his country in 1949, and it seems that his real career began then. Those who doubt it should have seen him on television in his reply to Jacob A. Malik of Russia, immediately after the latter's elevation to the presidency of the secur-

Russia's Greatest Weapon

"You find waves and waves of men approaching you. You fire your machine gun and row after row goes down. But they never stop coming. You fire until the gun is hot in your hands and still that irresistible tide sweeps toward you. . . . .

"It is like trying to stop the ocean coming in, and after a while you feel it is hopeless to try to stop them, and you either give up or run away."

Sounds familiar, doesn't it? Like a G.I. talking about the fanatical North Koreans. But it isn't. It's a former German officer telling an American reporter in Paris about the Russians in World War II. . . . . .

There's a crucial parallel, nevertheless, between the North Koreans today and the Soviet soldiers of 1941-45. In the Soviet Union, in China and the various Russian satellites, human life is cheap. In much of the Communist realm, it is also plentiful.

Communism emphasizes masses of men, not individuals. A man is literally the property of the state. Whether in peace or war, he's expendable. As a soldier, he's a weapon of war in a very real sense.

Much is being made these days of Russia's great superiority over the eWst in tanks, planes, guns and submarines. Rightly so. But even if we devise effective defenses against this materiel, that will not be sufficient. How do we plan to throw back those waves upon waves of men?

Korea has shown us how hard it is to check advances by an army which utterly disregards its own manpower losses. We can be sure that wherever communism marches, that same callous use of men as weapons will be evident.

To make it worse, Russia and her Communist satellites have a defensive weapon of unparalleled value: millions of square miles of space. As it takes extraordinary means to offset the great mass of Red forces, so it requires similar measures to win and control such space. . .

The western world naturally hopes it never will have to try conquering Communist manpower and space. But it is now preparing to defend itself against a Soviet Union which might want war. . . .

It's entirely fitting that we should be thinking of new and better anti-tank, anti-aircraft and anti-submarine weapons as we build that defense. But shouldn't we also be devising some highly destructive anti-human weapons?

The west can't match communism's numbers if a test comes. And we can't count either on the costly atomic bomb. Its practical worth against millions of men on a battlefield is unknown.

Any American and western military planning that does not take Red manpower and land area into account is unreal. The enemy foot soldier is still the man to be beaten.

The New Concepts

In the light of current events, it is interesting to look back about a year, to the time when the headlines were largely occupied with the debate over what kind of weapons we needed, and how the next war would have to be fought. The star of the air force was then in its ascendancy, and its more extreme partisans were arguing passionately that the airplane—and most especially jet fighters and the huge intercontinental bombers—could do practically all of the job. The navy, the argument ran, would in the future be only a minor, auxiliary service, and should be deprived of most, possibly all, of its own planes and carriers. The tank was obsolete, or nearly so, because new weapons had made it practically as vulnerable to fire as a jeep. And the role of the foot soldier, always paramount in past wars, would be a relatively minor one next time.

This is what prompted U. S. News and World Report, in an article on military planning and strategy, to say: "War (in Korea) is putting U. S. military ideas, new weapons, and strategy plans to the test of experience. On the basis of the record to date, the report card on first performance can be marked: 'Flunked.'" For our experience in Korea has certainly proven that, in this particular kind of "small" war at least, the new weapons and new ideas have not worked the expected wonders.

In this war, the biggest bombers have not been used, nor are they likely to be used to any extent. They are adapted to global, all-out war, in which they would carry A-bombs to vital enemy targets thousands of miles away from their bases. . . . .

The air force has performed splendidly in Korea, and has inflicted heavy damage on Red forces. But reports from the front have said time and again that the jet planes, in this type of campaign, have been a disappointment. Valuble as they are in air combat, they are too fast, and too limited in the time they can stay aloft, to operate as well in close support of troops as piston-engined planes.

Navy air, once written off as an obsolete weapon, has proven enormously vital. The carrier planes operate in support of the ground troops, and are a major defense against amphibious landings. A traditional navy dominates the sea lanes and the harbors. . . . . . .

The most dramatic example of the worth of an old weapon is found in the tank. It was the greatest single factor in making posible the North Korean drive. The Russian tanks which the Red troops used apparently were superior to ours in fire power and armor.

Finally, the role of the foot soldier has again been all-important. Despite all the new and revolutionary concepts yet uttered, the "poor, bloody infantry" has been the queen of battles in Korea.

It may be that in the future, and in another kind of war if it comes, those new concepts may find some justification. They have not so far, and it is evident that it would be a disastrous folly to accept them at theoretical value.

WALTER WINCHELL

JACK LAIT

(Walter Winchell is on vacation.)

My pretty blonde granddaughter, Beth Lait, was married yesterday, one week after her eighteenth birthday, one week before her youthful bridegroom, who was her schoolmate, was inducted into the army of his country.

Men just fight and women must wait.

Men must fight and women must pray.

It comes a bit hesitantly to me, this thinking of Beth as a women. She was such a lovely dimpled dumpling as a baby, not long ago. Now she is a wife, a soldier's wife.

Her decision came so suddenly, though we expected it in time, that I didn't even have time to fly to California to be present at the ceremony.

So I say to her here what I would have said to her had I been there:

"My dear, you have my blessing, my benediction and my profoundest sentiments.

"May your man do his duty to his flag with courage and honor, and come back to you in victory.

"You have chosen your happiness and your cross. You have married for love. You, in whose veins flows the blood of brave women, will be brave.

"May God, in His infinite mercy, bring your man through to you well and safe."

My son George, Beth's father, has no son. Jack Jr. is unmarried. We may be the last of the Laits. There are three granddaughters to carry on the line.

It is a thoroughly American admixture, mingling the breeds of many races and creeds, pioneer settlers and second-generation immigrants. Beth's grandmother's grandfather was a Union captain in the Civil War, who enlisted in Chicago when it was a village. He was present when I married his granddaughter, whom Beth resembles.

Captain Gerhardi, of Italian descent, was greatly esteemed. He was the master mechanic of the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad, the inventor of the one-flange car-wheel, on which he refused to take any royalties because it helped to make traveling safer for his fellow-men.

His wife was of Bohemian descent, a Novak. Their daughter married Frederick Leusch, who had left a German farm to make his way in America. Their daughter became my wife. Beth's mother's parents were born in Scotland. Her bridegroom, of full Caucasion lineage, stems from Honolulu. His father was an American soldier.

These are only some of the elements of the melting-pot which brought forth the blonde, blue-eyed bride, and will be fused into her children.

How can any inbred foreign nation hope to conquer people of such combinations, with the aptitudes and many metals of so many hardy peoples?

We have millions like them. And we will have many more millions as they are born of children of all the countries and races who had the courage and the initiative to leave the decadent kingdoms of the old world and challenge the seas to come to the land of opportunity, strangers, to seek new limitless horizons and to find freedom.

For that liberty their sons will take up arms and their daughters will send them forth and cheer them on.

They are not warlike.

But freedom has been their birthright now so long that they could not breathe without it. They inherited it from those who came here to achieve it and to battle for it.

These are Americans.

If such sentiments sound corney, forgive me. There is a third generation of my own life and there may soon be a fourth. That is a tremendous privilege—to see the fructification of life, in its natural human progress, seeding our good earth to flourish and multiply its sturdy offshoots.

It is not an uncommon adventure, but to each it must bring a realization of God's benefactions and responsibilities.

That consciousness cannot come fully except when one can say, "This is my own."

There are and will be many hurried marriages, like the one of which I speak, as war comes again.

There will be many children born of our young men summoned to the colors.

They will take up the traditions and the burdens and the glories of their fathers and their fatherland.

And in their arteries will pump the lifeblood of those who threw off the shackles and the circumscriptions of worn-out, cruel, medieval government and fled amid hardships to seek an outlet for their energies, ambitions, and the hunger of the strong for liberty and equality.

For the yet unborn there await even greater, grander destinies.

I am proud that my blood will mingle with some of these.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

SADDEST STORY EVER TOLD

A couple of week ends ago, the missus and I were driving up to the country in our '41 gas buggy when it stalled on a hill outside of Tarrytown and the radiator began to boil up like a miniature Bikini.

"Don't you think it's time we got a new car," asked Eleanor, "or should we wait until the axles fall off?"

The following Monday, primped, preened and pomaded, I walked into the Rolls Royce agency.

Yes, you read it right—the Rolls Royce agency! And before you throw that soapbox at me, let me explain.

Ever since I was knee-high to the Allen street gutter, I've yenned, above all else, to own one of these regal runabouts. Somehow, for reasons best left to psychiatrists, I've never been able to pass one without picturing myself in its lush, plush confines, daintly holding the speaking tube with lifted pinky and giving the hoi pollai the Marie Antoinette treatment. "Since I have to buy a car," I said to myself, "it might as well be the luxurious lizzie I've always dreamed about, even if it means hocking a couple of insurance policies."

The salesman, a natty little man whose accent you could cut with a crumpet, let me inspect one of the British beauties.

"Would you like to see how it runs?" he said. "I'll have one of our men drive you."

As I climbed in, I could feel my blood blueing up.

"We'll go down Broadway," said the chauffeur, "and you can see how it performs in traffic."

A shudder ran through me. There is a red light on 51st street, and I knew that if this bejabbers buggy stopped in front of Lindy's, the songwriters and vaudeville agents were a cinch to come running out and pelt me with pastrami sandwiches.

"They're digging up the street on Times Square," I said.

"How about the East River drive?" said the chauffeur. "We can cut across Delancey street and come up the West Side highway."

My shudder turned into a quake. Somewhere on the East Side I figured to be spotted by an old poolroom pal, and I envisioned the words, "You stink, Jack," being chalked on the elegant fenders. Even a rock through the windshield was a distinct possibility.

"Ride around Central Park," I said. "It's nice this time of the year."

As I settled back into the form-fitting upholstery, I began to do some hard thinking, and the more I thought about it the more I realized that if I bought me a Rolls Royce there was literally no place I could go with it in this town. If Eleanor and I got out of it in front of a theater on opening night, the mob we know would split their sides laughing, and the columns next day would be asking whether Lord and Lady Rose were finding it hard to buy petrol instead of gas.

The only thing on the credit side was that if I owned a Rolls I'd be sure to get plenty of exercise—I'd never have the courage to park it less than ten blocks from my usual hangouts.

"It's too much automobile for me," I said to the salesman when we pulled in. "Besides, I just remembered—I get carsick."

An hour later I had made a down payment on one of the standard Detroit jobs, and I guess the moral of the story is that a hepcat may look at a king, but he'd better not try to ride around like one.

OUR CHILDREN

PROBLEM PARENTS

Some of the difficulties parents find in rearing their children to the high standards they set for them originate in their own attitudes. Being human they have certain strong characteristics, some fixed attitudes, a few comfortable habits that annoy other members of the family. As each member of the group has his own traits and tendencies, tastes and habits, friction is certain to arise. A little of it is not too bad. When wisely handled, sensibly controlled, it smooths the edges of the differing personalities. The whole difficulty centers in the sensible control.

Take an ordinary family situation. There are in the group, the father, quick tempered but basically kind, the mother, reasonable but firm in her convictions, a boy aged eleven and a girl aged four. There is, naturally, a wide span of difference between the interests and the experiences of the two children and their prsonalitis often clash. When that happens father gets after the boy, without investigation; mother rushes to his rescue. A family jar is the result.

Sister, knowing that Daddy is on her side, makes life miserable, at times, for her brother. She knocks his book out of his hands when he is absorbed in a thrilling bit, orders him to read her a story. When he says no she slaps him. He slaps back. Father, without asking why, what or who flies into a temper, grabs his son and shakes him violently, cuffs him about the ears and reduces him to a shaking wreck. Mother rushes to the rescue once more, tells Daddy he is impossible — that he is spoiling Daughter and ruining Son. The home is in an uproar. When the storm settles Daddy is sorry, Mother is in tears, so are both children. But it is likely to happen again tomorrow.

If grown people could be persuaded that they are occasionally in the wrong, that there may be flaws in their personalities that they could mend, that by giving in a little here, granting another his ideas occasionally, allowing, however impossible it seems, that somebody else may be in the right now and then, their own lives and certainly the lives of others would be much happier. Counting ten, a hundred, a thousand, before speaking or acting in an emergency or tumult would go a long way toward keeping home on a comfortable base. Nobody can be right all the time, nor wrong, either.

When the children become a cause of battle take time out, calm down, take a look at their fond parent. It could be—

The slow child is an aggravation to his parents, his teacher and playmates. How to overcome this trait in your child is discussed by Dr. Patri in leaflet P-11. George E. Sokolsky:

THESE DAYS

UN AND SOVIET CHINA

Dr. Stanley Hornbeck used to be chief of the far eastern division of the state department (1928-1937). From 1937 to 1944, he was adviser on political relations of the state department. Then he was kicked out to make room for the Alger Hiss crowd; he was made our ambassador to the Netherlands, and then retired.

Hornbeck has been the leading far eastern expert of the United States since he went to the Versailles conference in 1918. Those most familiar with China, Japan, Korea, the Philippines and such countries realize that Hornbeck's specialized knowledge is extensive, intimate and important.

At the annual meeting of the American Society of International Law last April, Dr. Hornbeck delivered an address which has just become available to me, in which appears the following:

"The United States withheld recognition of the Soviet government until a new administration here had become convinced that that government met most of the standard tests of what constitutes a recognizable government and that it would be reasonable and advantageous to accord it recognition. Then we laid down conditions; we asked and we were given pledges. And, even at that, we were deceived. The Russian Soviet government has disregarded both its general legal obligations and its particular pledges, including those made then to us and those made before and since to us and to other countries.

"There is little if any warrant for an expectation that, with or without recognition and with or without pledges, the performance of the Communist regime in China will differ very greatly from the performance of the Communist regimes in Russia and in other "Communist" countries. All Communists are committed to the destruction of persons and peoples, institutions and agencies which stand in the way of world domination by communism. The Chinese Communists, whether they are or are not controlled by the Kremlin, are allies of the Kremlin. They imitate the Russian Soviet system, they use its methods and they follow the made-in-Moscow party line."

The particular purpose of Dr. Hornbeck's address was to discuss the recognition of Soviet China by the United States and the United Nations. Despite the war in Korea this is not an academic question. Nehru of India is pushing Soviet Russia's demands for such recognition. Nehru is naturally scared of Russia which, moving out of China, Afghanistan and Mongolia, can over-run Pakistan and India as Genghis Khan did.

Nehru hopes that by playing the role of the honest broker, he might save India and even enhance its influence in international affairs. This has never succeeded with Soviet Russia. The best known example of the destroyed middle man is, of course, Jan Masaryk. It is generally forgotten that at the beginning of his career, Chiang Kai-Shek played exactly that role in China.

" . . . The Chinese Communist regime demands that it be admitted (in the United Nations) and the representation of the national government be expelled. The Soviet Union supports those demands and is trying, with its walkout and boycott tactics, to blackmail the United Nations into compliance with that two-fold demand. The United Nations, embarrassed first by the Chinese national government's preferring of charges against the Soviet Union, and embarrassed further now by the Chinese Communist government's demands and the pressure applied by the Soviet government in support thereof, is greatly concerned about the menace to it of this Soviet pressure, more concerned, it would seem, than it has thus far appeared to be about the menace to the world of Soviet pressures of the past five years in China and against a government there which the Soviet government had expressly pledged itself in special agreements to support.

"In and regarding this situation, the government of the United States has taken an affirmative position toward side-tracking consideration of the Chinese government's charges against the Soviet Union and has taken a negative position toward the question of representation of China in the United Nations. Its spokesmen have declared that its delegation will vote against recognition by the United Nations of the Communist regime but will not resort to a "veto" and will accept such verdict as may be arrived at by the votes of others."

How can the state department justify not using the veto as long as we are actually at war with Soviet Russia and Soviet China and every Soviet country in Korea?

New York Day By Day

NEW YORK—Dr. Hoy B. McCusky of St. Mary's, W. Va., who writes the most nearly perfect copper-plate penmanship of any correspondent, sends details of one of the most disastrous floods in his state's history. There is a picture of the century-old covered bridge in ruins. West Union was the town worst hit.

As I've said heretofore, I don't read anonymous communications. But Daughter Pat, who went over today's mail for me, asked me to read this one, signed "Friends in Worcester, Mass." It is assurance from a group of readers that the column is read faithfully on holidays, as well as on other days. Friendly Anon, I thank you.

There is a note from George Matthew Adams, written at his summer camp, Weskawenaak, near Halifax, N. S. George assures me that he is enjoying the solitude. He has a chunk of it up there, on an island, where there is scarcely a human habitation within a two-hour sail. George can live in the Big City gracefully, but he can live without it, too.

No college has quite the booster crowd behind it, among my readers, that Purdue has. I'm constantly hearing from readers who merely want to say that Purdue is great. Guess it must be.

A good book that I didn't get around to until this week is "Victoria Through the Looking-Glass. The Life of Lewis Carroll," by Florence Becker Lennon (S&S). Despite the awkward title, it's a good piece of biographical work. While not in the debunking class, it does not spare the character it's telling about. Carroll was not altogether a normal man, and he wrote some awful tripe.

Requests have come from several sources for permission to reprint some of my remarks about the postal service. Grant, in every case. And, to the boys who pack their heavy bags and the boys who spend long hours in postal stations, making the wheels go around, my best wishes for more oil and less politics in the bearings.

Editor Douglas Lurton, a calm pressed by the number of people in New York who go along the streets talking to themselves, oblivious of the circumstance that they are being overheard by thousands of pedestrains. Yes, that was the first item I noted about the difference between New Yorkers and other people.

Recently I walked along for a block, on 42d street, beside a plump gentleman of middle age, neatly dressed and barbered, who held his hat in his hand while he sweatingly berated his boss. "He was steaming up for the evening's report to his wife, I suppose. "I told him. . . ." was the burden of the speech and if he really told the boss all of that the poor boss must have jumped out of the window.

Thurman Sensing,

SHOULD BEGIN IN WASHINGTON

The administration is calling upon the American people to make many sacrifices in order to make certain that the war in Korea shall be won. And this is only the beginning—because we know now that we must be strong enough and ready at all times to repulse Communist aggression wherever it breaks out.

That is as it should be; a people who are not willing to make whatever sacrifice is necessary to preserve their freedom do not deserve freedom.

But the administration is overlooking a very important point in this connection. The administration seems to think that the necessity for rigid economy rests only upon the taxpayers. The administration seems to think it is not necessary for the same rigid economy to be applied to governmental expenditures.

In the president's recent message to the country, he said nothing whatever about what the government could and should do about putting a stop to the unessential and enormous and wasteful expenditures that are totally unrelated to the national defense. These unnecessary expenditures have been pointed out many times by such individuals as Senator Byrd, of Virginia, and by such groups as the Hoover commission.

Even as charity begins at home, so economy begin in Washington. It's a poor government that is not interested in sharing the load with the people! Even before the people are asked to pay higher taxes in order to successfully prosecute the war, the government should cut to the bone all expenditures for non-military purposes. A good example is the best sort of leadership. The government should say to the people: We are cutting out agricultural subsidies, we are dismissing all superfluous governmental employees, we are withdrawing all pork barrel appropriations, we are discontinuing anything and everything that is unessential to the winning of the war. Then, in all good conscience, the government could call upon the people to do their part.

Expenditures by the government were never cut between the wars as they should have been. Taxes were never lowered as they should have been. Now, when it is going to take billions of additional dollars in the federal budget to conduct the Korean struggle and to place the United States of America on a strong military footing, we must face some facts about our economic way of life or we must face the consequences.

Even as it was, we have been heading straight toward bankruptcy in this country—and no claims of prosperity by the president or his economic advisers should cause us to think differently. We have spent more than we have taken in during eighteen of the last twenty years. We have been living off our fat. We have been living on accumulated resources. We have been ignoring the national debt. We have been squandering the public monies.

We have even taken it upon ourselves, with all our unsound finances at home, to take care of the rest of the world. In addition to rehabilitating our supposed friends among the free nations of the world, we have occupied and have been rebuilding the conquered nations of our enemies.

It is high time we were asking ourselves in this country, Is it humanitarianism to commit economic suicide?

In fact, if we are to continue our policy of wet-nursing the world, it is perhaps even time we were optimistic enough to begin thinking about the day when we shall occupy the conquered Communist countries of the world after the third war world war! What, then, about the American budget?

BASCOM TIMMONS

In 1931 there came to the United States senate a younger member, then just over fifty years old, who approached the somewhat more venerable Republican leader and spoke as follows:

"Senator McNary, I know that you are older than I in years and experience, but I am the leader of the bar in my state of Vermont and I think that I am entitled to a position in the United States senate commensurate with my standing. What is your opinion?"

McNary, now dead, related the story to his friends with some astonishment. He had replied to the surprising proposal of the new Republican senator from Vermont with the usual suggestion that Austin take his place at the foot of the committee on judiciary, where eminent constitutional lawyers, have begun their climb to prominence in the United States senate from time immemorial.

Warren Austin, twice elected to the senate from Vermont after his short term choice in 1931, became the United Nations representative of his country in 1949, and it seems that his real career began then. Those who doubt it should have seen him on television in his reply to Jacob A. Malik of Russia, immediately after the latter's elevation to the presidency of the secur-

If the deal goes through, it will span a 25-year period, and the salary will be nothing short of astronomical. Network wants him as the replacement for Amos and Andy, who've served notice they're going to retire. . . . John Wayne, who developed a first-class case of ulcers when he first tried his hand at producing, a couple of years ago, is about to take on an even bigger load. He'll not only produce and star in his next Republic picture, "The Alamo," but, for the first time, will also serve as director.

PREVIEW NIGHTS: Pic of the week: Columbia's "711 Ocean Drive" (Edmond O'Brien - Joanne Dru). A lively melodrama about the racing wire services that's well worth tapping. . . . Good: Warner's "Pretty Baby" (Dennis Morgan-Betsy Drake-Zachary Scott-Edmund Gwenn). A prankish and somewhat spicy little comedy about a secretary and a baby food manufacturer, that could have been better and could have been worse. . . . So-So: Lippert Productions' "I Shot Billy the Kid" (Don "Red" Barry-Robert Lowery). The umpteenth chorus of the same song, but probably the best to date. . . . Universal-International's J. Arthur rank production "The Rocking Horse Winner" (Valerie Hobson-John Howard Davies.) A sombre little opus with just about as much giddyap - and - go as its namesake. . . . Columbia's "Convicted" (Glenn Ford - Broderick Crawford). Desperate doings and skulldruggery, plus a dash of heroism and romance in another mill-of-the-run prison yarn. . . . Best Performance: Edmond O'Brien in "711 Ocean Drive."

I suppose I wouldn't be Milton Berle if he weren't always bragging about something, but if he's smart he'll at least lay off the subject of how much money he makes. The other evening, for example, when called upon to emcee an impromptu floor show at a Hollywood nightclub, Berle not so coyly referred to himself as a $30,000-a-week performer. Now I'm sure we all agree with Milton and his mother that he's doing mighty well for himself, and none of us begrudge him that fact. But his timing, if not his humor, was pretty bad, in this instance. Considering the number of young Americans who're unnerved over the possibility of becoming $50 - a - month men for Uncle Sam, it's hardly the time for anyone to be bragging about his riches.

If I were a hard-working, would-be actor trying to get a break in Hollywood, I'd be more discouraged than ever, after reading an item which appeared the other day in a local trade paper column. It said: "Lawrence Tierney, who rates a break at this point, gets it in RKO's 'Best of the Badmen.' " As far as I'm concerned, if RKO wants to take another chance on Tierney, they're welcome. But I can't think of anyone who "rates a break" less than a guy who's consistently proven, via some 13 arrests for drunkenness and brawling in the last four years, that he's an incorrigible misbehaver. Such misplaced sympathy is enough to convince any young movie hopeful that a bottle in one hand and a batch of newspaper clippings in the other would be more apt to get him a "break" than any amount of sincerity or hard work.

All are invited to hear these two young men in both of these services Sunday.

JUDGE KELLY IS TO GIVE ADDRESS

Noted Juvenile Court Official To Speak At L. S. U. Farm, Home Week

Judge Camille Kelley of the juvenile court of Memphis, Tennessee, one of the nation's outstanding woman jurists, will be one of the speakers at Farm and Home Week on the Louisiana State University campus August 14-17, according to H. C. Sanders, director of the L. S. U. agricultural extension service. Between 2,500 and 3,000 farm men and women are expected to attend the annual event, Sanders said.

Judge Kelley is scheduled to speak at a general assembly in the L. S. U. Greek Theater at 8 p.m., Wednesday, August 16. She will discuss some of her observations and conclusions during her years as judge of the juvenile court. She was the first woman to hold such a position in the south and second in the nation, and has been re-elected seven times. She is nationally known as a speaker and a writer.

One of her outstanding accomplishments has been the establishment of a Counsel Guidance Clinic in connnection with the juvenile court at Memphis. The purpose of the clinic is preventive rather than corrective, the idea behind it being that many family problems, particularly those of juvenile behavior, can be settled before it is necessary to resort to the law.

Other featured speakers at Farm and Home Week will include United States Senator Allen J. Ellender, who is scheduled to appear Tuesday night, August 15, and F. L. Teuton, head of the information division of the bureau of chemical and industrial research of the United States department of agriculture, who is scheduled to appear Thursday night, August 17.

Registration for Farm and Home Week will be on Monday, August 14. Farm and Home Week visitors will be assigned rooms in the L. S. U. dormitories and will attend a three - day program of lectures, tours and demonstrations touching on almost every phase of farming and homemaking as well as a varied program of recreation, Extension Director Sanders said. All farm people are invited to attend.

Foster's Car Is Fatal To Snake

C. M. Foster of West Monroe, went fishing Saturday morning out in Ward 9. On the return trip, made over the cutoff road, he ran over a big coral snake, which was killed by the wheels of his car.

He states that he has seen many such snakes in Florida but never one so long as this one which was over two feet. While not so long for some varieties, that is long for a coral snake which never gets to any great length.

Mature Men, Women Make Happiest Marriages

IN A scientific study of marriage it has been found that middle-age marriages are happier than those contracted earlier in life. This indicates that intelligence goes farther than romance in making marriage a success.

This conclusion is amply borne out by the fact that it is a matter of common observation that, taking them by and large, widows and widowers make the best wives and husbands, and that second marriages rarely end in the divorce court. This is true even of divorced people, for those who could not get along with their first mates seem able to get along with almost any sort of mate when they marry again.

DOROTHY DIX

Of course, there is a glamour about young love that elderly affection never possesses. Twenty is the time for circling wings and star dust and the chanting of the angel choir that forty never sees or hears; but it is also the time of awakening from a dope dream, the time of mud-slinging and bitter vituperation, and if the old do not get the kick out of marriage that the young do, they also escape many of its bruises.

ELIMINATES RISKS

There are many reasons why late marriages should be, as a rule, happier than young ones. The first is, of course, that it eliminates many of the risks of marriage.

The boy and girl who get married take a double chance on their marriages being successes. They not only do not know what the children they are marrying are going to turn into when they are grown up, but they have not the faintest idea of what they are going to be themselves.

The mature man and woman do not thus leave their fate on the knees of the gods when they marry. Their tastes and habits are formed. Their characters settled. And when they choose their mates, they are almost sure to pick out someone who has the qualities they desire, instead of trusting to luck that their husbands and wives will somehow, someway, turn into what they want them to be.

Then, too, those who marry later in life are ready for marriage. They have had their playtime and they are fed up with running around trying to amuse themselves, and they are ready to settle down by their own firesides. They have had their fill of flirtations and light love. All they want is the enduring love of the one man or the one woman on whom they have set their hearts.

It is those who have married too young who regard marriage as a prison and long for freedom; who complain of domestic life being dull; who regard their children as brats and resent the time and labor they have to bestow upon them, and who wreck their homes by their philandering. They are still children and they still want to play about, andl in their games they only too often pull their houses down upon their heads.

YOUNG LACK DISCIPLINE

Mature people also bring the discipline of life to marriage, and that is something the youngsters lack. They have learned self-control. They have learned how to play fair, how to give and take. They have learned tact in handling situations, how to give the soft answer that turns away wrath, and how to put things in a way that will rob them of their unpleasantness.

We talk about the adaptability of youth. There is no such thing. All boys and girls are intolerant. Determined to have their own way. Nothing but time and experience teaches us to walk around a stone wall instead of trying to butt it down with our heads. When you see a middle-aged couple who are always quarreling, it is the hangover from their early marriage when each was trying to make the other over according to his or her heart's desire, and when every word was the fighting word.

Those who have married late in life live in peace and harmony because they have learned how to adjust themselves to new people and new situations, and they know that their happiness depends upon their sidestepping each other's little peculiarities and handling each other with finesse.

The mature man and woman do not expect the impossible. They don't expect marriage to be an earthly paradise or for husbands and wives to be angels. Hence they are satisfied with a home that they have to build up with their labor, but that is a shelter where they are warm and safe and snug, and with husbands and wives who have a thousand faults, but who give them love and companionship and loyalty and fidelity.

All of which boils down into saying that marriage is a game for adults. It is no sport for kiddies.

Austin then was at his best. He was tough, arrogant, sneering, just as Senator McNary would have wanted him to be had he possessed the seniority in 1931 necessary to compete with the Democrats who ruled the rost at that time.

Austin has become the big shot of the United Nations whether Malik stays or goes. Had his reply to the Soviet demand that Communist China be admitted to the security council been of the customary humble character, it would have been washed off as the usual Anglo-American soft soap type of Americanism.

As it was, Warren Austin spoke so frankly and straight forwardly that television listeners (who usually would have been listening to the ball game) applauded heartily at the close of his remarks.

Furthermore, those who were watching saw a grim, tense Austin, who faced the cameras with a set and determined expression. When the same cameras were switched to Malik they saw a visage that was bored, annoyed and unhappy.

A few days ago this column mentioned the fact that a lack of iron ore reserves was one of the most critical points in which the nation finds itself unprepared for war.

Serving to emphazise the extent to which steel mills are living on a hand-to-mouth basis in the matter of iron ore is news that large steel mills are now resorting to rail movement of ore from the Mesabi Range in Minnesota to the Youngstown-Pittsburgh area.

Fifty cars of ore a day are moving from the Oliver Mining Company, Duluth, in solid train lots, with the cars being rushed back to Duluth from Pittsburgh empty.

With steel mills consuming iron ore at the rate of 87,000,000 tons a year, Great Lakes vessels as of July 15 had moved only 28,250,000 tons so far this season, due to a late start on navigation and other factors.

Thus, the nation in peace time before June 25 was eating into its iron ore stockpiles at the steel mills to a dangerous extent. In the event of general hostilities, which might involve enemy air attacks on the Sault Ste. Marie canal, the United States would be in an extremely vulnerable position.

This column stated that the Soo canal carries more tonnage than the Suez canal. That was an understatement. It carries more tonnage than the Suez and the Panama canals combined. It ranks as one of the nation's most vital defense installations.

Legislative mills grind and grind whether they grind small or fine is not so easy to determine. In this congress 14,251 pieces of legislation have been introduced and 1,009 have become law. President has vetoed another 38.

Biggest legislators (according to number of bills introduced) are Sen. William Langer (Rep. N. B.), who has dropped 354 bills in the hopper, far above the average of 44 for senators; Edwin C. Johnson (Dem.-Colo.) 198; Claude Pepper (Dem.-Fla.) 181, Warren Magnuson (Dem.-Wash.) 134, and Hugh Butler (Rep.-Neb.) 100.

Local Young Man Held As Deserter

A Monroe young man was apprehended by Monroe police Friday afternoon after they had been notified by the navy department that he was wanted for desertion.

Fond Silton Musgrove, 21, 2024 Sixth street, stated his reason for leaving was that he didn't wish to go back overseas, since he had just returned to the states after being overseas for two years. He was not given a leave upon his return and decided that he would just take one, related Musgrove.

Musgrove had been in the navy for three years and was serving on the U. S. S. Begar docked in San Francisco.

Newmans To Fly To Central America

P. J. Newman, Sr. will leave on MoPac tonight for New Orleans and Monday will fly with his son, Capt. Paul J. Newman, Jr., to El Salvador, thence to Guatdmala and Mexico returning via the same route. This is the first time Mr. Newman has flown since his son became a captain on TACA Airlines about eight years ago. Mrs. Newman and Charles will vacation in Florida during his absence.

ing to sign Comedian Frank Fontaine to one of the most fabulous contracts in radio history. If the deal goes through, it will span a 25-year period, and the salary will be nothing short of astronomical. Network wants him as the replacement for Amos and Andy, who've served notice they're going to retire. . . . John Wayne, who developed a first-class case of ulcers when he first tried his hand at producing, a couple of years ago, is about to take on an even bigger load. He'll not only produce and star in his next Republic picture, "The Alamo," but, for the first time, will also serve as director.

PREVIEW NIGHTS: Pic of the week: Columbia's "711 Ocean Drive" (Edmond O'Brien - Joanne Dru). A lively melodrama about the racing wire services that's well worth tapping. . . . Good: Warner's "Pretty Baby" (Dennis Morgan-Betsy Drake-Zachary Scott-Edmund Gwenn). A prankish and somewhat spicy little comedy about a secretary and a baby food manufacturer, that could have been better and could have been worse. . . . So-So: Lippert Productions' "I Shot Billy the Kid" (Don "Red" Barry-Robert Lowery). The umpteenth chorus of the same song, but probably the best to date. . . . Universal-International's J. Arthur rank production "The Rocking Horse Winner" (Valerie Hobson-John Howard Davies.) A sombre little opus with just about as much giddyap - and - go as its namesake. . . . Columbia's "Convicted" (Glenn Ford - Broderick Crawford). Desperate doings and skulldruggery, plus a dash of heroism and romance in another mill-of-the-run prison yarn. . . . Best Performance: Edmond O'Brien in "711 Ocean Drive."

I suppose I wouldn't be Milton Berle if he weren't always bragging about something, but if he's smart he'll at least lay off the subject of how much money he makes. The other evening, for example, when called upon to emcee an impromptu floor show at a Hollywood nightclub, Berle not so coyly referred to himself as a $30,000-a-week performer. Now I'm sure we all agree with Milton and his mother that he's doing mighty well for himself, and none of us begrudge him that fact. But his timing, if not his humor, was pretty bad, in this instance. Considering the number of young Americans who're unnerved over the possibility of becoming $50 - a - month men for Uncle Sam, it's hardly the time for anyone to be bragging about his riches.

If I were a hard-working, would-be actor trying to get a break in Hollywood, I'd be more discouraged than ever, after reading an item which appeared the other day in a local trade paper column. It said: "Lawrence Tierney, who rates a break at this point, gets it in RKO's 'Best of the Badmen.' " As far as I'm concerned, if RKO wants to take another chance on Tierney, they're welcome. But I can't think of anyone who "rates a break" less than a guy who's consistently proven, via some 13 arrests for drunkenness and brawling in the last four years, that he's an incorrigible misbehaver. Such misplaced sympathy is enough to convince any young movie hopeful that a bottle in one hand and a batch of newspaper clippings in the other would be more apt to get him a "break" than any amount of sincerity or hard work.

State Police

Louisiana state police, Troop F, with headquarters in Monroe, made 35 arrests during the past week.

Two persons were arrested for negligent homicide and drunk driving, property damage, fleeing scene and no chauffeur licenses. They were: George Pugh, Jr., 17, Oak Grove, and Shirley Aldridge, 46, Delhi.

Drunk driving was the cause of arrest for 11 persons. Hilton C. Bough, 34, West Monroe; Harold W. Beach, 27, West Monroe; K. C. Blanson, Negro, 45, Wisner; Marse Barnett, 55, Clarks; Harland C. Stanley, 40, 618 Oak street, Monroe; Lee Murphy, 36, Monroe; Chester Tucker, Negro, 42, White, Ark.; Joseph Mitchell, Negro, 25, Liberty, Tex.; William E. Chitty, 34, 711 Standifer avenue, Monroe; John Smith, Negro, 36, Dubach; Cecil M. Davison, 41, Mobile, Ala.

Four persons were arrested for reckless driving causing accident, reckless driving, property damage, and reckless driving and no drivers license. They were: Lucille Johnston, 46, 1512 South Third St., Monroe; Sam McInnis, 27, Sterlington; Willard Sheon, 34, Huttig, Ark.; James A. Rankin, 24, Delhi.

Charges of reckless driving were placed against eight persons: Willie Brown, Negro, 41, Monroe; J. E. Brown, 36, Pineville; T. C. Baker, Negro, 18, Jones; Truman Averitt, 36, 813 Cypress street, West Monroe; Willie Williams, Jr., Negro, 36, Monroe; Lucylle G. Tiller, 43, Miami Beach, Fla.; Leonard R. Dukes, 25, McGee, Miss.; Lang Lipsey, 55, West Monroe.

Six persons were arrested for speeding, improper brakes, improper lights, and negligent operation of vehicle: Elijah Sheared, Negro, 23, Bastrop; Truman Averett, 36, West Monroe; George B. Harris, 48, Delhi; A. Z. Miller, Negro, 37, Lake Providence; Willie Abron, Negro, 28, Tallulah; Cyous E. Sewell, 36, Saraland, Ala.

Investigation of insanity, disturbing the peace, damage to public property, and investigation were the causes of six other arrests. Doris Sheppard, Negro, 42, Ruston; Louis G. Firth, 40, Rayville; Oscar Logan, 37, White, Ark.; John E. Ford, 38, Choudrant; William O. Webb, 54, Citronelle, Ala.

C. O. (BILL) WELCH

C. O. (Bill) Welch And Wm. Nolan To Hold Services Today

C. O. "Bill" Welch, Jr., recently licensed to preach through recommendation of his local church and confirmation of the Monroe district conference, will bring the message at the 11:00 o'clock hour Sunday, August 6th at Memorial Methodist Church, on the subject "Humility". He has completed three years or pre-med work at Northeast Junior College and Louisiana State University. This fall he will continue his studies at Centenary College in Shreveport, Louisiana in following his desire to become a medical missionary. Medicine and preaching often go along side by side in the mission fields.

William Earl Nolan, recently licensed to preach through the recommendation of the Oak Ridge Methodist Church and confirmation of the Monroe district conference, will deliver the sermon at the 8:00 p.m. service. He is a graduate of the Oak Ridge High School, lettering in both basketball and baseball, and will continue his schooling at Centenary College this fall. William Earl is assistant scoutmaster of the Boy Scout troop in Oak Ridge and attended the international jamboree at Valley Forge, Pa. in July.

All are invited to hear these two young men in both of these services Sunday.

JUDGE KELLY IS TO GIVE ADDRESS

Judge Camille Kelley of the juvenile court of Memphis, Tennessee, one of the nation's outstanding woman jurists, will be one of the speakers at Farm and Home Week on the Louisiana State University campus August 14-17, according to H. C. Sanders, director of the L. S. U. agricultural extension service. Between 2,500 and 3,000 farm men and women are expected to attend the annual event, Sanders said.

Judge Kelley is scheduled to speak at a general assembly in the L. S. U. Greek Theater at 8 p.m., Wednesday, August 16. She will discuss some of her observations and conclusions during her years as judge of the juvenile court. She was the first woman to hold such a position in the south and second in the nation, and has been re-elected seven times. She is nationally known as a speaker and a writer.

One of her outstanding accomplishments has been the establishment of a Counsel Guidance Clinic in connnection with the juvenile court at Memphis. The purpose of the clinic is preventive rather than corrective, the idea behind it being that many family problems, particularly those of juvenile behavior, can be settled before it is necessary to resort to the law.

Other featured speakers at Farm and Home Week will include United States Senator Allen J. Ellender, who is scheduled to appear Tuesday night, August 15, and F. L. Teuton, head of the information division of the bureau of chemical and industrial research of the United States department of agriculture, who is scheduled to appear Thursday night, August 17.

Registration for Farm and Home Week will be on Monday, August 14. Farm and Home Week visitors will be assigned rooms in the L. S. U. dormitories and will attend a three-day program of lectures, tours and demonstrations touching on almost every phase of farming and homemaking as well as a varied program of recreation, Extension Director Sanders said. All farm people are invited to attend.

Foster's Car Is Fatal To Snake

C. M. Foster of West Monroe, went fishing Saturday morning out in Ward 9. On the return trip, made over the cutoff road, he ran over a big coral snake, which was killed by the wheels of his car.

He states that he has seen many such snakes in Florida but never one so long as this one which was over two feet. While not so long for some varieties, that is long for a coral snake which never gets to any great length.

Mature Men, Women Make Happiest Marriages

IN A scientific study of marriage it has been found that middle-age marriages are happier than those contracted earlier in life. This indicates that intelligence goes farther than romance in making marriage a success.

This conclusion is amply borne out by the fact that it is a matter of common observation that, taking them by and large, widows and widowers make the best wives and husbands, and that second marriages rarely end in the divorce court. This is true even of divorced people, for those who could not get along with their first mates seem able to get along with almost any sort of mate when they marry again.

DOROTHY DIX

Of course, there is a glamour about young love that elderly affection never possesses. Twenty is the time for circling wings and star dust and the chanting of the angel choir that forty never sees or hears; but it is also the time of awakening from a dope dream, the time of mud-slinging and bitter vituperation, and if the old do not get the kick out of marriage that the young do, they also escape many of its bruises.

ELIMINATES RISKS

There are many reasons why late marriages should be, as a rule, happier than young ones. The first is, of course, that it eliminates many of the risks of marriage.

The boy and girl who get married take a double chance on their marriages being successes. They not only do not know what the children they are marrying are going to turn into when they are grown up, but they have not the faintest idea of what they are going to be themselves.

The mature man and woman do not thus leave their fate on the knees of the gods when they marry. Their tastes and habits are formed. Their characters settled. And when they choose their mates, they are almost sure to pick out someone who has the qualities they desire, instead of trusting to luck that their husbands and wives will somehow, someway, turn into what they want them to be.

Then, too, those who marry later in life are ready for marriage. They have had their playtime and they are fed up with running around trying to amuse themselves, and they are ready to settle down by their own firesides. They have had their fill of flirtations and light love. All they want is the enduring love of the one man or the one woman on whom they have set their hearts.

It is those who have married too young who regard marriage as a prison and long for freedom; who complain of domestic life being dull; who regard their children as brats and resent the time and labor they have to bestow upon them, and who wreck their homes by their philandering. They are still children and they still want to play about, andl in their games they only too often pull their houses down upon their heads.

YOUNG LACK DISCIPLINE

Mature people also bring the discipline of life to marriage, and that is something the youngsters lack. They have learned self-control. They have learned how to play fair, how to give and take. They have learned tact in handling situations, how to give the soft answer that turns away wrath, and how to put things in a way that will rob them of their unpleasantness.

We talk about the adaptability of youth. There is no such thing. All boys and girls are intolerant. Determined to have their own way. Nothing but time and experience teaches us to walk around a stone wall instead of trying to butt it down with our heads. When you see a middle-aged couple who are always quarreling, it is the hangover from their early marriage when each was trying to make the other over according to his or her heart's desire, and when every word was the fighting word.

Those who have married late in life live in peace and harmony because they have learned how to adjust themselves to new people and new situations, and they know that their happiness depends upon their sidestepping each other's little peculiarities and handling each other with finesse.

The mature man and woman do not expect the impossible. They don't expect marriage to be an earthly paradise or for husbands and wives to be angels. Hence they are satisfied with a home that they have to build up with their labor, but that is a shelter where they are warm and safe and snug, and with husbands and wives who have a thousand faults, but who give them love and companionship and loyalty and fidelity.

All of which boils down into saying that marriage is a game for adults. It is no sport for kiddies.

Austin then was at his best. He was tough, arrogant, sneering, just as Senator McNary would have wanted him to be had he possessed the seniority in 1931 necessary to compete with the Democrats who ruled the rost at that time.

Austin has become the big shot of the United Nations whether Malik stays or goes. Had his reply to the Soviet demand that Communist China be admitted to the security council been of the customary humble character, it would have been washed off as the usual Anglo-American soft soap type of Americanism.

As it was, Warren Austin spoke so frankly and straight forwardly that television listeners (who usually would have been listening to the ball game) applauded heartily at the close of his remarks.

Furthermore, those who were watching saw a grim, tense Austin, who faced the cameras with a set and determined expression. When the same cameras were switched to Malik they saw a visage that was bored, annoyed and unhappy.

A few days ago this column mentioned the fact that a lack of iron ore reserves was one of the most critical points in which the nation finds itself unprepared for war.

Serving to emphazise the extent to which steel mills are living on a hand-to-mouth basis in the matter of iron ore is news that large steel mills are now resorting to rail movement of ore from the Mesabi Range in Minnesota to the Youngstown-Pittsburgh area.

Fifty cars of ore a day are moving from the Oliver Mining Company, Duluth, in solid train lots, with the cars being rushed back to Duluth from Pittsburgh empty.

With steel mills consuming iron ore at the rate of 87,000,000 tons a year, Great Lakes vessels as of July 15 had moved only 28,250,000 tons so far this season, due to a late start on navigation and other factors.

Thus, the nation in peace time before June 25 was eating into its iron ore stockpiles at the steel mills to a dangerous extent. In the event of general hostilities, which might involve enemy air attacks on the Sault Ste. Marie canal, the United States would be in an extremely vulnerable position.

This column stated that the Soo canal carries more tonnage than the Suez canal. That was an understatement. It carries more tonnage than the Suez and the Panama canals combined. It ranks as one of the nation's most vital defense installations.

Legislative mills grind and grind whether they grind small or fine is not so easy to determine. In this congress 14,251 pieces of legislation have been introduced and 1,009 have become law. President has vetoed another 38.

Biggest legislators (according to number of bills introduced) are Sen. William Langer (Rep. N. B.), who has dropped 354 bills in the hopper, far above the average of 44 for senators; Edwin C. Johnson (Dem.-Colo.) 198; Claude Pepper (Dem.-Fla.) 181, Warren Magnuson (Dem.-Wash.) 134, and Hugh Butler (Rep.-Neb.) 100.

Local Young Man Held As Deserter

A Monroe young man was apprehended by Monroe police Friday afternoon after they had been notified by the navy department that he was wanted for desertion.

Fond Silton Musgrove, 21, 2024 Sixth street, stated his reason for leaving was that he didn't wish to go back overseas, since he had just returned to the states after being overseas for two years. He was not given a leave upon his return and decided that he would just take one, related Musgrove.

Musgrove had been in the navy for three years and was serving on the U. S. S. Begar docked in San Francisco.

Newmans To Fly To Central America

P. J. Newman, Sr. will leave on MoPac tonight for New Orleans and Monday will fly with his son, Capt. Paul J. Newman, Jr., to El Salvador, thence to Guatdmala and Mexico returning via the same route. This is the first time Mr. Newman has flown since his son became a captain on TACA Airlines about eight years ago. Mrs. Newman and Charles will vacation in Florida during his absence.

Labor unions are bargaining with more emphasis on wage hikes in contracts since the start of the Korean fighting, rather than pensions. Many leaders feel they ought to put their members in a good position in case of a wage freeze.

HORSES HERE TO GO TO CROSSETT

Plans Are Made For Transporting Animals To Rodeo There

The Northeast Louisiana Rodeo Association yesterday announced plans to transport horses from the Twin Cities and Ouachita parish to the second annual rodeo in Crossett, Ark., Thursday.

Crossett Riding Club has extended a special invitation to riders of Monroe and West Monroe to participate in their rodeo parade at 4 p.m. Thursday and the opening grand entrance parade that night.

Anyone who would like to ride in the parade and does not have transportation for his horse can obtain it by contacting either Haze Gentry or Pete Barrett of the local rodeo association.

Gentry said trucks have been obtained for transporting the horses and urged all local horsemen to join in the Crossett parade.

He pointed out that several rodeo enthusiasts from this area rode in the Crossett parade last year and a larger number is expected to represent the Twin Cities this year.

The Crossett Riding Club since its organization has been well represented in the Twin City rodeo parades each year.

Morris Kimball of Paris, Tex., is furnishing his K-Bar ranch stock for the Crossett Rodeo.

Riders who anticipate the trip and want transportation for their horse or horses can obtain the same by contacting the local rodeo association.

Railroad To Use Flashing Signals

R. B. Richardson, director of the state department of highways, announced yesterday that the A. and L. M. Railway Co. in Monroe has been authorized to install flashing light signals on the Sterlington road crossing north of Monroe.

Three Negroes were killed at the crossing several months ago when an A. and L. M. diesel engine and an automobile collided.

Richardson said the installation of flashing light signals will be at the grade crossing of the A. and L. M. Railway and State Route 200, approximately .7 mile north of Monroe.

Ellis Ross of Monroe has been assigned as project engineer, according to Richardson.

Claiborne Holds Church Social

The W. S. C. S. of the Claiborne Methodist Church was delightfully entertained with a fifth Monday social, at the parsonage, by Mrs. F. L. Hearne.

Mrs. L. R. White, president, outlined the year's work and asked the cooperation of the women of the church in completing the projects.

Mrs. Hearne then conducted games and quizzes and Mrs. I. D. Wallace, Jr. was the successful contestant.

Refreshments were served from a lace covered table and the following women were present to enjoy this festive occasion:

Mrs. L. R. White, Mrs. E. C. Gaskin, Mrs. J. D. Cannon, Mrs. M. L. DeFreese, Mrs. Majorie Crawford, Mrs. J. R. Frantom, Mrs. J. O. Fleming, Mrs. J. L. Hattaway, Mrs. E. C. Vanderwerker, Mrs. I. L. Brooks, Mrs. W. H. Fleming, Mrs. G. R. Bell, Mrs. W. R. Williams, Mrs. Zelma Ballard, Mrs. Maude Nelson, Mrs. R. L. Butler, Mrs. W. R. May, Mrs. Ella Smith, Mrs. E. N. Halstead, and the hostess, Mrs. F. L. Hearne.

Antone Kovac Dies Of Natural Causes

Antone Kovac, 75, who died Thursday at a local boarding house, died of natural causes according to Dr. J. T. French, Ouachita parish coroner, who conducted an inquest.

The owner of the boarding house, Sam Messina, reported to police that he had found Kovac dead in his room about 11:25 a. m. Thursday.

Funeral services were held in the chapel of the Hall Funeral Home Friday with Rev. Simon Biatel of the St. Matthew's Catholic Church officiating.

P.-T. A. WORKSHOP BEING ARRANGED

Will Be Held In Blue Ridge; Mrs. Vincent Named As Local Representative

The president of the Louisiana Parent-Teacher Association, Mrs. J. H. Stringer, Baton Rouge, in keeping stride with the advancement of Parent-Teacher leadership has named three outstanding workers from the roster of the state board of managers to attend the regional workshop to be held at Blue Ridge, N. C. August 7 to 12, who are, Mrs. W. S. Vincent, Monroe, past president; Mrs. J. S. Goff, Shreveport, vice-president; and Mrs. V. A. Tanguis, Kinder, chairman Parent Education. Four of these regional workshops are being held during the summer.

The purpose of these workshops is to give each state the opportunity to take part in the plan set up by the National Congress of Parents and Teachers to promote good lay leadership training in parent education over the entire country.

The workshop to be held at Blue Ridge, will serve state parent teacher leaders from Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, Tennessee, North and South Carolina, and Virginia.

Dr. Mildred I. Morgan of Tallahassee, professor of home and family life, Florida State University, will be consultant, with Mrs. Walter H. Beckham of Miami, Florida, regional vice-president and Mrs. Edgar F. Dixon of Little Rock, Arkansas, secretary of the N. C.-P. T. as advisers. Mrs. John E. Hayes, president National Congress of Parents and Teachers, joined the state president, Mrs. J. H. Stringer in urging full attendance at this workshop. Mrs. Hayes spent the month of July in Japan working with the many parent-teacher leaders there.

HORSES HERE TO GO TO CROSSETT

Plans Are Made For Transporting Animals To Rodeo There

The Northeast Louisiana Rodeo Association yesterday announced plans to transport horses from the Twin Cities and Ouachita parish to the second annual rodeo in Crossett, Ark., Thursday.

Crossett Riding Club has extended a special invitation to riders of Monroe and West Monroe to participate in their rodeo parade at 4 p.m. Thursday and the opening grand entrance parade that night.

Anyone who would like to ride in the parade and does not have transportation for his horse can obtain it by contacting either Haze Gentry or Pete Barrett of the local rodeo association.

Gentry said trucks have been obtained for transporting the horses and urged all local horsemen to join in the Crossett parade.

He pointed out that several rodeo enthusiasts from this area rode in the Crossett parade last year and a larger number is expected to represent the Twin Cities this year.

The Crossett Riding Club since its organization has been well represented in the Twin City rodeo parades each year.

Morris Kimball of Paris, Tex., is furnishing his K-Bar ranch stock for the Crossett Rodeo.

Riders who anticipate the trip and want transportation for their horse or horses can obtain the same by contacting the local rodeo association.

Railroad To Use Flashing Signals

R. B. Richardson, director of the state department of highways, announced yesterday that the A. and L. M. Railway Co. in Monroe has been authorized to install flashing light signals on the Sterlington road crossing north of Monroe.

Three Negroes were killed at the crossing several months ago when an A. and L. M. diesel engine and an automobile collided.

Richardson said the installation of flashing light signals will be at the grade crossing of the A. and L. M. Railway and State Route 200, approximately .7 mile north of Monroe.

Ellis Ross of Monroe has been assigned as project engineer, according to Richardson.

Claiborne Holds Church Social

The W. S. C. S. of the Claiborne Methodist Church was delightfully entertained with a fifth Monday social, at the parsonage, by Mrs. F. L. Hearne.

Mrs. L. R. White, president, outlined the year's work and asked the cooperation of the women of the church in completing the projects.

Mrs. Hearne then conducted games and quizzes and Mrs. I. D. Wallace, Jr. was the successful contestant.

Refreshments were served from a lace covered table and the following women were present to enjoy this festive occasion:

Mrs. L. R. White, Mrs. E. C. Gaskin, Mrs. J. D. Cannon, Mrs. M. L. DeFreese, Mrs. Majorie Crawford, Mrs. J. R. Frantom, Mrs. J. O. Fleming, Mrs. J. L. Hattaway, Mrs. E. C. Vanderwerker, Mrs. I. L. Brooks, Mrs. W. H. Fleming, Mrs. G. R. Bell, Mrs. W. R. Williams, Mrs. Zelma Ballard, Mrs. Maude Nelson, Mrs. R. L. Butler, Mrs. W. R. May, Mrs. Ella Smith, Mrs. E. N. Halstead, and the hostess, Mrs. F. L. Hearne.

Antone Kovac Dies Of Natural Causes

Antone Kovac, 75, who died Thursday at a local boarding house, died of natural causes according to Dr. J. T. French, Ouachita parish coroner, who conducted an inquest.

The owner of the boarding house, Sam Messina, reported to police that he had found Kovac dead in his room about 11:25 a. m. Thursday.

Funeral services were held in the chapel of the Hall Funeral Home Friday with Rev. Simon Biatel of the St. Matthew's Catholic Church officiating.

P.-T. A. WORKSHOP BEING ARRANGED

Will Be Held In Blue Ridge; Mrs. Vincent Named As Local Representative

The president of the Louisiana Parent-Teacher Association, Mrs. J. H. Stringer, Baton Rouge, in keeping stride with the advancement of Parent-Teacher leadership has named three outstanding workers from the roster of the state board of managers to attend the regional workshop to be held at Blue Ridge, N. C. August 7 to 12, who are, Mrs. W. S. Vincent, Monroe, past president; Mrs. J. S. Goff, Shreveport, vice-president; and Mrs. V. A. Tanguis, Kinder, chairman Parent Education. Four of these regional workshops are being held during the summer.

The purpose of these workshops is to give each state the opportunity to take part in the plan set up by the National Congress of Parents and Teachers to promote good lay leadership training in parent education over the entire country.

The workshop to be held at Blue Ridge, will serve state parent teacher leaders from Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, Tennessee, North and South Carolina, and Virginia.

Dr. Mildred I. Morgan of Tallahassee, professor of home and family life, Florida State University, will be consultant, with Mrs. Walter H. Beckham of Miami, Florida, regional vice-president and Mrs. Edgar F. Dixon of Little Rock, Arkansas, secretary of the N. C.-P. T. as advisers. Mrs. John E. Hayes, president National Congress of Parents and Teachers, joined the state president, Mrs. J. H. Stringer in urging full attendance at this workshop. Mrs. Hayes spent the month of July in Japan working with the many parent-teacher leaders there.

LONG REVEALS

governor to file with the office of the secretary of state a financial statement .t the beginning and end of his term.

'I promise to file a return just after Nov. 7 and upon leaving the governor's office," he said. "If I file it now, I am afraid it will be so small that some of my critics would accuse me of having very little ambition and not taking advantage of my opportunities which I do not wish to do. Believe me when I tell you that money is not my God."

The governor criticized officials of the Louisiana law institute and the press for their attitude on the constitutional convention which he proposes, subject to popular vote Nov. 7.

He said the extra session of the legislature this spring at which the law institute's revision of the Louisiana general statutes was enacted "was called at the request of Mr. John Tucker (president of the Louisiana law institute), Dr. (Paul M.) Hebert, (dean of the University at Louisiana State University and secretary of the law institute), Mr. Monte Lemann (member of the council of the law institute), Mr. Dale Bennett (director of the institute's revision project), Mr. J. Denson Smith (institute director) and others.

"With the exception of Mr Lemann," the governor continued, "all of these gentlemen told me that this legislation was almost flawless. We accepted it on faith. It has already been amended about 200 times and probably will be amended 500 more before it is over. I hope that Mr. Tucker's sudden change regarding the constitutional convention won't prove to be as incorrect as was his prediction on the revised statutes.

"I also want to say that all of these gentlemen, with the exception of Mr. Lemann, told me in the presence of witnesses that they were against submitting the constitution to the people. . . . I know that the only time they would be perfectly well satisfied would be with a special interest representative, a man who would like to put a 6 percent sales tax on the people and take the tax off of everything else, in the governor's office, which they do not have in me."

Speaking of Tucker, he added, "I am sorry to say this, because he is a good man, but he has a boss and his boss has had him to reverse himself on his stand of submission to the people. The fact is, he has two bosses — Donny Boy Ewing (Don Ewing, associate editor of the Shreveport Times) and Capt. John D. Ewing (editor and publisher of the Times).

The governor also criticized the New Orleans Item editorial published during the regular session and terming some legislators "trained seals."

He said the episode which led to it had never been fully disclosed, that Sen. Brooks Oliver of Bastrop had asked him to write a leter to the senator asking him to withdraw a bill "to let the public know that he wasn't showing his tail feathers when he withdrew it."

The Item criticized Sen. Oliver and others for carrying out the governor's instructions on a legislative matter.

"Had this been made known," Gov. Long continued, "I don't think the trained seal editorial would have been written. . . . However, I also know that as long as we have freedom of the press, we must put up with such editorials because they have a perfect right to say editorially anything they wish to say, if they stay within the bounds of reason—which they barely did on this occasion."

The governor issued a call listing 26 objects for the special session, headed by changes in the proposed constitutional convention call.

The present setup of the convention, enacted by the regular session that ended July 6, has faced mounting opposition because of the number of delegates appointed by the governor or serving ex-officio and because of the possibility the delegates could extend present terms of office without submitting the change to the people.

Another change proposed at the special session would be provision for naming an alternate for each delegate.

The last five proposals announced late this afternoon were:

Legislation to place the house of detention in the parish jail in charge of the Orleans parish criminal sheriff, and to increase the amount allowed the criminal sheriff for the feeding of prisoners and inmates of the house of detention.

Amend present laws levying a license tax on the pursuit of cotton factor and commission business, on the cotton futures brokerage business, and on the stock or bond brokerage business.

Here are the other proposals:

Change penalties for highway speeding.

Create commission to study establishment of industrial school for girls.

Change salaries of board of highways members.

Define rights of third persons in cases of oil, gas and mineral leases.

Ban horses, mules or donkeys from running loose on highways.

Create Louisiana youth commission.

Allocate funds for work with crippled children and to pay expenses of legislature and amounts needed for increased salaries of state officials.

Amend laws allowing municipalities to levy sales taxes and safeguard special laws on taxes for particular municipalities.

Provide penalties for possession, use or dispensing of benzedrine in state prison.

Change requirements for licensing certain assistant pharmacists.

Provide military leave for teachers.

There were six proposals on local matters:

Enlarge boundaries of city of Lafayette.

Authorize agreements between city of New Orleans and state collector of revenue for him to collect certain city taxes that parallel state levies.

Provide for an additional deputy registrar of voters in St. Mary parish.

Transfer certain property to town of Arcadia.

Authorize consolidation of drainage districts in Tangipahoa parish.

Carry into effect regular session proposals concerning court officials of two new judicial districts that will be established, if a constitutional amendment carries—one to consist of St. Charles and St. John parishes, one of Jefferson.

BATON ROUGE, La., Aug. 5.—(AP)—"I'm not mad at anybody," Gov. Earl Long cheerfully declared tonight.

He returned to the House microphone for a few minutes to make his remark, after delivering his formal address to a joint meeting of the special session of the legisture.

"The newspapers have given me more hell since I had a heart attack than in all the times before," he said, "especially the one up in Shreveport."

"I'm not mad at anybody," he said. "But once in a while when you're sick and lying around and have the time to think, you realize it takes a strong back to carry on."

The governor then told the lawmakers to "get down to work, and I don't want a man in this legislature to do anything that your conscience doesn't tell you is right.

"Without you," he added, "I don't amount to anything."

birthday or fails to do satisfactory work. If the draft board thinks he is trying to flunk so he can stay in school longer, it can draft him.

A lad who gets a draft call while in college can finish out the academic year.

Or if he is taking senior R. O. T. C. — reserve officers training—in his last two years, he can stay in school if he agrees to take a commission when he is through and remain on active duty at least two years.

Or the draft board can defer him if it decides it would serve the national health, safety or interest for him to complete his course. Medical or scientific students, for instance, might get deferments.

What if the army gets the boy before he is through college? is the government going to finance his schooling after he gets out of service?

It did for World War II veterans. And bills are pending in congress to extend educational and other benefits of the G. I. bill of rights to persons called into service because of the Korean war and troubled world conditions. So far the bills haven't gone far.

Perhaps the boy is a member of the reserves or National Guard and is not taking G. I. training as a result of service in the last war. If he is called into service again, or if he volunteers, he can come back and resume his schooling at any time before July 25, 1956.

Cobb's letter said, "the proposed convention is set up for control at the top, could do anything it wanted to do, and the charter it framed would become law without approval of the people. This is government neither of, by nor for the people."

The letter said it was well known that the convention could abolish the 1952 elections and extend the terms of public officials.

(George Wallace, the governor's executive counsel, said today that Governor Long would ask the legislature to provide for a popular vote on any extension of officials' terms.)

Cobb's letter also said:

'This committee holds that it is not Democratic, not business-like, not sensible, and not safe to grant to the convention power to draft a new constitution which will change the basic laws of our state, without submission of the constitution to the people, from whom all government, or of right, originates and is founded on their will alone."

Lt. Gen. Walton Walker, 8th army commander, that the line then (some miles farther out than today) was where the stand would be made, that not another inch of ground would be given.

Estimates of the time it will take to get the four national guard divisions filled out to full manpower strength and ready for duty in the Far East range up to several months. But in the meantime, the requirements for defense of the Korean beachhead are mounting.

Killed and wounded must be replaced. The numbers of American troops missing in action (which means they have been cut off and captured) has been increasing.

The need now is for more new units of ground forces, for individual replacements and for more men in the general program for expansion of the army.

The government started out by "inviting" Reservists to enter active duty. Yesterday it moved definitely beyond this by announcing a call-up of 62,000 enlisted reservists "with or without their consent."

Construction of these two projects is expected to get underway by January 1, according to Guerriero.

Naktong in the mountainous north. South Koreans had made a planned withdrawal to ridges there, and the enemy crossings east and southeast of Sangju were not regarded as an immediate threat.

This was near the hinge of the defense lines, where American and South Korean forces join.

Most immediate danger points were in the south and center.

The Reds had three divisions in the central sector and four of their finest in the south.

These could develop simultaneous strikes at Taegu in the center and towards the vital port of Pusan in the south.

Twin assaults were expected at any moment. Except for the vicious give and take of limited raids, mainly in the south and involving the U. S. 27th and 35th infantry regiments, the front had been relatively quiet for three days. A. P. Correspondent Leif Erickson noted from eighth U. S. army field headquarters that this was one of the longest lulls since the Red invasion began June 25.

A Tokyo headquarters release said, however, the enemy had suffered heavy losses in the southern fighting a score of miles east of Chinju. Ignoring the casualties, the Reds pressed their buildup there, at points within 35 air miles of Pusan, the U. S. supply port that is the key to what is left of United Nations - defended South Korea.

The North Korean 15th division was reported moving up on that front to join the first, fourth and sixth divisions, already in position.

In the center, the Reds were concentrating along the west banks of the Naktong near Waegwan, 15 miles from Taegu.

Despite the rain, U. S. tactical planes and artillery knocked out five Red tanks sighted in that sector, while artillery pounded across the river at Red troops.

The North Koreans strove to repair a blasted bridge across the Naktong at Hyopchon, 14 miles southeast of Taegu, but an air strike disrupted their efforts.

of this committee and the majority of the people of the state of Louisiana," he declared. Talbot supported the presidential States Rights Democratic ticket of Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina and Gov. Fielding Wright of Mississippi in 1948.

"I went to Washington and suffered humiliation that the Kremlin would not visit on a member of its body," he said, "when I was refused a seat at the national Democratic committee meeting."

He added:

"What happens to me in politics amounts to nothing, but what happens to the people of Louisiana is important and their right to govern themselves is a principle I intend to fight for.

"What we fought for was:

"1. Constitutional government.

"2. Opposition to the tidelands oil grab.

"3. Opposition to the civil rights program.

"4. Opposition to F. E. P. C.

"5. The right to have segregation.

"6. The right to run our own state and our own elections as we have done since the adoption of the United States constitution."

"If our governor," Talbot continued, "and our elected officials, of which you are one, being a committee member, appease for appeasement alone, then you can expect governmental police to be directing your traffic, to be governing your home life, your method of running your business, telling you when and where you can work, what you can and can't buy, who your children will go to school with. . .and perhaps your state government will be run from Harlem by a delegated official who has never been in Louisiana; and I charge now that the movement of the 12 colored applicants to enroll in Louisiana State University is only a starter, and that it was negotiated and planned by a party or parties residing outside of the state of Louisiana for no other purpose than to humiliate our people.

"We have two first class colored schools in this state," Talbot said, "better than most of those in the south. Nevertheless, this move is made by those who want to break down our way of life, and my removal is an appeasement of this kind of Truman dictatorship."

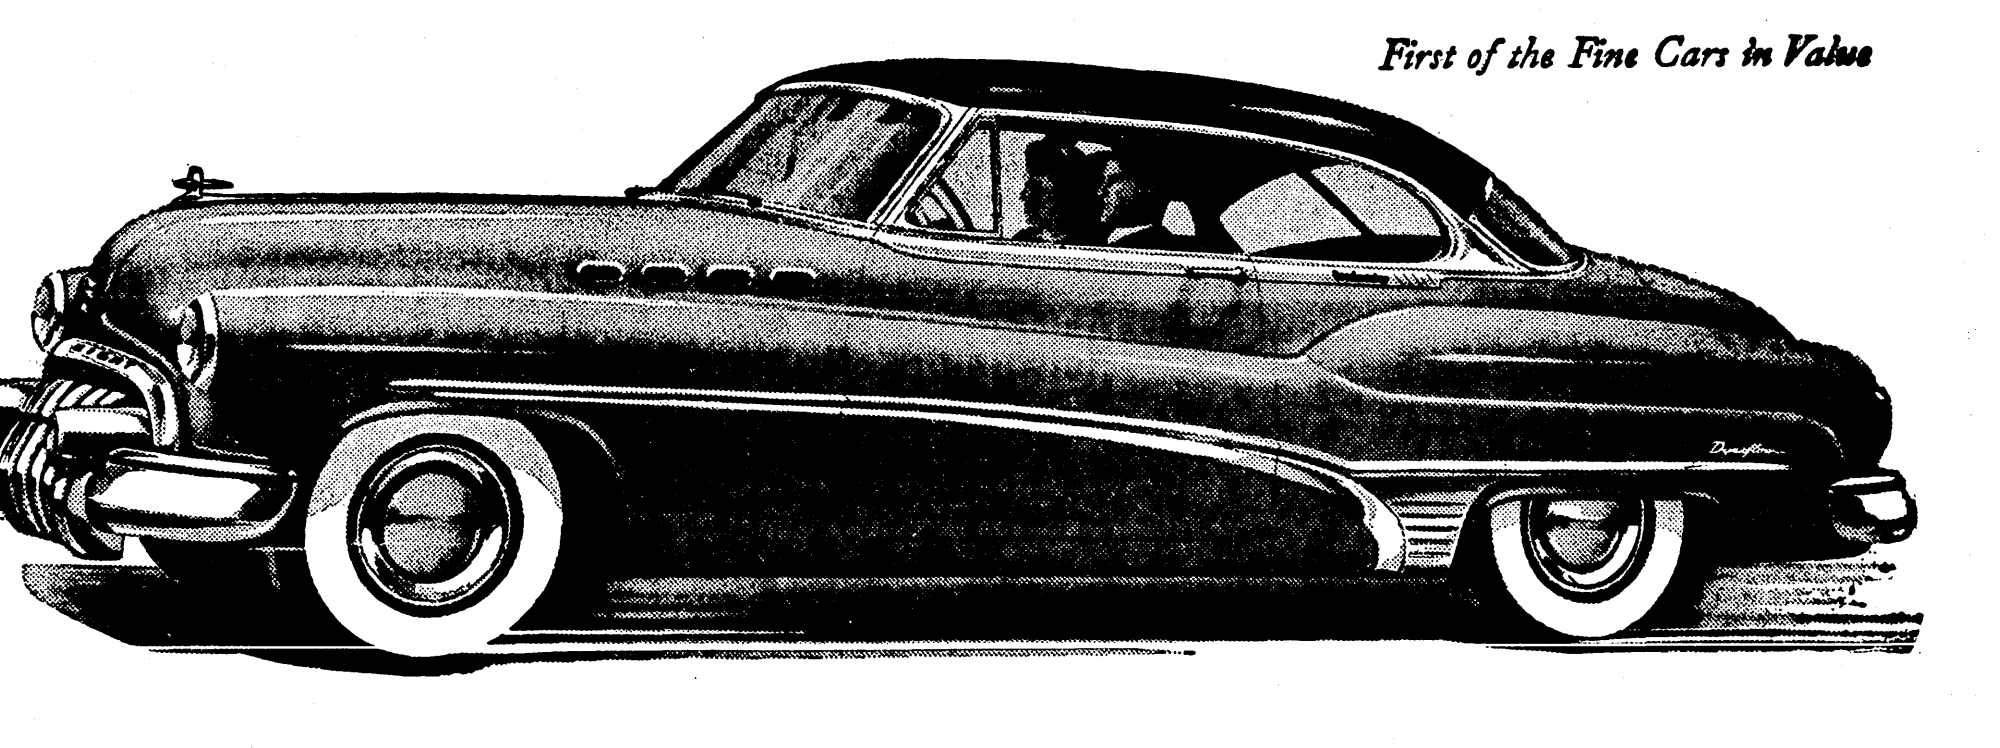
First of the Fine Cars in Value



YOU can see this man has made his mark in life, and while his heart's still young.

You can tell he likes action for his money – that he knows a fine car needn't be the most expensive to give the greatest value.

Yes, such are the things you know of any man, when you note that his car is a ROADMASTER.

Follow him on his spirited way as he pilots this lively motorcar through traffic. Even the lightweights are no match for this road-steady husky – not with the 152-horsepower straight-eight Fireball engine that purrs beneath its bonnet.

Maneuver beside him at the next stop light. Then just try to get away as smoothly, swiftly and silently as Dynaflow Drive gets his ROADMASTER going – and keeps it rolling without shifting, even automatically.

But don't waste time merely envying the man in this great car! Why not emulate him?

With all its outsize room, interior luxury and exterior grace – with all its front-rank prestige, rare performance and matchless ride – a ROADMASTER can be yours for less than some smaller cars cost.

In fact, even if you had a fortune to spend, you couldn't make a more fortunate buy in the fine-car field.

So we suggest you try a few minutes behind the wheel. We're confident they will convince you that ROADMASTER has everything you could ever ask for in any motorcar – although your Buick dealer asks a good bit less for ROADMASTER than you might pay for other top-line cars.

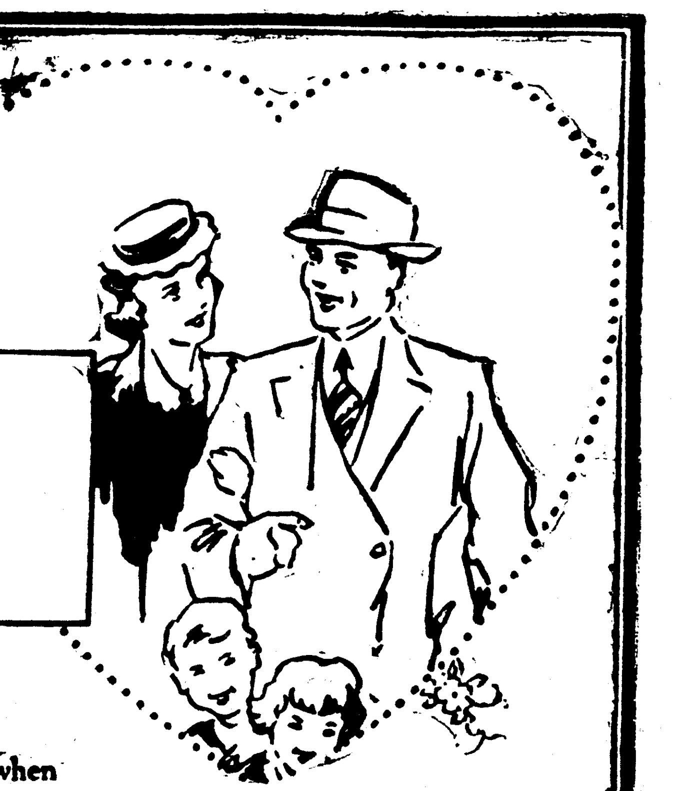
AND NEVER A FUSS OVER BILLS



Jack isn't scared to death when Mary goes shopping. And he is never shocked when the monthly bills come in.

Long ago Mary and Jack learned how to use their credit wisely. They discovered that the merchant, the physician, the dentist, the fuel dealer and other credit granters gladly extend the privilege of a charge account to sincere, responsible people. And all that Mary and Jack had to do to merit this trust was to pay their bills as promised—on the date they fell due.

Like millions of other people, Mary and Jack have used their credit to buy a lot of nice things for their home and for themselves—a car, a piano, refrigerator, furniture, rugs, clothing and many other things. But they always regulated their purchases carefully so they never bought more than they could pay for—when it was due.

It isn't the size of your income, but the way you pay your bills that makes or mars your credit record. Therefore, when you buy on credit buy only what you know you can pay for. And when the time comes to pay—pay promptly on the date payment is due.

He returned to the House microphone for a few minutes to make his remark, after delivering his formal address to a joint meeting of the special session of the legislature.

"The newspapers have given me more hell since I had a heart attack than in all the times before," he said, "especially the one up in Shreveport."

"I'm not mad at anybody," he said. "But once in a while when you're sick and lying around and have the time to think, you realize it takes a strong back to carry on."

The governor then told the lawmakers to "get down to work, and I don't want a man in this legislature to do anything that your conscience doesn't tell you is right.

"Without you," he added, "I don't amount to anything."

birthday or fails to do satisfactory work. If the draft board thinks he is trying to flunk so he can stay in school longer, it can draft him.

A lad who gets a draft call while in college can finish out the academic year.

Or if he is taking senior R. O. T. C. — reserve officers training— in his last two years, he can stay in school if he agrees to take a commission when he is through and remain on active duty at least two years.

Or the draft board can defer him if it decides it would serve the national health, safety or interest for him to complete his course. Medical or scientific students, for instance, might get deferments.

What if the army gets the boy before he is through college? is the government going to finance his schooling after he gets out of service?

It did for World War II veterans. And bills are pending in congress to extend educational and other benefits of the G. I. bill of rights to persons called into service because of the Korean war and troubled world conditions. So far the bills haven't gone far.

Perhaps the boy is a member of the reserves or National Guard and is not taking G. I. training as a result of service in the last war. If he is called into service again, or if he volunteers, he can come back and resume his schooling at any time before July 25, 1956.

Cobb's letter said, "the proposed convention is set up for control at the top, could do anything it wanted to do, and the charter it framed would become law without approval of the people. This is government neither of, by nor for the people."

The letter said it was well known that the convention could abolish the 1952 elections and extend the terms of public officials. (George Wallace, the governor's executive counsel, said today that Governor Long would ask the legislature to provide for a popular vote on any extension of officials' terms.)

Cobb's letter also said:

'This committee holds that it is not Democratic, not business-like, not sensible, and not safe to grant to the convention power to draft a new constitution which will change the basic laws of our state, without submission of the constitution to the people, from whom all government, or of right, originates and is founded on their will alone."

Estimates of the time it will take to get the four national guard divisions filled out to full manpower strength and ready for duty in the Far East range up to several months. But in the meantime, the requirements for defense of the Korean beachhead are mounting.

Killed and wounded must be replaced. The numbers of American troops missing in action (which means they have been cut off and captured) has been increasing.

The need now is for more new units of ground forces, for individual replacements and for more men in the general program for expansion of the army.

The government started out by "inviting" Reservists to enter active duty. Yesterday it moved definitely beyond this by announcing a call-up of 62,000 enlisted reservists "with or without their consent."

Construction of these two projects is expected to get underway by January 1, according to Guerriero.

Naktong in the mountainous north. South Koreans had made a planned withdrawal to ridges there, and the enemy crossings east and southeast of Sangju were not regarded as an immediate threat.

This was near the hinge of the defense lines, where American and South Korean forces join.

Most immediate danger points were in the south and center.

The Reds had three divisions in the central sector and four of their finest in the south.

These could develop simultaneous strikes at Taegu in the center and towards the vital port of Pusan in the south.

Twin assaults were expected at any moment. Except for the vicious give and take of limited raids, mainly in the south and involving the U. S. 27th and 35th infantry regiments, the front had been relatively quiet for three days. A. P. Correspondent Leif Erickson noted from eighth U. S. army field headquarters that this was one of the longest lulls since the Red invasion began June 25.

A Tokyo headquarters release said, however, the enemy had suffered heavy losses in the southern fighting a score of miles east of Chinju. Ignoring the casualties, the Reds pressed their buildup there, at points within 35 air miles of Pusan, the U. S. supply port that is the key to what is left of United Nations - defended South Korea.

The North Korean 15th division was reported moving up on that front to join the first, fourth and sixth divisions, already in position.

Despite the rain, U. S. tactical planes and artillery knocked out five Red tanks sighted in that sector, while artillery pounded across the river at Red troops.

of this committee and the majority of the people of the state of Louisiana," he declared. Talbot supported the presidential States Rights Democratic ticket of Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina and Gov. Fielding Wright of Mississippi in 1948.

"I went to Washington and suffered humiliation that the Kremlin would not visit on a member of its body," he said, "when I was refused a seat at the national Democratic committee meeting."

He added:

"What happens to me in politics amounts to nothing, but what happens to the people of Louisiana is important and their right to govern themselves is a principle I intend to fight for.

"What we fought for was:

"1. Constitutional government.

"2. Opposition to the tidelands oil grab.

"3. Opposition to the civil rights program.

"4. Opposition to F. E. P. C.

"5. The right to have segregation.

"6. The right to run our own state and our own elections as we have done since the adoption of the United States constitution."

"If our governor," Talbot continued, "and our elected officials, of which you are one, being a committee member, appease for appeasement alone, then you can expect governmental police to be directing your traffic, to be governing your home life, your method of running your business, telling you when and where you can work, what you can and can't buy, who your children will go to school with. . .and perhaps your state government will be run from Harlem by a delegated official who has never been in Louisiana; and I charge now that the movement of the 12 colored applicants to enroll in Louisiana State University is only a starter, and that it was negotiated and planned by a party or parties residing outside of the state of Louisiana for no other purpose than to humiliate our people.

"We have two first class colored schools in this state," Talbot said, "better than most of those in the south. Nevertheless, this move is made by those who want to break down our way of life, and my removal is an appeasement of this kind of Truman dictatorship."

AND NEVER A FUSS OVER BILLS

Jack isn't scared to death when Mary goes shopping. And he is never shocked when the monthly bills come in.

Long ago Mary and Jack learned how to use their credit wisely. They discovered that the merchant, the physician, the dentist, the fuel dealer and other credit granters gladly extend the privilege of a charge account to sincere, responsible people. And all that Mary and Jack had to do to merit this trust was to pay their bills as promised—on the date they fell due.

Like millions of other people, Mary and Jack have used their credit to buy a lot of nice things for their home and for themselves—a car, a piano, refrigerator, furniture, rugs, clothing and many other things. But they always regulated their purchases carefully so they never bought more than they could pay for—when it was due.

It isn't the size of your income, but the way you pay your bills that makes or mars your credit record. Therefore, when you buy on credit buy only what you know you can pay for. And when the time comes to pay—pay promptly on the date payment is due.

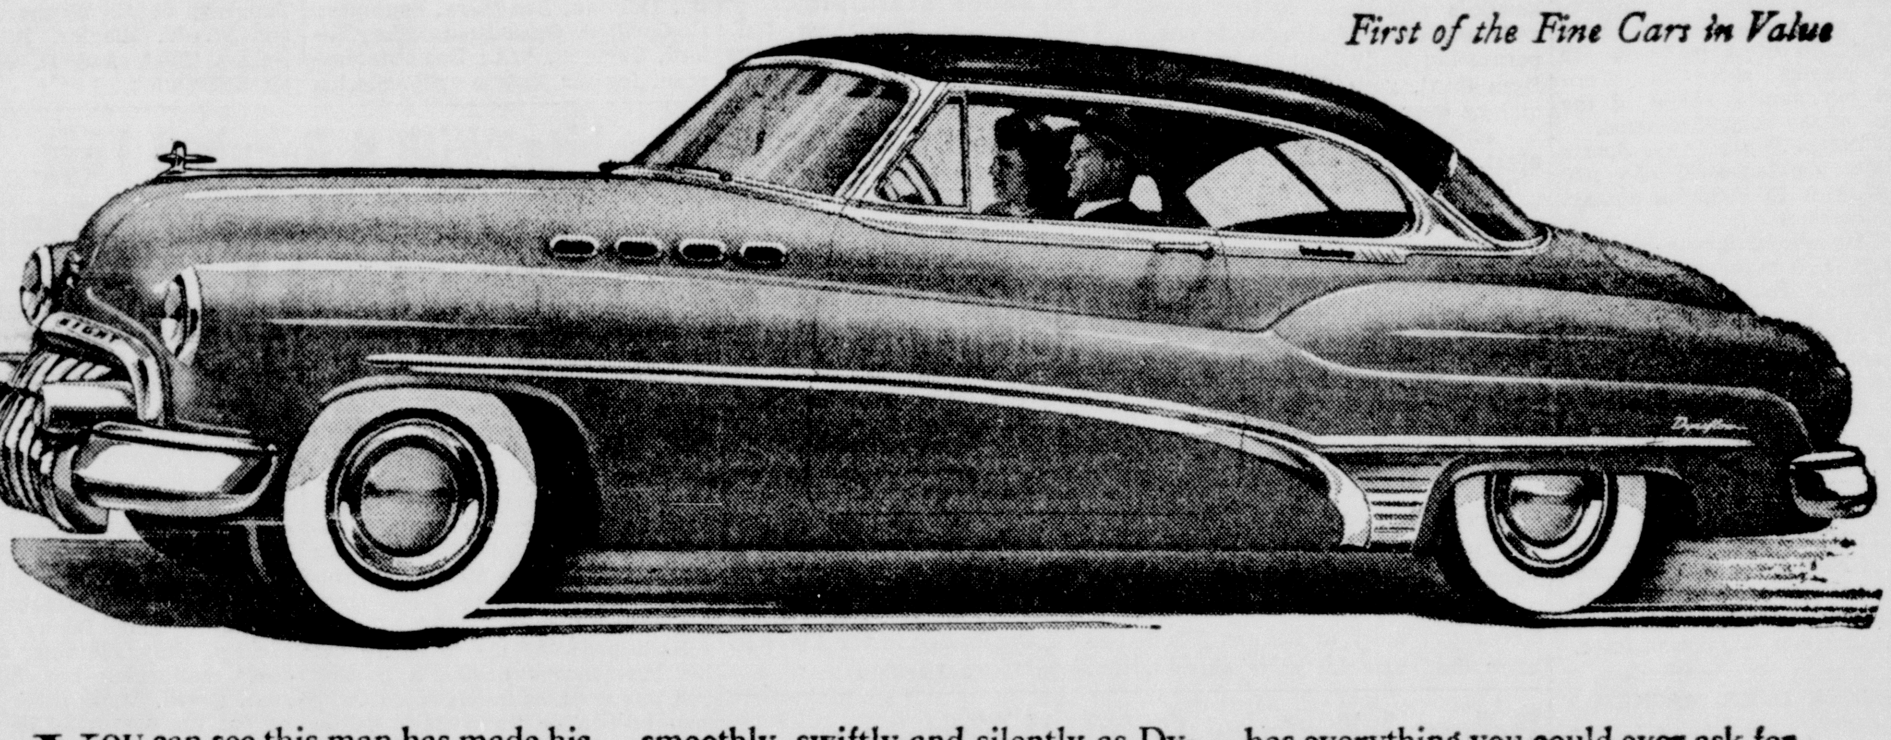
First of the Fine Cars in Value



YOU can see this man has made his mark in life, and while his heart's still young.

You can tell he likes action for his money – that he knows a fine car needn't be the most expensive to give the greatest value.

Yes, such are the things you know of any man, when you note that his car is a ROADMASTER.

Follow him on his spirited way as he pilots this lively motorcar through traffic. Even the lightweights are no match for this road-steady husky – not with the 152-horsepower straight-eight Fireball engine that purrs beneath its bonnet.

Maneuver beside him at the next stop light. Then just try to get away as smoothly, swiftly and silently as Dynaflow Drive gets his ROADMASTER going – and keeps it rolling without shifting, even automatically.

But don't waste time merely envying the man in this great car! Why not emulate him?

With all its outsize room, interior luxury and exterior grace – with all its front-rank prestige, rare performance and matchless ride – a ROADMASTER can be yours for less than some smaller cars cost.

In fact, even if you had a fortune to spend, you couldn't make a more fortunate buy in the fine-car field.

So we suggest you try a few minutes behind the wheel. We're confident they will convince you that ROADMASTER has everything you could ever ask for in any motorcar – although your Buick dealer asks a good bit less for ROADMASTER than you might pay for other top-line cars.

SPORTS INVADE NATCHEZ FOR THREE GAMES

DOUBLE HEADER SCHEDULED FOR THIS AFTERNOON

Postponed Saturday Game Here To Be Made Up Today In Indian Park

The Monroe Sports and the Natchez Indians, who had their game here last night postponed because of heavy rain during the day, will switch to the Natchez Park today for a double header that opens a three-game stand at the Mississippi city.

Since the Redskin visit here Friday and Saturday was the last scheduled to Monroe for Natchez, the postponed game has been related as part of today's twin bill. In the event of further postponements at Natchez, such games will be marked "cancelled" since the Sports to not visit Natchez again for a scheduled contest.

Last night's game here had been designated as a charity contest sponsored by the Monroe Kiwanis Club to help raise funds to support its youth program. Many tickets had been sold in advance for the game, and Richard Whitehurst, Kiwanis spokesman, last night said the tickets, as stated on such, will be good for the August 15 game here with the Greenwood Dodgers.

After the Natchez series, the Men of Mazur swing up to Greenwood for three games, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, and return home Friday to open a three-game stand with the Clarksdale Planters, who will be followed by Greenwood for a possible double header on August 14 to make up for a rained out game here of June 1, and a single game on August 15.

The Sports, now making their last tour of the circuit as well as meeting final invasions of rival clubs at home, have 38 games yet on schedule, four of them previously postponed contests. At the present rate of success, Monroe seems fairly certain of a place in the league playoff since they are around ten games ahead of the top club of the second division.

For the last 25 games the Sports have been banging away at a .720 average with 18 victories against seven losses.

Paul Manasseh, Sports business manager, also reported yesterday that Pitcher Billy Muffett, who was hit on his throwing arm by a hard hit ball in Friday's game here with Natchez, had suffered nothing more than a bruise although he will probably miss one pitching assignment before being sent into action again.

Irate Galveston Fans Attack Dan Willensky

ABILENE, Tex., Aug. 5.—(AP)—No official action has been taken on the attack upon Umpire Dan Willensky by Galveston fans Friday night following the Port Arthur-Galveston baseball game in the Gulf Coast League, League President Howard Green said.

Green made the following statement here today:

"The matter is still under investigation. The offense is of such a serious nature that it cannot be disposed of hastily. An umpire—an official representative of the national association—suffered personal injury and flagrant indignities in carrying out his assignment. Galveston is held responsible for failure to provide adequate protection, and the possibility of a recurrence must be completely removed before we can even consider final action."

Green added that the maximum penalty under the national association rules is the loss of franchise.

Matches Loom As Rowdy Brawl For Curtain-Raiser To Scientific Bout

WITH BANNER—Jack . ...

The semi - final, opening the night's performance at 8:15 o'clock, will bring together a pair of rowdies in Charlie Laye, Knoxville, Tenn., and the "Green Ghost," the masked mystery man of the ring.

Off hand, the bouts loom as a tussle of mat science in the Curtis-Keene feature event to a rowdy brawl for the semi-final. Curtis and Keene are known here for their clean type of wrestling but there's no guarantee they won't show some rough stuff before the night is over.

The Ghost, in four previous showings here, has always exploited hmiself as a villain. Laye is capable of wrestling the same way, but is just as able to turn in a clean match. It all depends on how Laye feels.

The Laye-Ghost opener will have a time limit of an hour, while Curtis and Keene will battle over a time limit of 90 minutes. Both matches will go two falls to win.

Ouachita, With 9 Regulars Lost, Must Rebuild For Grid Campaign

Coach Hodgins Issues Call For First Practice Session Monday Week

Coach Jim Hodgins this week begins making arrangements for the opening of football training for his Ouachita Parish High School Lions here Monday week, and nobody knows better than the Lion mentor the job he has facing him to replace nine starters lost from his 1949 eleven.

He'll probably try to figure out his best moves behind a casting rod this week as he plans a fishing trip of two or three days before launching the 1950 training grind.

Absentees this year will include six starting linemen and three starting backs, but the Lions hope to fill the gaps with lettermen moving up from the last fall's second team.

Counts already tagged for one of the major shifts being planned by Coach Hodgins. He was an Associated Press All-State selection at guard last year, but will be finding himself a steady place among the backs this season. Short moves up from the second team to replace Billy Joe Milstead at quarter. Counts is expected to work at the job held by Carter last season while the latter may shift to left halfback to fill the vacated shoes of Mark Boatright. DeLoach got plenty experience as a fullback last year.

Other promising prospects include Ray Scharf, tackle and end; Leo Earl, Valentine, Odom, and Rodney Cannon, tackles; Buster Parker and Buddy Malmay, quarterbacks; and Benny Franklin, Mobley, Billy Fleming, and Jerry Sikes, halfbacks; and Billy Landrum, guard. Many other boys will be out for the drills to win their places on the Lion squad.

The Lions open their season here September 8 with Homer and meet Bossier City here the next weekend, September 15. They visit Ruston on Sept. 22 and Bolton at Alexandria Sept. 29 before returning home for their inter-city clash with Neville Oct. 6. Haynesville will be here Oct. 13, and the Lions meet Fair Park at Shreveport Oct. 20. After an open date, Byrd comes here for a Nov. 3 date. Ouachita plays Baton Rouge High at Baton Rouge Nov. 10 and engages Istrouma of Baton Rouge here Nov. 17.

Delayed District Softball Tourney Plans Six Games For This Afternoon

Nichols, Red Shield, Clover Leaf, Two Spatafora Teams Vie For Title

Rain yesterday forced postponement of the annual Fifth District Softball Tournament here, but Jack Hesketh, district commissioner, announced last night that the games would be opened today if possible and spread through the week in order to have the championship determined as soon as possible.

Opening games of the tournament have been rescheduled for this afternoon at 1 o'clock with Nichols Motors, leader of the City League, meeting Red Shield Club of the Senior League, on the Sherrouse diamond, and the defending champions of Spatafora's Pharmacy tangling with Clover Leaf Dairy on the Barkdull Faulk diamond.

Games are also scheduled for this evening at 5 o'clock on both the Sherrouse and Barkdull Faulk lots to determine a finalist and semi-finalist.

The semi-final game, pitting one-time losers in the double elimination affair, has been slated for tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at Barkdull Faulk with the winner advancing to the finals scheduled for Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock at Barkdull Faulk. The early starting time Thursday has been fixed to meet the possibility of a double header that night in the event that the finalist in the "winner's bracket" suffers its first defeat.

West Monroe at Eros, cancelled.

Bad weather continued to set Jackson-Bienville teams back last week. In the only game played Eros defeated Chatham by a 6 to 3 count. West Monroe and Simsboro failed to keep their dates and were suspended from the league with the loss of their bonds pending investigation. Other developments found Oil Field Center only a fraction of a game behind the Western Division league - leading Danville team.

SPORTS INVADE NATCHEZ FOR THREE GAMES

DOUBLE HEADER SCHEDULED FOR THIS AFTERNOON

The Monroe Sports and the Natchez Indians, who had their game here last night postponed because of heavy rain during the day, will switch to the Natchez Park today for a double header that opens a three-game stand at the Mississippi city.

Since the Redskin visit here Friday and Saturday was the last scheduled to Monroe for Natchez, the postponed game has been related as part of today's twin bill. In the event of further postponements at Natchez, such games will be marked "cancelled" since the Sports to not visit Natchez again for a scheduled contest.

Last night's game here had been designated as a charity contest sponsored by the Monroe Kiwanis Club to help raise funds to support its youth program. Many tickets had been sold in advance for the game, and Richard Whitehurst, Kiwanis spokesman, last night said the tickets, as stated on such, will be good for the August 15 game here with the Greenwood Dodgers.

After the Natchez series, the Men of Mazur swing up to Greenwood for three games, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, and return home Friday to open a three-game stand with the Clarksdale Planters, who will be followed by Greenwood for a possible double header on August 14 to make up for a rained out game here of June 1, and a single game on August 15.

The Sports, now making their last tour of the circuit as well as meeting final invasions of rival clubs at home, have 38 games yet on schedule, four of them previously postponed contests. At the present rate of success, Monroe seems fairly certain of a place in the league playoff since they are around ten games ahead of the top club of the second division.

For the last 25 games the Sports have been banging away at a .720 average with 18 victories against seven losses.

Paul Manasseh, Sports business manager, also reported yesterday that Pitcher Billy Muffett, who was hit on his throwing arm by a hard hit ball in Friday's game here with Natchez, had suffered nothing worse than a bruise although he will probably miss one pitching assignment before being sent into action again.

Irate Galveston Fans Attack Dan Willensky

ABILENE, Tex., Aug. 5.—(AP)—No official action has been taken on the attack upon Umpire Dan Willensky by Galveston fans Friday night following the Port Arthur-Galveston baseball game in the Gulf Coast League, League President Howard Green said.

Green made the following statement here today:

"The matter is still under investigation. The offense is of such a serious nature that it cannot be disposed of hastily. An umpire—an official representative of the national association—suffered personal injury and flagrant indignities in carrying out his assignment. Galveston is held responsible for failure to provide adequate protection, and the possibility of a recurrence must be completely removed before we can even consider final action."

Green added that the maximum penalty under the national association rules is the loss of franchise.

KALLIO OFFERING LAYE, 'GHOST' IN HIS SEMI-WINDUP

Matches Loom As Rowdy Brawl For Curtain-Raiser To Scientific Bout

WITH BANNER—Jack . ...

Jack Curtis, classy matman from Vicksburg, Miss., and Don Keene of Florida meet in the main event on Promoter Gus Kallio's weekly wrestling show here Tuesday night.

The semi - final, opening the night's performance at 8:15 o'clock, will bring together a pair of rowdies in Charlie Laye, Knoxville, Tenn., and the "Green Ghost," the masked mystery man of the ring.

Off hand, the bouts loom as a tussle of mat science in the Curtis-Keene feature event to a rowdy brawl for the semi-final. Curtis and Keene are known here for their clean type of wrestling but there's no guarantee they won't show some rough stuff before the night is over.

The Ghost, in four previous showings here, has always exploited hmiself as a villain. Laye is capable of wrestling the same way, but is just as able to turn in a clean match. It all depends on how Laye feels.

The Laye-Ghost opener will have a time limit of an hour, while Curtis and Keene will battle over a time limit of 90 minutes. Both matches will go two falls to win.

Ouachita, With 9 Regulars Lost, Must Rebuild For Grid Campaign

Coach Hodgins Issues Call For First Practice Session Monday Week

Coach Jim Hodgins this week begins making arrangements for the opening of football training for his Ouachita Parish High School Lions here Monday week, and nobody knows better than the Lion mentor the job he has facing him to replace nine starters lost from his 1949 eleven.

He'll probably try to figure out his best moves behind a casting rod this week as he plans a fishing trip of two or three days before launching the 1950 training grind.

Absentees this year will include six starting linemen and three starting backs, but the Lions hope to fill the gaps with lettermen moving up from the last fall's second team.

Counts already tagged for one of the major shifts being planned by Coach Hodgins. He was an Associated Press All-State selection at guard last year, but will be finding himself a steady place among the backs this season. Short moves up from the second team to replace Billy Joe Milstead at quarter. Counts is expected to work at the job held by Carter last season while the latter may shift to left halfback to fill the vacated shoes of Mark Boatright. DeLoach got plenty experience as a fullback last year.

Other promising prospects include Ray Scharf, tackle and end; Leo Earl, Valentine, Odom, and Rodney Cannon, tackles; Buster Parker and Buddy Malmay, quarterbacks; and Benny Franklin, Mobley, Billy Fleming, and Jerry Sikes, halfbacks; and Billy Landrum, guard. Many other boys will be out for the drills to win their places on the Lion squad.

The Lions open their season here September 8 with Homer and meet Bossier City here the next weekend, September 15. They visit Ruston on Sept. 22 and Bolton at Alexandria Sept. 29 before returning home for their inter-city clash with Neville Oct. 6. Haynesville will be here Oct. 13, and the Lions meet Fair Park at Shreveport Oct. 20. After an open date, Byrd comes here for a Nov. 3 date. Ouachita plays Baton Rouge High at Baton Rouge Nov. 10 and engages Istrouma of Baton Rouge here Nov. 17.

Delayed District Softball Tourney Plans Six Games For This Afternoon

Nichols, Red Shield, Clover Leaf, Two Spatafora Teams Vie For Title

Rain yesterday forced postponement of the annual Fifth District Softball Tournament here, but Jack Hesketh, district commissioner, announced last night that the games would be opened today if possible and spread through the week in order to have the championship determined as soon as possible.

Opening games of the tournament have been rescheduled for this afternoon at 1 o'clock with Nichols Motors, leader of the City League, meeting Red Shield Club of the Senior League, on the Sherrouse diamond, and the defending champions of Spatafora's Pharmacy tangling with Clover Leaf Dairy on the Barkdull Faulk diamond.

Games are also scheduled for this evening at 5 o'clock on both the Sherrouse and Barkdull Faulk lots to determine a finalist and semi-finalist.

The semi-final game, pitting one-time losers in the double elimination affair, has been slated for tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at Barkdull Faulk with the winner advancing to the finals scheduled for Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock at Barkdull Faulk. The early starting time Thursday has been fixed to meet the possibility of a double header that night in the event that the finalist in the "winner's bracket" suffers its first defeat.

Bad weather continued to set Jackson-Bienville teams back last week. In the only game played Eros defeated Chatham by a 6 to 3 count. West Monroe and Simsboro failed to keep their dates and were suspended from the league with the loss of their bonds pending investigation. Other developments found Oil Field Center only a fraction of a game behind the Western Division league - leading Danville team.

CLEVELAND THUMPS YANKEES, 4 TO 2

Detroit Tigers Hold Own In Tight Race By Beating Nats, 9-8

CLEVELAND, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Larry Doby blasted two home runs today to give the Cleveland Indians a 4-2 victory over the New York Yankees. The victory pulled the Indians into second place ahead of the Yanks.

Doby's second homer of the game in the eighth inning his 16th of the season, snapped a 2-2 tie. Al Rosen had singled with two out off Reliefer Allie Reynolds to set the stage for Doby's game winning clout. Doby belted a one-two pitch into the rightfield stands.

Early Wynn, veteran righthander, went all the way for the Indians and yielded only four hits in posting his 12th victory against five setbacks. Johnny Mize collected half of the Yankee blows, a double and single.

Eddie Lopat, who holds a lifetime record of 26 victories and six losses against Cleveland, opened for the Yanks.

Doby broke a scoreless tie with his first homer of the game in the fourth. Joe Gordon followed with his 14th homer in the fifth to give Cleveland a 2-0 bulge.

New York tied the score in the seventh. The Yanks loaded the bases on a single and two walks with none out. Lopat batted in the first run with a ground out. After Gene Woodling was intentionally walked to reload the bases, Phil Rizzuto flied out to drive in the second run. Wynn then fanned Hank Bauer to end the threat.

Billy Martin was safe on Lou Boudreau's error to start the Yankee ninth but Wynn nailed the next three hitters with ease to end the game.

TIGERS SHADE SENATORS

DETROIT, Aug. 5. —(AP)— The Detroit Tigers nearly blew a seven-run lead today as they staggered in with a 9-8 decision over the Washington Senators to stay 2 1/2 games out in front in the American League race.

Washington trailed by four runs going into the ninth, but staged a three-run uprising that had relief pitcher Hal Newhouser on the ropes. With the tying run on third, Newhouser bore down to get Mickey Vernon on a bitterly-protested called third strike to save the Tiger victory.

The Detroiters made merry in the early innings as they mauled Sandalio Consuegra and Joe Haynes to build up an 8-1 lead through six innings.

Boxing Program Set For Wednesday Night

A venture into the boxing promotional field will be undertaken by Promoter Gus Kallio here Wednesday night when he offers an all-Negro card at his Walnut street arena, featuring a four-round middleweight battle between Roosevelt Myles and Jesse Hope.

Hope, a St. Louis Negro weighing 149 pounds, will meet Myles, a Monroe product of 150 pounds.

Three matches have been arranged for a three-round distance, and Promoter Kallio said he hoped to line up at least three more bouts by Wednesday.

Three-rounders will send Benny Millen, 158, against Willie Melton, 154; Charles Neal Davis, 148, against Theodore Johnson, 140; and Mack Rodson, 129, against Jesse James, 136.

The card is scheduled to open at 8:15 o'clock Wednesday night.

HIGHLY REGARDED SHAWNEE SQUAW COMES IN FOURTH

Headley's Flying Flags Beats Out Red Cross For Second Place

By Charles Dunkley

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Flyamanita, winner of the recent Pollyanna Stakes at Arlington Park, raced to a two and one quarter length victory in the $54,845 Princess Pat Stakes before 20,198 patrons at Washington Park today.

Third place went to Dixiana's Red Cross while Sunningdale farm's Shawnee Squaw, 6 to 5 favorite on the basis of two consecutive victories, including the Arlington Lassie, finished fourth in the field of nine.

Flyamanita, deftly handled by Gerald Porch, paid $6.40, $4.20 and $3.20 while earning first money of $43,710. She sped the siv furloughs in 1:10 4/5.

Flags Flying, which had Recind as a running mate, returned $7.40 and $4.80. Red Cross paid $4.40.

Flyamanita, a daughter of Petrose-Jakovia by Sir Gallahad III, took the lead from Red Cross as they turned into the stretch. Earlier she had surged into second place after the field had gone half a mile.

Brown Hotel stable's Juliet's Nurse was the early pacesetter, but Red Cross was not far behind for the first quarter. Flyamanita at that point was fifth on the outside, but after a half mile she moved into second half a length off Red Cross and a head in front of Juliet's Nurse.

They ran that way to the stretch where Juliet's Nurse dropped back and Shawnee Squaw moved to third behind Flyamanita and Red Cross. Flags Flying was in fourth place and coming fast.

In midstretch, Flyamanita was lengthening her lead as Flags Flying passed Red Cross. Red Cross took the show by two lengths from Shawnee Squaw while Friedberg and Pollock's Miss Canasta wound up fifth a head in front of Juliet's Nurse. Mrs. H. J. Damm's Romanda, Walmac Farm's native Valor, and Recind brought up the rear.

Counting her recent victory in the Pollyanna Stakes and two other firsts, Flyamanita now has earned $62,910.

Neville's Grid Tigers Will Open Training Camp Near Biloxi, Miss.

Coach Ruple Sees Promise Of Another Good Eleven For Bengals

The Neville High School Tigers, with promises of another outstanding football team this fall, will leave here next Sunday for two weeks of training at Camp Wilkes near Biloxi, Miss.

Coach Bill Ruple said a squad of 32 boys, including five ends, six tackles, six guards, three centers, and 12 backs, has already been invited to attend the camp along with himself and Jim Coats, backfield coach; Gus Petterson, freshman coach; and Richard Salter, new junior high coach from Louisiana College.

The boys have been notified to report to Neville Stadium this week on Wednesday, Thursday or Friday to draw the equipment they will need during the camp.

Neville trained at Camp Wilkes for the first time last year after spending the two previous seasons training near Pollock.

"This will be the fourth summer we have gone to camp, and I feel that this two weeks of training away from home does the boys a lot of good," Coach Ruple declared. "We get into shape quicker and get serious about football business faster, and we seem to be better able to overcome minor injuries that bother a boy when he first begins work.

"I believe we will have another good team this year although we lost six first string boys and five other lettermen from last year's squad."

Boys lost for this year include Jack Parker and Bob Brummel, guards; H. M. Butler, tackle; Kenneth Harrell, end; and Kenneth Lewis and Benny Heidenreich, backs.

Players getting invitations to the camp were:

Centers—Johnny Johnson, Clyde Calhoun, and David Wadsworth.

Floyd Officially Named Texas Aggie Cage Coach

Floyd's appointment confirmed reports earlier this week that he would be named. He succeeds Marty Karow, who resigned as basketball and baseball coach to take a post on the athletic staff of Ohio State University.

'HUNGRY' SHOOT FOR SKEET CLUB

Foodstuffs Will Be Awarded Best Shots On Range Here Today

The Monroe Skeet Club holds its "hungry" shoot at the Plum street range this evening with baskets of groceries, bread supplies and other foodstuffs to be awarded high shotgun specialists of the day.

Range Manager J. B. Thoman last night said the shooting will begin at 1 o'clock this afternoon and continue under the lights until 10 p.m.

Awards will include a basket of groceries from Henderson's Curb Market, two weeks' supply of bread from Ouachita Bakery; a roast from Hodges' Market; a basket of groceries from Hensley's Super Market; and merchandise from Harry Stough's Package Liquor store.

The skeet range was the scene of plenty of activity Thursday afternoon and night. Monroe police held a pistol shoot during the afternoon, and they were immediately followed by the skeet shooters. Both police pistolmen and local shotgun enthusiasts gave a big crowd of spectators a good show.

Bob Mathias Leads In Swiss Decathlon

BERN, Switzerland, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Bob Mathias, Olympic decathlon champion from Tulare, Calif., won three of five events today to take the lead in the Swiss Decathlon Championships.

With five more events to be held tomorrow, Mathias had 3,822 points to 3,391 for Armin Scheurer, Switzerland's decathlon titiist, his closest competitor. In third place was Otto Rebula of Yugoslavia with 3,374 points.

Mathias captured the 400-meter run in :52.7, then took the shot putt with a heave of 45 feet 11 1/4 inches. His third triumph was in the high jump with an effort of 5 feet 10 7/8 inches.

Mathias was second in the 100-meter dash in :11.1 won by Willie Eichenberger of Switzerland and third in the broad jump won by Scheurer. Mathias jumped 21 feet 4 5/16 inches.

The track was heavy at the Wankdorf Stadium because of recent rains and a light wind bothered some of the contestants, including Mathias.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Larry Doby blasted two home runs today to give the Cleveland Indians a 4-2 victory over the New York Yankees. The victory pulled the Indians into second place ahead of the Yanks.

Doby's second homer of the game in the eighth inning his 16th of the season, snapped a 2-2 tie. Al Rosen had singled with two out off Reliefer Allie Reynolds to set the stage for Doby's game winning clout. Doby belted a one-two pitch into the rightfield stands.

Early Wynn, veteran righthander, went all the way for the Indians and yielded only four hits in posting his 12th victory against five setbacks. Johnny Mize collected half of the Yankee blows, a double and single.

Eddie Lopat, who holds a lifetime record of 26 victories and six losses against Cleveland, opened for the Yanks.

New York tied the score in the seventh. The Yanks loaded the bases on a single and two walks with none out. Lopat batted in the first run with a ground out. After Gene Woodling was intentionally walked to reload the bases, Phil Rizzuto flied out to drive in the second run. Wynn then fanned Hank Bauer to end the threat.

Billy Martin was safe on Lou Boudreau's error to start the Yankee ninth but Wynn nailed the next three hitters with ease to end the game.

TIGERS SHADE SENATORS

DETROIT, Aug. 5. —(AP)— The Detroit Tigers nearly blew a seven-run lead today as they staggered in with a 9-8 decision over the Washington Senators to stay 2 1/2 games out in front in the American League race.

Washington trailed by four runs going into the ninth, but staged a three-run uprising that had relief pitcher Hal Newhouser on the ropes. With the tying run on third, Newhouser bore down to get Mickey Vernon on a bitterly-protested called third strike to save the Tiger victory.

The Detroiters made merry in the early innings as they mauled Sandalio Consuegra and Joe Haynes to build up an 8-1 lead through six innings.

Boxing Program Set For Wednesday Night

A venture into the boxing promotional field will be undertaken by Promoter Gus Kallio here Wednesday night when he offers an all-Negro card at his Walnut street arena, featuring a four-round middleweight battle between Roosevelt Myles and Jesse Hope.

Hope, a St. Louis Negro weighing 149 pounds, will meet Myles, a Monroe product of 150 pounds.

Three matches have been arranged for a three-round distance, and Promoter Kallio said he hoped to line up at least three more bouts by Wednesday.

Three-rounders will send Benny Millen, 158, against Willie Melton, 154; Charles Neal Davis, 148, against Theodore Johnson, 140; and Mack Rodson, 129, against Jesse James, 136.

The card is scheduled to open at 8:15 o'clock Wednesday night.

HIGHLY REGARDED SHAWNEE SQUAW COMES IN FOURTH

By Charles Dunkley

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Flyamanita, winner of the recent Pollyanna Stakes at Arlington Park, raced to a two and one quarter length victory in the $54,845 Princess Pat Stakes before 20,198 patrons at Washington Park today.

Third place went to Dixiana's Red Cross while Sunningdale farm's Shawnee Squaw, 6 to 5 favorite on the basis of two consecutive victories, including the Arlington Lassie, finished fourth in the field of nine.

Flyamanita, deftly handled by Gerald Porch, paid $6.40, $4.20 and $3.20 while earning first money of $43,710. She sped the siv furloughs in 1:10 4/5.

Flags Flying, which had Recind as a running mate, returned $7.40 and $4.80. Red Cross paid $4.40.

Flyamanita, a daughter of Petrose-Jakovia by Sir Gallahad III, took the lead from Red Cross as they turned into the stretch. Earlier she had surged into second place after the field had gone half a mile.

Brown Hotel stable's Juliet's Nurse was the early pacesetter, but Red Cross was not far behind for the first quarter. Flyamanita at that point was fifth on the outside, but after a half mile she moved into second half a length off Red Cross and a head in front of Juliet's Nurse.

They ran that way to the stretch where Juliet's Nurse dropped back and Shawnee Squaw moved to third behind Flyamanita and Red Cross. Flags Flying was in fourth place and coming fast.

In midstretch, Flyamanita was lengthening her lead as Flags Flying passed Red Cross. Red Cross took the show by two lengths from Shawnee Squaw while Friedberg and Pollock's Miss Canasta wound up fifth a head in front of Juliet's Nurse. Mrs. H. J. Damm's Romanda, Waimac Farm's native Valor, and Recind brought up the rear.

Counting her recent victory in the Pollyanna Stakes and two other firsts, Flyamanita now has earned $62,910.

Neville's Grid Tigers Will Open Training Camp Near Biloxi, Miss.

Coach Ruple Sees Promise Of Another Good Eleven For Bengals

The Neville High School Tigers, with promises of another outstanding football team this fall, will leave here next Sunday for two weeks of training at Camp Wilkes near Biloxi, Miss.

Coach Bill Ruple said a squad of 32 boys, including five ends, six tackles, six guards, three centers, and 12 backs, has already been invited to attend the camp along with himself and Jim Coats, backfield coach; Gus Petterson, freshman coach; and Richard Salter, new junior high coach from Louisiana College.

The boys have been notified to report to Neville Stadium this week on Wednesday, Thursday or Friday to draw the equipment they will need during the camp.

Neville trained at Camp Wilkes for the first time last year after spending the two previous seasons training near Pollock.

"This will be the fourth summer we have gone to camp, and I feel that this two weeks of training away from home does the boys a lot of good," Coach Ruple declared. "We get into shape quicker and get serious about football business faster, and we seem to be better able to overcome minor injuries that bother a boy when he first begins work.

"I believe we will have another good team this year although we lost six first string boys and five other lettermen from last year's squad."

Boys lost for this year include Jack Parker and Bob Brummel, guards; H. M. Butler, tackle; Kenneth Harrell, end; and Kenneth Lewis and Benny Heidenreich, backs.

Players getting invitations to the camp were:

Centers—Johnny Johnson, Clyde Calhoun, and David Wadsworth.

Floyd Officially Named Texas Aggie Cage Coach

Floyd's appointment confirmed reports earlier this week that he would be named. He succeeds Marty Karow, who resigned as basketball and baseball coach to take a post on the athletic staff of Ohio State University.

'HUNGRY' SHOOT FOR SKEET CLUB

Foodstuffs Will Be Awarded Best Shots On Range Here Today

The Monroe Skeet Club holds its "hungry" shoot at the Plum street range this evening with baskets of groceries, bread supplies and other foodstuffs to be awarded high shotgun specialists of the day.

Range Manager J. B. Thoman last night said the shooting will begin at 1 o'clock this afternoon and continue under the lights until 10 p.m.

Awards will include a basket of groceries from Henderson's Curb Market, two weeks' supply of bread from Ouachita Bakery; a roast from Hodges' Market; a basket of groceries from Hensley's Super Market; and merchandise from Harry Stough's Package Liquor store.

The skeet range was the scene of plenty of activity Thursday afternoon and night. Monroe police held a pistol shoot during the afternoon, and they were immediately followed by the skeet shooters. Both police pistolmen and local shotgun enthusiasts gave a big crowd of spectators a good show.

Bob Mathias Leads In Swiss Decathlon

BERN, Switzerland, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Bob Mathias, Olympic decathlon champion from Tulare, Calif., won three of five events today to take the lead in the Swiss Decathlon Championships.

With five more events to be held tomorrow, Mathias had 3,822 points to 3,391 for Armin Scheurer, Switzerland's decathlon titiist, his closest competitor. In third place was Otto Rebula of Yugoslavia with 3,374 points.

Mathias captured the 400-meter run in :52.7, then took the shot putt with a heave of 45 feet 11 1/4 inches. His third triumph was in the high jump with an effort of 5 feet 10 7/8 inches.

Mathias was second in the 100-meter dash in :11.1 won by Willie Eichenberger of Switzerland and third in the broad jump won by Scheurer. Mathias jumped 21 feet 4 5/16 inches.

The track was heavy at the Wankdorf Stadium because of recent rains and a light wind bothered some of the contestants, including Mathias.

PHILLIES WHIP CARDS, 2-1, TO FATTEN LEAD

Cincinnati Reds Spike Dodgers, 4 To 3; Giants Shut Out Bucs

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 5.—(AP)—The league leading Philadelphia Phils took their eleventh victory in 13 games today as bridegroom Mike Goliat socked a homer with one on to give the Phils a 2 to 1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Goliat's blow—over 400 feet into the top deck of the left field stands—was his ninth of the season. It came after Gran Hamner had doubled to open the bottom half of the fifth inning. Mike was married only yesterday at nearby Reading.

The two runs broke up a pitching duel between temperamental Russ Meyer and Gerry Staley. Meyer was shaky at times but he stayed in until one was out and two Cards were on in the ninth. Jim Konstanty made his 47th relief appearance then and got the final two outs.

St. Louis tallied its run in the seventh inning with one down. Eddie Miller, Glenn Nelson and Del Rice singled. Then Meyer fanned Bill Howerton, pinch-hitting for Staley, and Harry Walker lined to Gran Hamner to end the threat.

It was the sixth victory in 16 decisions for Meyer, a hard luck thrower this season. He allowed only eight hits.

Staley gave up six hits in the six innings he pitched and Red Munger gave the Phils two more in the final two frames.

The victory was the Phils' second consecutive over the Cards in a five-game series which opened last night. It was the Cards' fourth straight defeat and their seventh setback in nine games.

Hamner, who scored the first Phil run, also had a single in three times at bat. His mother, Mrs. Aileen Hamner, had come from Richmond, Va., to watch her boy play.

Lady Marquest Home First In Dade's Inaugural 'Cap

DADE PARK, Ky., Aug. 5.—(AP)—Lady Marquest closed fast in the stretch today to win the $1,500 Inaugural Handicap at Dade Park, finishing three lengths ahead of Lady Joan. Never In Doubt and Bee Lee Tee wound up third in a dead heat.

A crowd estimated at 14,000 turned out for the opening of this West Kentucky track's 26-day summer racing meeting.

The winner paid $5.40, $3.80 and $3 to win, place and show, respectively. Lady Joan returned $3.80 and $3. Never In Doubt paid 2.40 and Bee Lee Tee $3.

Wendell Ashby, Geneva, Ala., Cardinals' catcher, established an Alabama State League record when he hit four consecutive doubles in a recent game with Andalusia.

North's All-Stars Down South, 27-12

BATON ROUGE, La., Aug. 5.—(AP)—The North defeated the South 27-12 in the annual All-Star prep football game last night. The game was marred by fisticuffs.

During the closing minutes of the game, Charlie Oakley of Lake Charles, playing right half for the North, was injured. Oakley's brother, John, a fan, left the stands and tangled with Al Gugliemo, end on the Southern team. A free-for-all followed. Upshot of the incident was that John Oakley apologized. Southern players also offered apologies.

The North scored twice in the first quarter. Halfback Billy Graham of Bogalusa fumbled the ball, end M. K. Woolbert of Byrd High, Shreveport, recovered and went over for a touchdown. Then the North penetrated 35 yards and Graham went over for the second touchdown.

North's fullback Dan Barr, from Byrd, scored in the third quarter from the seven-yard line.

All three extra points were kicked by Marvin Selvy of Minden.

In the first three minutes of play in the last quarter, South's Quarterback Pete Clement of Reserve passed to right halfback Don Lambert of Destrehan to score. Then Clement tossed another pass to Lambert on the three-yard line, good for another score. Both times Lou Cruz failed to convert.

The North's Don Ellis of DeQuincy threw a 24-yard pass to Oakley for score. Selvy's try for extra point was blocked. Oakley picked up the ball, started to run, but was hit by Gugliemo, and the fracas started.

The University of Texas landed one man on the first team and two on the second squad of the 1950 All-America team.

SEIXAS UPSETS EARL COCHELL

Conqueror Of Talbert Faces Flam In Eastern Grass Courts Finals

SOUTH ORANGE, N. J., Aug. 5.—(AP)—Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, who only yesterday whipped top-seeded Bill Talbert, sprung another surprise today when he eliminated Earl Cochell, 8-10, 9-7, 6-3, 6-3, in the semi-finals of the Eastern Grass Courts Tennis championships.

Seixas will meet Herbie Flam of Beverly Hills, Calif., another member of the younger set, in the final tomorrow. Herbie, a tow-headed former junior champion, dumped Dick Savitt of Orange, N. J., 6-3, 6-4, 6-8, 8-6.

In the semi-final of the women's play, Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, turned back Barbara Scofield of San Francisco, 7-5, 5-7, 6-4, and Doris Hart of Jacksonville, Fla., upset National Champion Mrs. Margaret Osborne Dupont of Wilmington, Del., 6-4, 6-4.

Even on the heels of his triumph over Talbert, Seixas' almost perfect play was unexpected—especially in view of Cochell's pronouncement that he was going to sweep aside everyone he played to show up the Davis Cup committee because it did not name him for a tryout.

The eighth - seeded Seixas got stronger as the match progressed and despite the fact that Cochell, who sometimes is inclined to clown on the court, threw every weapon at his command, he could do no wrong.

Flam's victory over Savitt, the intercollegiate champion with a string of eastern triumphs behind him, was expected.

The "Big Four" of the women's division was broken up with the defeat of Mrs. Dupont and the elimination yesterday of Mrs. Pat Todd. Mrs. Dupont, who said she would play only for amusement this year, was no match for Miss Hart, who outran, outshot and outsteadied her all over the court.

Rojek Fined, Suspended For Run-In With Umpire

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 5. —(AP)—Shortstop Stan Rojek of the Pittsburgh Pirates today was suspended for five days and fined $100 by National League President Ford Frick as a result of a run-in last night with Umpire Lou Jorda.

The rhubarb came in the eighth inning of the game which the Bucs dropped to New York 3-2 in the Polo Grounds. Jorda called Tookie Gilbert safe in a play at second. Frick said Rojek pushed Jorda in the ensuing argument.

Buddy League

RUSTON, Aug. 5. —(Special)—The opening semi-final games of the Shaughnessy playoff of the North Louisiana Buddy League gets underway Monday and will find Arcadia invading Dubach and Jonesboro - Hodge journeying to Ruston, according to L. P. McLane president.

Dubach, coached by Alvin Jenkins, finished on top of the standings during regular season play that was completed yesterday with a record of 18 victories against only two defeats. Huey Holder, who owns a perfect record of nine wins and no losses, will probably be the starting hurler for Dubach.

Tied for second place at 12 triumphs and eight setbacks each were Ruston and Jonesboro-Hodge. Arcadia emerged in the fourth position to round out the first division.

The second tilts of the semi-finals will be played Wednesday, August 9, with the same teams changing playing sites, Dubach at Arcadia and Ruston at Jonesboro-Hodge. If a third game is necessary they will be played Friday, August 11. The finals will begin on Monday, August 14.

PHILLIES WHIP CARDS, 2-1, TO FATTEN LEAD

Cincinnati Reds Spike Dodgers, 4 To 3; Giants Shut Out Bucs

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 5.—(AP)—The league leading Philadelphia Phils took their eleventh victory in 13 games today as bridegroom Mike Goliat socked a homer with one on to give the Phils a 2 to 1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Goliat's blow—over 400 feet into the top deck of the left field stands—was his ninth of the season. It came after Gran Hamner had doubled to open the bottom half of the fifth inning. Mike was married only yesterday at nearby Reading.

The two runs broke up a pitching duel between temperamental Russ Meyer and Gerry Staley. Meyer was shaky at times but he stayed in until one was out and two Cards were on in the ninth. Jim Konstanty made his 47th relief appearance then and got the final two outs.

St. Louis tallied its run in the seventh inning with one down. Eddie Miller, Glenn Nelson and Del Rice singled. Then Meyer fanned Bill Howerton, pinch-hitting for Staley, and Harry Walker lined to Gran Hamner to end the threat.

It was the sixth victory in 16 decisions for Meyer, a hard luck thrower this season. He allowed only eight hits.

Staley gave up six hits in the six innings he pitched and Red Munger gave the Phils two more in the final two frames.

The victory was the Phils' second consecutive over the Cards in a five-game series which opened last night. It was the Cards' fourth straight defeat and their seventh setback in nine games.

Hamner, who scored the first Phil run, also had a single in three times at bat. His mother, Mrs. Aileen Hamner, had come from Richmond, Va., to watch her boy play.

REDS NIP BROOKS

BROOKLYN, Aug. 4—(AP)—Herm Wehmeier defeated the Brooklyn Dodgers for the fourth time this season today as he pitched the Cincinnati Reds to a 4-3 victory over the Brooks. Fifth inning home runs by Bob Adams and Danny Litwhiler off Preacher Roe were the deciding factors. Gil Hodges belted a round-tripper for the Dodgers.

Lady Marquest Home First In Dade's Inaugural 'Cap

DADE PARK, Ky., Aug. 5.—(AP)—Lady Marquest closed fast in the stretch today to win the $1,500 Inaugural Handicap at Dade Park, finishing three lengths ahead of Lady Joan. Never In Doubt and Bee Lee Tee wound up third in a dead heat.

A crowd estimated at 14,000 turned out for the opening of this West Kentucky track's 26-day summer racing meeting.

The winner paid $5.40, $3.80 and $3 to win, place and show, respectively. Lady Joan returned $3.80 and $3. Never In Doubt paid 2.40 and Bee Lee Tee $3.

Wendell Ashby, Geneva, Ala., Cardinals' catcher, established an Alabama State League record when he hit four consecutive doubles in a recent game with Andalusia.

North's All-Stars Down South, 27-12

BATON ROUGE, La., Aug. 5.—(AP)—The North defeated the South 27-12 in the annual All-Star prep football game last night. The game was marred by fisticuffs.

During the closing minutes of the game, Charlie Oakley of Lake Charles, playing right half for the North, was injured. Oakley's brother, John, a fan, left the stands and tangled with Al Gugliemo, end on the Southern team. A free-for-all followed. Upshot of the incident was that John Oakley apologized. Southern players also offered apologies.

The North scored twice in the first quarter. Halfback Billy Graham of Bogalusa fumbled the ball, end M. K. Woolbert of Byrd High, Shreveport, recovered and went over for a touchdown. Then the North penetrated 35 yards and Graham went over for the second touchdown.

North's fullback Dan Barr, from Byrd, scored in the third quarter from the seven-yard line.

All three extra points were kicked by Marvin Selvy of Minden.

In the first three minutes of play in the last quarter, South's Quarterback Pete Clement of Reserve passed to right halfback Don Lambert of Destrehan to score. Then Clement tossed another pass to Lambert on the three-yard line, good for another score. Both times Lou Cruz failed to convert.

The North's Don Ellis of DeQuincy threw a 24-yard pass to Oakley for score. Selvy's try for extra point was blocked. Oakley picked up the ball, started to run, but was hit by Gugliemo, and the fracas started.

The University of Texas landed one man on the first team and two on the second squad of the 1950 All-America team.

SEIXAS UPSETS EARL COCHELL

Conqueror Of Talbert Faces Flam In Eastern Grass Courts Finals

SOUTH ORANGE, N. J., Aug. 5.—(AP)—Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, who only yesterday whipped top-seeded Bill Talbert, sprung another surprise today when he eliminated Earl Cochell, 8-10, 9-7, 6-3, 6-3, in the semi-finals of the Eastern Grass Courts Tennis championships.

Seixas will meet Herbie Flam of Beverly Hills, Calif., another member of the younger set, in the final tomorrow. Herbie, a tow-headed former junior champion, dumped Dick Savitt of Orange, N. J., 6-3, 6-4, 6-8, 8-6.

In the semi-final of the women's play, Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, turned back Barbara Scofield of San Francisco, 7-5, 5-7, 6-4, and Doris Hart of Jacksonville, Fla., upset National Champion Mrs. Margaret Osborne Dupont of Wilmington, Del., 6-4, 6-4.

Even on the heels of his triumph over Talbert, Seixas' almost perfect play was unexpected—especially in view of Cochell's pronouncement that he was going to sweep aside everyone he played to show up the Davis Cup committee because it did not name him for a tryout.

The eighth-seeded Seixas got stronger as the match progressed and despite the fact that Cochell, who sometimes is inclined to clown on the court, threw every weapon at his command, he could do no wrong.

Flam's victory over Savitt, the intercollegiate champion with a a string of eastern triumphs behind him, was expected.

The "Big Four" of the women's division was broken up with the defeat of Mrs. Dupont and the elimination yesterday of Mrs. Pat Todd. Mrs. Dupont, who said she would play only for amusement this year, was no match for Miss Hart, who outran, outshot and outsteadied her all over the court.

Rojek Fined, Suspended For Run-In With Umpire

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 5. —(AP)—Shortstop Stan Rojek of the Pittsburgh Pirates today was suspended for five days and fined $100 by National League President Ford Frick as a result of a run-in last night with Umpire Lou Jorda.

The rhubarb came in the eighth inning of the game which the Bucs dropped to New York 3-2 in the Polo Grounds. Jorda called Tookie Gilbert safe in a play at second. Frick said Rojek pushed Jorda in the ensuing argument.

Buddy League

RUSTON, Aug. 5. —(Special)—The opening semi-final games of the Shaughnessy playoff of the North Louisiana Buddy League gets underway Monday and will find Arcadia invading Dubach and Jonesboro - Hodge journeying to Ruston, according to L. P. McLane president.

Dubach, coached by Alvin Jenkins, finished on top of the standings during regular season play that was completed yesterday with a record of 18 victories against only two defeats. Huey Holder, who owns a perfect record of nine wins and no losses, will probably be the starting hurler for Dubach.

Tied for second place at 12 triumphs and eight setbacks each were Ruston and Jonesboro-Hodge. Arcadia emerged in the fourth position to round out the first division.

The second tilts of the semi-finals will be played Wednesday, August 9, with the same teams changing playing sites, Dubach at Arcadia and Ruston at Jonesboro-Hodge. If a third game is necessary they will be played Friday, August 11. The finals will begin on Monday, August 14.

Danger Ahead Earns Win In Molly Pitcher Event

OCEANPORT, N. J., Aug. 5.—(AP)—In a three-horse blanket finish, H. W. Fincher's Danger Ahead $13.20, earned a nose decision over William S. Cotton's My Celeste in today's Molly Pitcher Handicap at Monmouth Park before 33,844.

Another nose behind came Allie's Pal, with the favored Ouija two lengths farther back in fourth.

KEISER, DOUGLAS LEAD

BABE ZAHARIAS LEAPS AWAY IN WOMEN'S PLAY

By Jerry Liska

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Herman Keiser of Lima, Ohio, and Dave Douglas of Wilmington, Dela., today posted formidable two-under-par 70's to share the early lead in the $15,000 All-American Pro golf tourney.

Tam O'Shanter trickily placed pins over the par 36-36—72 course caused considerable trouble for the field of about 90 pros who started the 72-hole chase for top swag of $2,500.

Keiser, 36, 1946 winner of the Masters' tourney and slim, blonde Douglas, 32, a golf pro's son, fired identical cards of 36-34.

Co-favored Lloyd Mangrum of the host club, and British Open Champion Bobby Locke, making his first American appearance in more than a year, were tied at even par 72 with Ed Furgol, Royal Oak, Mich.

Stranahan, striving for his third straight All-American crown, led a simon-pure field of 30 by a single stroke. Four were tied in the runner-up spot at 145, including Gene Coulter, Purdue University Star from Richmond, Ind.; Gardner Dickinson of Dothan, Ala., former Louisiana State ace; seasoned Wilford Wehrle from Ormond, Fla., and Jimmy McHale of Philadelphia, 1949 Walker cupper.

Mrs. Zaharias dropped a 40-footer on the 18th hole today for a third-round 74, two under women's par. Babe broke her own course record with a 70 in Thursday's first round and yesterday had a 70.

Miss Suggs took the No. 2 spot also with a 74 for her 229. Knotted at 233 were Patty Berg with a third round 76 and the top amateur Beverly Hanson of Pasadena, Calif., who needed a 79. Pro Betty Jameson, who was tied with Miss Hanson for second spot at 36 holes with 154, wobbled to a 44-40—84 today for 238.

JES' RAMBLIN'

have asked Jes' Ramblin' why there are no flags shown and we are in a real war that will try nerves and physical resistence of men in service and the public back home.

This party stated: "Why can't we have 'em fly every day from the courthouse to the city hall and in or outside of banks and other financial institutions? Downtown business houses could well join in the movement and show their colors by a display of the grand Old Flag. It is only a little thing but little things make up big things and it should tend to make the public conscious of the war and the role that each and every patriotic person must play.

We are sure all public officials and the Chamber of Commerce will lend hearty approval to the display of flags. Let's put 'em out and show where we stand as true blue loyal Americans!

Mr. and Mrs. Clay Albright are back home from a delightful trip which was at the expense of the International Harvester Company of Chicago. Mr. Albright is a salesman and his business was such that he ranked third in the list in volumes of sales made by the company. For this reason the trip was his reward and this time Mrs. Albright was included to her great delight.

They spent a week and were registered at the Knickerbocker Hotel in Chicago. Much time was devoted to sightseeing; they attended shows; saw the races at Arlington Downs; had a cruise on Lake Michigan and of course saw some big league ball games. All told it wa sa delightful time never to be forgotten.

Monroe is still in mourning over the passing of Lowery Jefferson, one of the most companionable and delightful musicians that Monroe has ever possessed. Modest to an extreme, he was one whom to know was a pleasure. His music was his whole life and he was a real master at his chosen calling.

It will be impossible for another to exactly fill the niche in Monroe that was occupied by Mr. Jefferson. The community has sustained a never to be replaced loss in all that concerns the progress of music and all that pertains to civic progress through his efforts.

In keeping with the man, knowing his end was near, he arranged all final details which were carried out as he desired. The some-what unusual high mass of requiem was held at Grace Episcopal Church, where he had been organist and held other responsible posts. Many laid aside the cares of a busy world to attend and thus pay a lasting tribute to a close friend.

Financial assistance, clothing, furniture are all badly needed for a family of five who lost all their worldly possessions by fire out the Jonesboro road a few days ago. They are the family of Mr. and Mrs. Jodie Adams, their two small daughters and Mrs. Adams' mother.

Clothing for the children and their parents is badly needed and any pieces of furniture that can be spared will be serving a most useful purpose, for the family desires to get started in housekeeping as soon as a place can be found for them. Any desiring to assist in any way can contact Mr. Hightower by phoning 10493-W who will be able to explain the needs of the family.

Cantrell Reclaims C. S. Slugging Lead; Monroe Hurlers Hold Own

By J. P. Friend

BLYTHEVILLE, Ark., Aug. 5.—(Special)—If Ben (Rosey) Cantrell entertains any notions that teammate Jack Ramm is giving up the Cotton States League batting championship without a struggle he's better abandon that trend of thought, pick up his big bat and get busy manufacturing base hits.

Ousted last week from the top rung after almost a fixture this season, the blond Pine Bluff rookie flash roared back into first place on a wave of lusty hitting. Friend News Service figures give the Judge outfielder nine hits in 23 times at bat during the period ending August 1 for a two-point gain to.359 for the season. His hit card during the campaign shows 145 hits in 404 times at bat.

Hurling Pine Bluff to triumph over Clarksdale in 10 innings, Adam Stempkowski became the season's first 15-game winner. He has lost nine. Bob Picken, another Judge ace, came in for a share of the highest pitching percentage with a pair of victories. He has the same record of Monroe's Bobby Johnson, who won his 12th game, August 1. Both have 12-2 for .857. Cliff Coggin, Monroe, is third with 14-5. Ray Baer, Hot Springs' star fireman, has posted a 7-3 figure, followed by Rhyne Duren, Pine Bluff, 11-5; Danny Caccavo, Hot Springs, 12 - 6. George Locher, Clarksdale, is the third highest winner with 13-8. Duren leads in strikeouts with 174, 11 more than Coggin. Caccavo and Stempkowski have whiffed 133 each.

ROBINSON, FUSARI BOUT WEDNESDAY

By Jack Hand

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Aug. 5.—(AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson risks his welterweight title for $1 Wednesday night at Roosevelt Stadium against Charley Fusari of Irvington, N. J., in a Damon Runyon Cancer Fund show.

Andy Niederreiter and Humbert Fugazy, the promoters, expect a crowd of 30,000 to pay at least $150,000 to see Robinson defend his crown for the fifth time.

Sugar Ray, also recognized as middleweight champ in Pennsylvania, rules a prohibitive favorite to whip the blond Jersey milkman. There is little betting on the outcome but you probably could scare up 5 to 1 against the underdog if you tried hard enough.

As usual, when Robinson has to make the 147-pound limit, there is considerable talk about the weight-making ordeal. When Robinson whipped Robert Villemain at Philadelphia, June 5, he weighed 155. In recent fights the Harlem flash seemed strongest at that weight.

Abe Greene, National Boxing Association commissioner, has taken every precaution to be sure that Sugar Ray will make the weight. If he comes in overweight at the 10 a.m. (C. S. T.) weigh-in at the stadium Wednesday, Ray will be deprived of his title and Fusari will be listed as leading contender. If Fusari should whip an overweight Robinson, Greene promised to recommend to the N. B. A. that he be recognized as champion.

The West Monroe Rebs climbed into third place by defeating the front-running Mangham team 10-8 Friday night. Mercer and Smith, the winning battery, allowed eight hits to Mangham.

Stein, Burley and Rabb, batteries for Mangham, gave up eleven hits to the visiting Rebs.

KEISER, DOUGLAS LEAD

BABE ZAHARIAS LEAPS AWAY IN WOMEN'S PLAY

By Jerry Liska

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Herman Keiser of Lima, Ohio, and Dave Douglas of Wilmington, Dela., today posted formidable two-under-par 70's to share the early lead in the $15,000 All-American Pro golf tourney.

Tam O'Shanter trickily placed pins over the par 36-36—72 course caused considerable trouble for the field of about 90 pros who started the 72-hole chase for top swag of $2,500.

Keiser, 36, 1946 winner of the Masters' tourney and slim, blonde Douglas, 32, a golf pro's son, fired identical cards of 36-34.

Co-favored Lloyd Mangrum of the host club, and British Open Champion Bobby Locke, making his first American appearance in more than a year, were tied at even par 72 with Ed Furgol, Royal Oak, Mich.

Stranahan, striving for his third straight All-American crown, led a simon-pure field of 30 by a single stroke. Four were tied in the runner-up spot at 145, including Gene Coulter, Purdue University Star from Richmond, Ind.; Gardner Dickinson of Dothan, Ala., former Louisiana State ace; seasoned Wilford Wehrle from Ormond, Fla., and Jimmy McHale of Philadelphia, 1949 Walker cupper.

Mrs. Zaharias dropped a 40-footer on the 18th hole today for a third-round 74, two under women's par. Babe broke her own course record with a 70 in Thursday's first round and yesterday had a 70.

Miss Suggs took the No. 2 spot also with a 74 for her 229. Knotted at 233 were Patty Berg with a third round 76 and the top amateur Beverly Hanson of Pasadena, Calif., who needed a 79. Pro Betty Jameson, who was tied with Miss Hanson for second spot at 36 holes with 154, wobbled to a 44-40—84 today for 238.

have asked Jes' Ramblin' why there are no flags shown and we are in a real war that will try nerves and physical resistence of men in service and the public back home.

This party stated: "Why can't we have 'em fly every day from the courthouse to the city hall and in or outside of banks and other financial institutions? Downtown business houses could well join in the movement and show their colors by a display of the grand Old Flag. It is only a little thing but little things make up big things and it should tend to make the public conscious of the war and the role that each and every patriotic person must play.

We are sure all public officials and the Chamber of Commerce will lend hearty approval to the display of flags. Let's put 'em out and show where we stand as true blue loyal Americans!

Mr. and Mrs. Clay Albright are back home from a delightful trip which was at the expense of the International Harvester Company of Chicago. Mr. Albright is a salesman and his business was such that he ranked third in the list in volumes of sales made by the company. For this reason the trip was his reward and this time Mrs. Albright was included to her great delight.

They spent a week and were registered at the Knickerbocker Hotel in Chicago. Much time was devoted to sightseeing; they attended shows; saw the races at Arlington Downs; had a cruise on Lake Michigan and of course saw some big league ball games. All told it wa sa delightful time never to be forgotten.

Monroe is still in mourning over the passing of Lowery Jefferson, one of the most companionable and delightful musicians that Monroe has ever possessed. Modest to an extreme, he was one whom to know was a pleasure. His music was his whole life and he was a real master at his chosen calling.

It will be impossible for another to exactly fill the niche in Monroe that was occupied by Mr. Jefferson. The community has sustained a never to be replaced loss in all that concerns the progress of music and all that pertains to civic progress through his efforts.

In keeping with the man, knowing his end was near, he arranged all final details which were carried out as he desired. The somewhat unusual high mass of requiem was held at Grace Episcopal Church, where he had been organist and held other responsible posts. Many laid aside the cares of a busy world to attend and thus pay a lasting tribute to a close friend.

Financial assistance, clothing, furniture are all badly needed for a family of five who lost all their worldly possessions by fire out the Jonesboro road a few days ago. They are the family of Mr. and Mrs. Jodie Adams, their two small daughters and Mrs. Adams' mother.

Clothing for the children and their parents is badly needed and any pieces of furniture that can be spared will be serving a most useful purpose, for the family desires to get started in housekeeping as soon as a place can be found for them. Any desiring to assist in any way can contact Mr. Hightower by phoning 10493-W who will be able to explain the needs of the family.

Cantrell Reclaims C. S. Slugging Lead; Monroe Hurlers Hold Own

By J. P. Friend

BLYTHEVILLE, Ark., Aug. 5.—(Special)—If Ben (Rosey) Cantrell entertains any notions that teammate Jack Ramm is giving up the Cotton States League batting championship without a struggle he's better abandon that trend of thought, pick up his big bat and get busy manufacturing base hits.

Ousted last week from the top rung after almost a fixture this season, the blond Pine Bluff rookie flash roared back into first place on a wave of lusty hitting. Friend News Service figures give the Judge outfielder nine hits in 23 times at bat during the period ending August 1 for a two-point gain to.359 for the season. His hit card during the campaign shows 145 hits in 404 times at bat.

Hurling Pine Bluff to triumph over Clarksdale in 10 innings, Adam Stempkowski became the season's first 15-game winner. He has lost nine. Bob Picken, another Judge ace, came in for a share of the highest pitching percentage with a pair of victories. He has the same record of Monroe's Bobby Johnson, who won his 12th game, August 1. Both have 12-2 for .857. Cliff Coggin, Monroe, is third with 14-5. Ray Baer, Hot Springs' star fireman, has posted a 7-3 figure, followed by Rhyne Duren, Pine Bluff, 11-5; Danny Caccavo, Hot Springs, 12 - 6. George Locher, Clarksdale, is the third highest winner with 13-8. Duren leads in strikeouts with 174, 11 more than Coggin. Caccavo and Stempkowski have whiffed 133 each.

ROBINSON, FUSARI BOUT WEDNESDAY

By Jack Hand

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Aug. 5.—(AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson risks his welterweight title for $1 Wednesday night at Roosevelt Stadium against Charley Fusari of Irvington, N. J., in a Damon Runyon Cancer Fund show.

Andy Niederreiter and Humbert Fugazy, the promoters, expect a crowd of 30,000 to pay at least $150,000 to see Robinson defend his crown for the fifth time.

Sugar Ray, also recognized as middleweight champ in Pennsylvania, rules a prohibitive favorite to whip the blond Jersey milkman. There is little betting on the outcome but you probably could scare up 5 to 1 against the underdog if you tried hard enough.

As usual, when Robinson has to make the 147-pound limit, there is considerable talk about the weight-making ordeal. When Robinson whipped Robert Villemain at Philadelphia, June 5, he weighed 155. In recent fights the Harlem flash seemed strongest at that weight.

Abe Greene, National Boxing Association commissioner, has taken every precaution to be sure that Sugar Ray will make the weight. If he comes in overweight at the 10 a.m. (C. S. T.) weigh-in at the stadium Wednesday, Ray will be deprived of his title and Fusari will be listed as leading contender. If Fusari should whip an overweight Robinson, Greene promised to recommend to the N. B. A. that he be recognized as champion.

'IT'S A DATE' IS IN REHEARSAL

Big Show At Gentry Arena Planned By Lions Club In West Monroe

Rehearsals are under way for "It's a Date," the local talent show being sponsored by the West Monroe Lions Club, to be presented August 17th and 18th, at Gentry's Rodea Arena for the benefit of the Sight Conservation department.

The play is under the direction of Miss Ethel Logan Moore who has had much experience in this type of work. Miss Moore states that she is greatly pleased with the cast and anticipates one of the finest shows she has ever directed.

The cast includes about 200 prominent people who impersonate famous radio personalities, mythical characters including — Mr. Robert Ervin in the role of Santa Claus and Miss Ann Laws who will portray his wife. Little Hugh Taylor, Jr. will appear as Santa Claus, Jr.

The two leads in the show will be taken by Miss Sue Hunt and Kenneth Adams who are cast as Ginger Jones and Jo Jo Brown, a typical American boy and girl who are in love, but just can't decide on the proper date for their wedding. They discuss the various months as the show progresses, giving a wide variety of entertainment including music and comedy.

In this scene members of the audience will participate and choose the categories they will use when they compete for valuable prizes. All contestants also get a chance to compete each performance for the jackpot question.

The Labor Daze scene using a male chorus promises to have the audience rolling in the aisles. In this number all men will dress as women and tell their woes as they burlesque the duties and hardships a typical housewife meets as she does her daily chores.

In this scene, Fred Stone impersonates Fanny the farmer's daughter; Howell Heard dresses as Tillie the tenth grade teacher, A. R. Bates will be dressed as a bobby-soxer called Bessie the baby sitter; G. W. Reighney will portray Winnie the waitress from Wellsburg; made up as the "Million Dollar Baby from the Five and Ten Cent Store"; Delmar Carter promises to cut quite a figure, and last but by no means least in the burlesque uineup is Will Morris who impersonates an ex-burlesque queen, Rosie the Queen of the Runway. These men do a special dance routine to the accompaniment of washboards, pot and kettle lids and it is rumored that to see these beauties in action is, alone, worth the price of admission to the show.

One of the outstanding scenes of the show is an impersonation of the Breakfast Club program which consistently has had one of the highest hooper ratings of any network show. In this number which opens with the regular Breakfast Club theme song, Hugh Taylor will impersonate the famous toastmaster, Don McNeil. Miss Jane Shea will have the singing role of Patsy Lee, and Bob Stewart will be featured as Johnny Desmond the male singer who will take his microphone in hand and, as the cruising crooner, will go down into the audience and serenade the ladies. The comedy character of the talkative Aunt Fanny will be taken by Mrs. Anne Hunt. In the number Don tries to help Joe and Ginger solve their problem of which month is best to choose for their wedding by interviewing the woman in the audience who has been married the greatest number of years.

Legion Officers To Be Installed

Newly elected officers of the L. B. Faulk Post 13 of the American Legion will be installed at 8 p.m. Monday at the Legion home according to an announcement by Bert Sperry, commander.

Sperry pointed out that Milton Reed, vice-commander of the state department of American Legion from Crowley, La., will act as installing officer.

Vets' Hospital Patients Visited

Patients in the Veterans Hospital were entertained last Sunday by members of the Walter S. Savage Jr., Post 5, Amvet auxiliary.

A program arranged and presented by members of the Mary Lou Young School of the Dance was enjoyed by 80 or 90 patients. After the program was given, homemade cakes and ice cream were served at the colored ward.

Marshall Johnston, commander of the local Amvet post, accompanied the members of the auxiliary on the trip and assisted on behalf of the Amvets. Members of the auxiliary responsible for the party were Mrs. Lulu Swinson, president; Mrs. Lucille Johnston and Miss Edna Earl Reid.

Submarine deposits estimated to be 2,200 million years old have been found in core samples taken from the Atlantic Ocean, according to the Encyclopedia Americana.

OIL AND GAS NEWS

U. S. Daily Oil Production Drops

TULSA, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Daily average production of crude oil in the United States dropped 7,125 barrels during the week ended July 29, the Oil and Gas Journal reported.

Most of the decline was in Kansas, which fell 21,050 barrels from its all-year high of the previous week to a total of 301,550 barrels.

Other losses included Mississippi down 4,900 barrels to 108,850 barrels and Colorado, off 800 barrels to 58,600.

Meanwhile, three other states were setting new 1950 production records.

California achieved its fifth straight high for the year, gaining 3,400 barrels to 889,800 barrels. Oklahoma reached a year's peak with an increase of 3,150 barrels to 445,250, and Arkansas did likewise, up 400 barrels to 81,400.

Michigan gained 5,400 barrels to 47,900, Illinois was up 5,100 to 177,800 and Louisiana climbed 1,150 to 561,850.

Other increases were in Alabama, up 150 barrels to 1,900; Florida, up 125 to 1,525, Kentucky, 600 to 28,900; Montana, 100 to 22,300 and Wyoming, 200 to 158,500.

Production was unchanged in Indiana, 31,100 barrels; Texas, 2,329,900; New Mexico, 132,575, and Utah, 3,300.

OIL PRODUCTION FAR ABOVE 1941

Producers In Excellent Position To Meet Government Demands

By Max B. Skelton

HOUSTON, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Domestic crude oil production now is 44 per cent above 1941 when oil-consuming World War II struck the United States.

This places oilmen in excellent position to answer with a minimum of delay any government order for oil industry war mobilization.

The government already has asked the industry to develop plans for rapid application should mobilization become necessary.

Possible steel shortages appear to be the primary threats to the industry's plans. Some operators already are reporting difficulty in obtaining essential steel supplies.

New producing wells will be needed to maintain the now steady increase in domestic production and to replace depleted and abandoned wells.

Increased demand for aviation gasoline already has seen some oil companies announce refinery expansion plans.

Washington officials last week said military demand for aviation fuel the remainder of the year will exceed July 1 contract totals by 2,600,000 barrels.

There also was an estimate military demand for regular gasoline and fuel for trucks, tanks and other vehicles will be 25 per cent higher.

Domestic crude oil production in 1941 averaged 3,841,700 barrels daily, compared to last week's daily average of 5,521,550. This is an increase of 1,679,850 barrels daily.

A sharp slump in demand dropped 1949 output to 5,041,900 barrels daily, but only after the December 1948 average reached a record 5,772,100.

The upward climb from last year's crude production slump was well under way before the fighting started in Korea.

A new all-time daily output record can be expected in September or October should the upward trend of recent months continue.

New Paint Discovery Now On Market Here

First deliveries of Super Kem-Tone, the widely heralded new paint product have just been received at Sherwin-Williams, it was announced Saturday.

Based on a completely different paint formula, promising startling new things to come in the whole range of paint products, the new Super Kem-Tone is said to be the most versatile interior paint ever developed. It goes equally on wallpaper, old paint flat or gloss, plaster—without primer or sealer; wood, brick primed metal, dry wall construction, plywood and other known types of interior wood or wall construction—and it dries in an hour, it was said.

Guaranteed by the manufacturer, and carrying the Good Housekeeping Seal of Approval, this new washable wall paint has withstood laboratory tests of more than 65,000 strokes by automatic washing machines designed to match the housewife's most vigorous scrubbing with conventional household paint cleaners.

Super Kem-Tone forms such a tight coating that dirt and grease, even ordinary inks or crayon will not penetrate its finish but wash off completely. Claimed to be as washable as a modern plastic shower curtain, Super Kem-Tone is truly an amazing new paint development.

Vance Prefers To Be 'Live Sinner'

TAMPA, Fla., Aug. 5.—(AP)—It's "better to be a live sinner than a dead saint," says the president of the University of Tampa, so he suggests that churchgoers supplement their prayers with a little rifle practice.

World conditions are pretty bad, according to Dr. E. C. Vance, and he thinks every man, woman and child in the United States should be taught the use of firearms and how to engage in civil defense and guerilla warfare.

The 50-year-old veteran of two world wars and former pastor in several Christian churches says that if he occupied a pulpit today he'd tell his congregation not to be too high-minded in their prayers, that religion nowadays is not to aid them to escape the realities of life but to help face them.

He expressed his views in a letter asking that his name be withdrawn from supporters of the United World Federalists, a group which seeks to set up a world government through the United Nations.

'I believe we should have total preparedness based on the laws of the jungle—that we should learn every art and science of killing," states the letter made public yesterday.

IN MARINES

MAJ. D. D. KENNEDY

Maj. D. D. Kennedy Serves In Marines

Major Donald D. Kennedy U. S. M. C., has recently been promoted to that rank in the marine air corps, it was learned here this week.

Major Kennedy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Kennedy of West Monroe. His wife is the former Miss Eloise Caskey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Caskey of Arcadia, and they have one son.

Major Kennedy, first a naval cadet, then a lieutenant and later a captain in the marine air corps, served in the big war in the South Pacific. Since the war's end he has been stationed in Hawaii and on the west coast, latterly at the marine air base at El Toro, Calif., from which place he has been ordered to active duty in the far east as a transport pilot.

Donald was born in Eros but his parents moved to West Monroe when he was a child and he attended the West Monroe schools and graduated from Ouachita Parish High School.

INSECT CONTROL VITAL PROBLEM

Cotton Farmers Have Shortage Of Insecticides When Most Needed

BATON ROUGE, La., Aug. 5.—(Special)—Louisiana famers face a critical cotton insect control period with a shortage of some insecticides. According to Rudolph G. Strong, Louisiana agricultural extension service. Assistant entomologist.

"In general the supply of 3—5—40 is short but manufacturers will continue limited shipments into La. during the month of August." Declared Strong. "There is a fairly good supply of calcium arsenate available for Louisiana. And cotton growers are urged to use this insecticide as much as possible and save the supply of 3—5—40 for aphid control. Supplies of toxaphene are limited but some 20 per cent toxaphene dust is still available."

Counts were made in 634 fields in 25 parishes by state and federal entomologists and county agents during the last week. He reported. The average boll weevil infestation was 27 per cent. As compared with 23 per cent last week and 21 per cent two weeks ago. The infestation ranged from 1 to 10 per cent in 179 fields, from 11 to 25 per cent in 196 fields, from 26 to 50 per cent in 160 fields, and over 50 per cent in 99 fields. Infestations have increased rapidly in many fields due to heavy emergence of second generation weevils and to migration in local fields.

There was a spotted bollworm infestation reported through Louisiana. Leafworms are continuing to damage cotton in the south Louisiana area.

In the Shreveport area, Dr. L. D. Newsom of the Louisiana agricultural experiment station entomology department, reported that there was no evidence of weevil migration at the present time, but there was some local movement of weevils in fields. He said that bollworms were building up rapidly That some controls measures have been applied red spider, and that it was necessary to control aphids in a number of fields.

"Thousands of pounds of new insecticide called Aldrin is being shipped into Louisiana," Strong said. "Federal and state entomologists again warn farmers that this insecticide is considered hazardous and little is known about its insidious nature of poisoning warm-blooded animals.

BUILDING PERMITS

West Monroe

Turpin Lumber and Supply Co. received a permit to erect a dwelling at 207 Morland street at a cost of $4,700. The owner will be the contractor.

Turpin Lumber and Supply Co. were issued a permit to erect a dwelling at 210 Pelican drive at a cost of $4,700. The owner will be the contractor.

A permit was issued to Lemmie Johnson to repair a residence at 1100 North Seventh street at a cost of $200. The owner will be the contractor.

The Church of God and Christ received a permit to erect a building at 802 Crawford at a cost of $3,000. Day labor will be used.

Permission was granted to Mrs. Annie Ruth Hunt to add an addition to a business at North Sixth street at a cost of $2,000. Sanders Lumber Co. will be the contractor.

About two-thirds of the timber cut in Japan is burned as fuel with about half of this amount being first converted into charcoal.

Vet Group Urge Delay In G. I. Aid For Korean Service

By The World Staff Of The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Most veterans organizations are advising congress to go slow on extending GI bill benefits to service men who see service in Korea.

Seven extension bills have been introduced, but the vet groups believe congress should wait and see whether Korea develops into large-scale war.

Six of the bills are in the house. One was introduced by Rep. Marcantonio (Alp-N. Y.), who bitterly opposed America's entry into the Korean fracas. (He told a Communist supported rally in New York June 28 that President Truman had violated the constitution by ordering U. S. troops into action.)

No hearings have been scheduled on any of the bills.

New York trade circles say your favorite candy bar may go to 10 cents soon. Cocoa is up more than 20 per cent, sugar five per cent, corn syrup 8 per cent since the Korean outbreak. "Everybody is just waiting for the other guy to start the ball rolling," says one manufacturer.

And you can look for nickel and dime boosts all along the line in reataurant menus, with biggest changes in fancy meat dishes.

One restaurant chain reports a new popularity in the lunch brought from home. (Its restaurants sell the coffee to go with it!)

Business analysts in New York figure used car prices will go down —but that they'll go up some more first. They think a drop will come when draftees start dumping their cars, but right now there's a rush to buy for fear of controls on new car production.

A new price boost of five to 7 1-2 per cent by one big Akron tire manufacturer last week brought immediate predictions of another round of increases by most others.

If congress votes stand-by price and rationing controls, Secretary of Agriculture Brannan is expected to advise President Truman that they not be applied to farm products now or soon.

The secretary has told associates abundant food supplies make controls unnecessary. He believes it would be possible to keep food prices from going too high by indirect methods, such as actions to discourage commodity speculation and hoarding.

Controls at this time, Brannan believes, might tend to discourage maximum farm production—which he says will do more in the end to prevent runaway prices than anything else.

AIR POWER BALLOON

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The national program for building air power looks bigger with every new analysis of the $6,711,000,000 proposed for new air force and navy planes.

Best estimates are that this sum will produce around 150,000,000 pounds of airframe weight, which means something over 10,000 airplanes, roughly five times the present annual production rate. (Airframe is body, wing and built in parts, without engines, armament, radio, etc.)

Indications are that the cost of a pound of airframe will average about $45. This is $25 a pound, or 35 per cent, below the average cost under smaller buying programs, such as the regular 1951 program.

Basing estimates on known figures for large scale production during World War II, the proposed orders will require 700,000,000 pounds of aluminum, 44,000,000 pounds of copper and copper alloys and 350 tons of steel. At one time in the war aircraft, engines and propellers used a little over half of all the aluminum produced.

The new buying program seems certain to put into production a few new types which have been test-flown. These include Lockheed's F-90 two-engine jet penetration fighter; Consolidated Vultee's huge gas turbine-propeller P5Y flying boat and Douglas' gas turbine-propeller A2D attack plane.

Some of the later versions of fighters now in production also are certain to be ordered in volume. First stage of the accelerated program, however, seems to be concerned largely with speeding up delivery of types now on production lines.

PATRIOTIC HOARDING!

WASHINGTON—(AP)—If it's coal you're hoarding, says the National Coal Association, more power to you!

The association says it's not only prudent, it's not unpatriotic to stock up on coal now against next winter. It is urging newspapers to run more editorials like the recent one in a Columbus, O., paper that said:

". . . If the international tension continues . . . delays in delivery and temporary shortages of particular kinds of coal may appear from time to time in the middle of the winter. The way to beat all this is to buy that coal now."

PILOTS' PAY

WASHINGTON —(AP)— A major point of disagreement between military and civilian agencies concerned with mobilization of civil air transport in case of war is whether to militarize airlines flying military routes overseas.

The issue involves among other things the morale of military transport pilots, who in the last war flew alongside civilian planes operating under contract. The civilian pilots pulled down 300 to 500 per cent more pay.

The same questions have been raised about sea transport. Merchant seamen got double pay for shipping into "war" zones, although they might not have gone within hundreds of miles of battle areas.

Airline Pilot Union representatives are reported already trying to insure that pay rates will be higher than in the last war if they operate under military contract.

CAPITAL BRIEFS

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Although some dollar-a-year-men will be brought in from private industry if emergency agencies are reestablished, the administration plans to staff many top jobs with promising younger government career workers. . . . If food prices rise another month, government building cafeterias probably will boost prices. . . . Government scouts are combing the nation to locate office space that may be needed for expansion of military agencies. . . .

VOLUNTEERS

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Little known is the fact that benefits of the soldiers' and sailors' relief act apply to volunteers as well as draftees and National Guardsmen or reservists taken into service.

The act permits service men to scale down insurance premiums, mortgage payments, etc., to a figure they can reasonably handle on their service pay. If it's necessary to go to court, the defense department will provide lawyers.

HOLY YEAR EVENT SETS NEW RECORD

Vatican Reports Attendance Highest Ever; Just Past Midway Mark

VATICAN CITY, Aug. 5. —(AP)— Vatican officials reported today that the 1950 holy year, a short distance past its midway mark, has already smashed attendance records.

They said that by the end of June the 1950 holy year—the 25th in the history of the Roman Catholic Church—had brought 1,300,000 pilgrims to Rome. In the past 30 days another 150,000 have come. The total already exceeds the pilgrims of the great jubilees of 1900 and 1925, the holy year central committee said.

Pope Pius XII, whose frail shoulders appear to have been bearing well the added burdens of the holy year, said recently that never in the centuries-long history of Rome had pilgrims come here in such numbers.

"It seems to us," said the pontiff in a recent discourse, "that holy year 1950 will be a determining factor in the future of the church."

Nearly every one of the pilgrims have seen the pope in special or in the great twice-weekly general audiences held in the basilica of Saint Peter. As many as 50,000 from 32 countries have been received in one such audience.

No other pope in the history of the church, it is believed here, has received and blessed so many pilgrims.

Msgr. Sergio Pignedoli, general secretary of the holy year central committee, in a half-year summary of the 1950 jubilee, said that more than any other, "in its spirit of prayer and piety, it resembles the jubilee of 1300"—the first of which there is definite record.

FRANCE WOULD FINANCE ARMS

Strategic Nation In Western Defense Also Plans Bigger Army

By Carter L. Davidson

PARIS, Aug. 5.—(AP)—The French cabinet approved tonight a note to the United States which authoritative sources said commits France to possibly double her defense spending next year. The 1950 military budget totals 420,000,005,000 francs (about $1,200,000,000).

The French memorandum answers a request by the United States to its North Atlantic pact allies for information on what steps they can take to bolster western defenses against Communist aggression. It is believed to carry a request for dollar aid to foot most of the bill.

Britain announced Friday that she is ready to boost her defense spending to a total of $9,520,000,000 over the next three years, provided she is given substantial assistance by the United States.

Britain and France are the most powerful European members of the 12-nation alliance. One of the smaller members, Denmark, announced today that she proposes to spend 400,000,000 kroner (about $57,100,000) on rearmament and civil defense in the next two years.

Cops 'Arrest' Two Animals

Friday night a call came [to] headquarters from a very fran[tic] woman who lived at 2201 Trent street saying that a strange cre[a]ture was scaring her chickens a[nd] for the police to come quick. Up[on] arrival the officers made a tho[r]ough search of the yard and fou[nd] an armadilla. The arresting of[fi]cers were Walter Wilhite and J. Cullipher.

Thursday night a monkey [got] loose on North Fourth street fro[m] a house close to that vicinity a[nd] the owner called the police to he[lp] him catch the animal. Office[rs] captured the monkey and return[ed] him to his owner.

These two animal calls on Thu[rs]day and Friday were the only a[r]rests made by the West Monr[oe] police department.

Judge Jesse Heard is having [a] hard time passing judgment [on] these cases, since he can't deci[de] what to charge them with, distur[b]ing the peace, resisting arrest, [or] damage to property.

Some Still Yield To Russian Ambitions

CLEAR LAKE, Ia., Aug. 5.—[(AP)] —Senator Hickenlooper (R.-Ia.) as[]serted today that there are still [a] number of persons in the state d[e]partment who have been "adv[o]cating a yielding attitude towa[rd] Russian ambitions."

"Our whole foreign policy for [a] number of years has been infl[u]enced by a group of men with[in] the state department who are sym[]pathetic to Russia's ambitions," he said in an interview.

Hickenlooper mentioned [no] names. He said he does not accus[e] these men of being Communist[s].

"But they certainly are far, f[ar] to the left," he said.

The senator said Senator M[c]Carthy (R.-Wis.) is only one [of] many who have called the atte[n]tion of the president and the sta[te] department to this group of pe[o]ple.

'IT'S A DATE' IS IN REHEARSAL

Big Show At Gentry Arena Planned By Lions Club In West Monroe

Rehearsals are under way for "It's a Date," the local talent show being sponsored by the West Monroe Lions Club, to be presented August 17th and 18th, at Gentry's Rodea Arena for the benefit of the Sight Conservation department.

The play is under the direction of Miss Ethel Logan Moore who has had much experience in this type of work. Miss Moore states that she is greatly pleased with the cast and anticipates one of the finest shows she has ever directed.

The cast includes about 200 prominent people who impersonate famous radio personalities, mythical characters including — Mr. Robert Ervin in the role of Santa Claus and Miss Ann Laws who will portray his wife. Little Hugh Taylor, Jr. will appear as Santa Claus, Jr.

The two leads in the show will be taken by Miss Sue Hunt and Kenneth Adams who are cast as Ginger Jones and Jo Jo Brown, a typical American boy and girl who are in love, but just can't decide on the proper date for their wedding. They discuss the various months as the show progresses, giving a wide variety of entertainment including music and comedy.

In this scene members of the audience will participate and choose the categories they will use when they compete for valuable prizes. All contestants also get a chance to compete each performance for the jackpot question.

The Labor Daze scene using a male chorus promises to have the audience rolling in the aisles. In this number all men will dress as women and tell their woes as they burlesque the duties and hardships a typical housewife meets as she does her daily chores.

In this scene, Fred Stone impersonates Fanny the farmer's daughter; Howell Heard dresses as Tillie the tenth grade teacher, A. R. Bates will be dressed as a bobby-soxer called Bessie the baby sitter; G. W. Reighney will portray Winnie the waitress from Wellsburg; made up as the "Million Dollar Baby from the Five and Ten Cent Store"; Delmar Carter promises to cut quite a figure, and last but by no means least in the burlesque uineup is Will Morris who impersonates an ex-burlesque queen, Rosie the Queen of the Runway. These men do a special dance routine to the accompaniment of washboards, pot and kettle lids and it is rumored that to see these beauties in action is, alone, worth the price of admission to the show.

One of the outstanding scenes of the show is an impersonation of the Breakfast Club program which consistently has had one of the highest hooper ratings of any network show. In this number which opens with the regular Breakfast Club theme song, Hugh Taylor will impersonate the famous toastmaster, Don McNeil. Miss Jane Shea will have the singing role of Patsy Lee, and Bob Stewart will be featured as Johnny Desmond the male singer who will take his microphone in hand and, as the cruising crooner, will go down into the audience and serenade the ladies. The comedy character of the talkative Aunt Fanny will be taken by Mrs. Anne Hunt. In the number Don tries to help Joe and Ginger solve their problem of which month is best to choose for their wedding by interviewing the woman in the audience who has been married the greatest number of years.

Legion Officers To Be Installed

Newly elected officers of the L. B. Faulk Post 13 of the American Legion will be installed at 8 p.m. Monday at the Legion home according to an announcement by Bert Sperry, commander.

Sperry pointed out that Milton Reed, vice-commander of the state department of American Legion from Crowley, La., will act as installing officer.

Vets' Hospital Patients Visited

Patients in the Veterans Hospital were entertained last Sunday by members of the Walter S. Savage Jr., Post 5, Amvet auxiliary.

A program arranged and presented by members of the Mary Lou Young School of the Dance was enjoyed by 80 or 90 patients. After the program was given, homemade cakes and ice cream were served at the colored ward.

Marshall Johnston, commander of the local Amvet post, accompanied the members of the auxiliary on the trip and assisted on behalf of the Amvets. Members of the auxiliary responsible for the party were Mrs. Lulu Swinson, president; Mrs. Lucille Johnston and Miss Edna Earl Reid.

OIL AND GAS NEWS

U. S. Daily Oil Production Drops

TULSA, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Daily average production of crude oil in the United States dropped 7,125 barrels during the week ended July 29, the Oil and Gas Journal reported.

Most of the decline was in Kansas, which fell 21,050 barrels from its all-year high of the previous week to a total of 301,550 barrels.

Other losses included Mississippi down 4,900 barrels to 108,850 barrels and Colorado, off 800 barrels to 58,600.

Meanwhile, three other states were setting new 1950 production records.

California achieved its fifth straight high for the year, gaining 3,400 barrels to 889,800 barrels. Oklahoma reached a year's peak with an increase of 3,150 barrels to 445,250, and Arkansas did likewise, up 400 barrels to 81,400.

Michigan gained 5,400 barrels to 47,900, Illinois was up 5,100 to 177,800 and Louisiana climbed 1,150 to 561,850.

Other increases were in Alabama, up 150 barrels to 1,900; Florida, up 125 to 1,525, Kentucky, 600 to 28,900; Montana, 100 to 22,300 and Wyoming, 200 to 158,500.

Production was unchanged in Indiana, 31,100 barrels; Texas, 2,329,900; New Mexico, 132,575, and Utah, 3,300.

STATE REPORT

BATON ROUGE, La., Aug. 5.—(AP)—The state department of conservation in its weekly oil report today listed completion of 22 wells with combined initial daily production of 4145.86 barrels, abandonment of 19 tests and issuance of permits for 70 new wells.

Completions were:

OIL PRODUCTION FAR ABOVE 1941

Producers In Excellent Position To Meet Government Demands

By Max B. Skelton

HOUSTON, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Domestic crude oil production now is 44 per cent above 1941 when oil-consuming World War II struck the United States.

This places oilmen in excellent position to answer with a minimum of delay any government order for oil industry war mobilization.

The government already has asked the industry to develop plans for rapid application should mobilization become necessary.

Possible steel shortages appear to be the primary threats to the industry's plans. Some operators already are reporting difficulty in obtaining essential steel supplies.

New producing wells will be needed to maintain the now steady increase in domestic production and to replace depleted and abandoned wells.

Increased demand for aviation gasoline already has seen some oil companies announce refinery expansion plans.

Washington officials last week said military demand for aviation fuel the remainder of the year will exceed July 1 contract totals by 2,600,000 barrels.

There also was an estimate military demand for regular gasoline and fuel for trucks, tanks and other vehicles will be 25 per cent higher.

Domestic crude oil production in 1941 averaged 3,841,700 barrels daily, compared to last week's daily average of 5,521,550. This is an increase of 1,679,850 barrels daily.

A sharp slump in demand dropped 1949 output to 5,041,900 barrels daily, but only after the December 1948 average reached a record 5,772,100.

The upward climb from last year's crude production slump was well under way before the fighting started in Korea.

A new all-time daily output record can be expected in September or October should the upward trend of recent months continue.

New Paint Discovery Now On Market Here

First deliveries of Super Kem-Tone, the widely heralded new paint product have just been received at Sherwin-Williams, it was announced Saturday.

Based on a completely different paint formula, promising startling new things to come in the whole range of paint products, the new Super Kem-Tone is said to be the most versatile interior paint ever developed. It goes equally on wallpaper, old paint flat or gloss, plaster—without primer or sealer; wood, brick primed metal, dry wall construction, plywood and other known types of interior wood or wall construction—and it dries in an hour, it was said.

Guaranteed by the manufacturer, and carrying the Good Housekeeping Seal of Approval, this new washable wall paint has withstood laboratory tests of more than 65,000 strokes by automatic washing machines designed to match the housewife's most vigorous scrubbing with conventional household paint cleaners.

Super Kem-Tone forms such a tight coating that dirt and grease, even ordinary inks or crayon will not penetrate its finish but wash off completely. Claimed to be as washable as a modern plastic shower curtain, Super Kem-Tone is truly an amazing new paint development.

Vance Prefers To Be 'Live Sinner'

TAMPA, Fla., Aug. 5.—(AP)—It's "better to be a live sinner than a dead saint," says the president of the University of Tampa, so he suggests that churchgoers supplement their prayers with a little rifle practice.

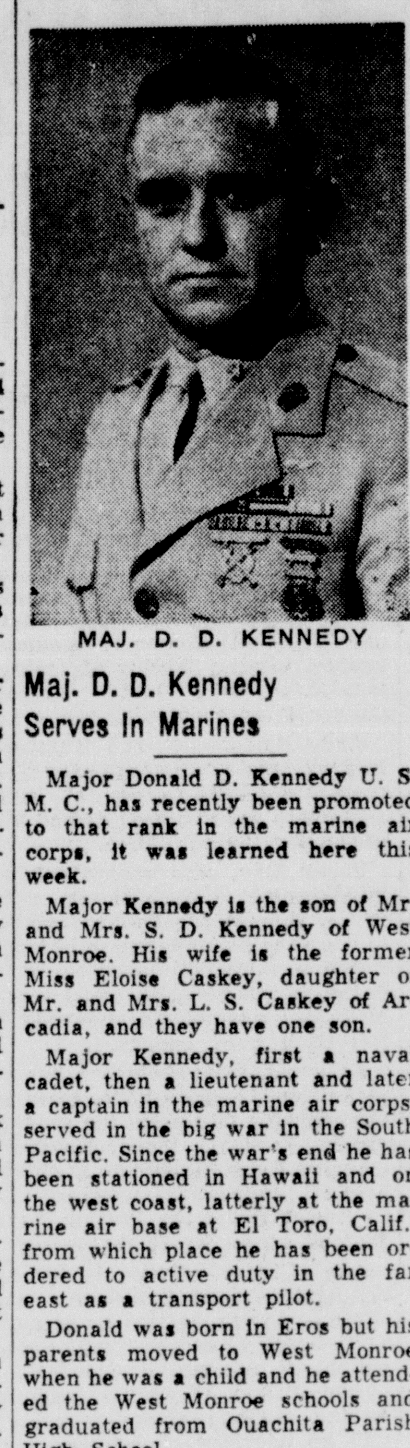
World conditions are pretty bad, according to Dr. E. C. Vance, and he thinks every man, woman and child in the United States should be taught the use of firearms and how to engage in civil defense and guerilla warfare.

The 50-year-old veteran of two world wars and former pastor in several Christian churches says that if he occupied pulpit today he'd tell his congregation not to be too high-minded in their prayers, that religion nowadays is not to aid them to escape the realities of life but to help face them.

He expressed his views in a letter asking that his name be withdrawn from supporters of the United World Federalists, a group which seeks to set up a world government through the United Nations.

'I believe we should have total preparedness based on the laws of the jungle—that we should learn every art and science of killing," states the letter made public yesterday.

IN MARINES



MAJ. D. D. KENNEDY

Maj. D. D. Kennedy Serves In Marines

Major Donald D. Kennedy U. S. M. C., has recently been promoted to that rank in the marine air corps, it was learned here this week.

Major Kennedy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Kennedy of West Monroe. His wife is the former Miss Eloise Caskey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Caskey of Arcadia, and they have one son.

Major Kennedy, first a naval cadet, then a lieutenant and later a captain in the marine air corps, served in the big war in the South Pacific. Since the war's end he has been stationed in Hawaii and on the west coast, latterly at the marine air base at El Toro, Calif., from which place he has been ordered to active duty in the far east as a transport pilot.

Donald was born in Eros but his parents moved to West Monroe when he was a child and he attended the West Monroe schools and graduated from Ouachita Parish High School.

INSECT CONTROL VITAL PROBLEM

Cotton Farmers Have Shortage Of Insecticides When Most Needed

BATON ROUGE, La., Aug. 5.—(Special)—Louisiana famers face a critical cotton insect control period with a shortage of some insecticides. According to Rudolph G. Strong, Louisiana agricultural extension service. Assistant entomologist.

"In general the supply of 3—5—40 is short but manufacturers will continue limited shipments into La. during the month of August." Declared Strong. "There is a fairly good supply of calcium arsenate available for Louisiana. And cotton growers are urged to use this insecticide as much as possible and save the supply of 3—5—40 for aphid control. Supplies of toxaphene are limited but some 20 per cent toxaphene dust is still available."

Counts were made in 634 fields in 25 parishes by state and federal entomologists and county agents during the last week. He reported. The average boll weevil infestation was 27 per cent. As compared with 23 per cent last week and 21 per cent two weeks ago. The infestation ranged from 1 to 10 per cent in 179 fields, from 11 to 25 per cent in 196 fields, from 26 to 50 per cent in 160 fields, and over 50 per cent in 99 fields. Infestations have increased rapidly in many fields due to heavy emergence of second generation weevils and to migration in local fields.

There was a spotted bollworm infestation reported through Louisiana. Leafworms are continuing to damage cotton in the south Louisiana area.

In the Shreveport area, Dr. L. D. Newsom of the Louisiana agricultural experiment station entomology department, reported that there was no evidence of weevil migration at the present time, but there was some local movement of weevils in fields. He said that bollworms were building up rapidly That some controls measures have been applied red spider, and that it was necessary to control aphids in a number of fields.

"Thousands of pounds of new insecticide called Aldrin is being shipped into Louisiana," Strong said. "Federal and state entomologists again warn farmers that this insecticide is considered hazardous and little is known about its insidious nature of poisoning warm-blooded animals.

BUILDING PERMITS

West Monroe

Turpin Lumber and Supply Co. received a permit to erect a dwelling at 207 Morland street at a cost of $4,700. The owner will be the contractor.

Turpin Lumber and Supply Co. were issued a permit to erect a dwelling at 210 Pelican drive at a cost of $4,700. The owner will be the contractor.

A permit was issued to Lemmie Johnson to repair a residence at 1100 North Seventh street at a cost of $200. The owner will be the contractor.

The Church of God and Christ received a permit to erect a building at 802 Crawford at a cost of $3,000. Day labor will be used.

Permission was granted to Mrs. Annie Ruth Hunt to add an addition to a business at North Sixth street at a cost of $2,000. Sanders Lumber Co. will be the contractor.

About two-thirds of the timber cut in Japan is burned as fuel with about half of this amount being first converted into charcoal.

Vet Group Urge Delay In G. I. Aid For Korean Service

By The World Staff Of The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Most veterans organizations are advising congress to go slow on extending GI bill benefits to service men who see service in Korea.

Seven extension bills have been introduced, but the vet groups believe congress should wait and see whether Korea develops into large-scale war.

Six of the bills are in the house. One was introduced by Rep. Marcantonio (Alp-N. Y.), who bitterly opposed America's entry into the Korean fracas. (He told a Communist supported rally in New York June 28 that President Truman had violated the constitution by ordering U. S. troops into action.)

No hearings have been scheduled on any of the bills.

New York trade circles say your favorite candy bar may go to 10 cents soon. Cocoa is up more than 20 per cent, sugar five per cent, corn syrup 8 per cent since the Korean outbreak. "Everybody is just waiting for the other guy to start the ball rolling," says one manufacturer.

And you can look for nickel and dime boosts all along the line in restaurant menus, with biggest changes in fancy meat dishes.

One restaurant chain reports a new popularity in the lunch brought from home. (Its restaurants sell the coffee to go with it!)

Business analysts in New York figure used car prices will go down—but that they'll go up some more first. They think a drop will come when draftees start dumping their cars, but right now there's a rush to buy for fear of controls on new car production.

A new price boost of five to 7 1-2 per cent by one big Akron tire manufacturer last week brought immediate predictions of another round of increases by most others.

If congress votes stand-by price and rationing controls, Secretary of Agriculture Brannan is expected to advise President Truman that they not be applied to farm products now or soon.

The secretary has told associates abundant food supplies make controls unnecessary. He believes it would be possible to keep food prices from going too high by indirect methods, such as actions to discourage commodity speculation and hoarding.

Controls at this time, Brannan believes, might tend to discourage maximum farm production—which he says will do more in the end to prevent runaway prices than anything else.

AIR POWER BALLOON

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The national program for building air power looks bigger with every new analysis of the $6,711,000,000 proposed for new air force and navy planes.

Best estimates are that this sum will produce around 150,000,000 pounds of airframe weight, which means something over 10,000 airplanes, roughly five times the present annual production rate. (Airframe is body, wing and built in parts, without engines, armament, radio, etc.)

Indications are that the cost of a pound of airframe will average about $45. This is $25 a pound, or 35 per cent, below the average cost under smaller buying programs, such as the regular 1951 program.

Basing estimates on known figures for large scale production during World War II, the proposed orders will require 700,000,000 pounds of aluminum, 44,000,000 pounds of copper and copper alloys and 350 tons of steel. At one time in the war aircraft, engines and propellers used a little over half of all the aluminum produced.

The new buying program seems certain to put into production a few new types which have been test-flown. These include Lockheed's F-90 two-engine jet penetration fighter; Consolidated Vultee's huge gas turbine-propeller P5Y flying boat and Douglas' gas turbine-propeller A2D attack plane.

Some of the later versions of fighters now in production also are certain to be ordered in volume. First stage of the accelerated program, however, seems to be concerned largely with speeding up delivery of types now on production lines.

PATRIOTIC HOARDING!

WASHINGTON—(AP)—If it's coal you're hoarding, says the National Coal Association, more power to you!

The association says it's not only prudent, it's not unpatriotic to stock up on coal now against next winter. It is urging newspapers to run more editorials like the recent one in a Columbus, O., paper that said:

". . . If the international tension continues . . . delays in delivery and temporary shortages of particular kinds of coal may appear from time to time in the middle of the winter. The way to beat all this is to buy that coal now."

PILOTS' PAY

WASHINGTON —(AP)— A major point of disagreement between military and civilian agencies concerned with mobilization of civil air transport in case of war is whether to militarize airlines flying military routes overseas.

The issue involves among other things the morale of military transport pilots, who in the last war flew alongside civilian planes operating under contract. The civilian pilots pulled down 300 to 500 per cent more pay.

The same questions have been raised about sea transport. Merchant seamen got double pay for shipping into "war" zones, although they might not have gone within hundreds of miles of battle areas.

Airline Pilot Union representatives are reported already trying to insure that pay rates will be higher than in the last war if they operate under military contract.

CAPITAL BRIEFS

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Although some dollar-a-year-men will be brought in from private industry if emergency agencies are reestablished, the administration plans to staff many top jobs with promising younger government career workers. . . . If food prices rise another month, government building cafeterias probably will boost prices. . . . Government scouts are combing the nation to locate office space that may be needed for expansion of military agencies. . . .

VOLUNTEERS

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Little known is the fact that benefits of the soldiers' and sailors' relief act apply to volunteers as well as draftees and National Guardsmen or reservists taken into service.

The act permits service men to scale down insurance premiums, mortgage payments, etc., to a figure they can reasonably handle on their service pay. If it's necessary to go to court, the defense department will provide lawyers.

HOLY YEAR EVENT SETS NEW RECORD

Vatican Reports Attendance Highest Ever; Just Past Midway Mark

VATICAN CITY, Aug. 5. —(AP)— Vatican officials reported today that the 1950 holy year, a short distance past its midway mark, has already smashed attendance records.

They said that by the end of June the 1950 holy year—the 25th in the history of the Roman Catholic Church—had brought 1,300,000 pilgrims to Rome. In the past 30 days another 150,000 have come. The total already exceeds the pilgrims of the great jubilees of 1900 and 1925, the holy year central committee said.

Pope Pius XII, whose frail shoulders appear to have been bearing well the added burdens of the holy year, said recently that never in the centuries-long history of Rome had pilgrims come here in such numbers.

"It seems to us," said the pontiff in a recent discourse, "that holy year 1950 will be a determining factor in the future of the church."

Nearly every one of the pilgrims have seen the pope in special or in the great twice-weekly general audiences held in the basilica of Saint Peter. As many as 50,000 from 32 countries have been received in one such audience.

No other pope in the history of the church, it is believed here, has received and blessed so many pilgrims.

Msgr. Sergio Pignedoli, general secretary of the holy year central committee, in a half-year summary of the 1950 jubilee, said that more than any other, "in its spirit of prayer and piety, it resembles the jubilee of 1300"—the first of which there is definite record.

FRANCE WOULD FINANCE ARMS

Strategic Nation In Western Defense Also Plans Bigger Army

By Carter L. Davidson

PARIS, Aug. 5.—(AP)—The French cabinet approved tonight a note to the United States which authoritative sources said commits France to possibly double her defense spending next year. The 1950 military budget totals 420,000,005,000 francs (about $1,200,000,000).

The French memorandum answers a request by the United States to its North Atlantic pact allies for information on what steps they can take to bolster western defenses against Communist aggression. It is believed to carry a request for dollar aid to foot most of the bill.

Britain announced Friday that she is ready to boost her defense spending to a total of $9,520,000,000 over the next three years, provided she is given substantial assistance by the United States.

Britain and France are the most powerful European members of the 12-nation alliance. One of the smaller members, Denmark, announced today that she proposes to spend 400,000,000 kroner (about $57,100,000) on rearmament and civil defense in the next two years.

MUSIC PUPILS PLAN RECITAL

Will Be Held Monday At Northeast La. State College

The music department of Northeast Louisiana State College will present summer pupils of Mrs. Florence Albritton in a piano recital in the Fine Arts building at the college Monday at 8:15 p.m. There is no admission charge. The program will be as follows:

"Waltz in A Flat Major", (Johannes Brahms); "Square Dance from American Album", (Samuel Raphling); "Concertino on Familiar Themes", (Andante), (Duo)*, (Stanley R. Avery); Carol Downes.

"Prelude Opus 28, No. 20", (Frederic Chopin); "Valsette", (Felix Borowski); "Spanish Folk Dance", (Duo)*, (Mary Howe); by Mary Anne McDade.

"The Chase", (Joseph Rheinberger); "The Arkansas Traveler", (Old Fiddler's Tune), (Arr. by Harl McDonald); "Londonderry Air", (Irish Folk Melody), (Duo)*, (Arr. by Alexander Kelberine; Ann Hebert.

"Scherzino", (Julius Handrock); "Valse in D Major", (Miguel Sandoval); "Sevilliana" (Duo)*, (Jean Williams); Mary Jane Carter.

"Fantasia in C Minor", (Johann S. Bach); "Prelude Op. 28, No. 23", (Frederic Chopin); "Nocturne Op. 72, No. 1", (Chopin); Frances Ritter.

"Rondo", (Perpetual Motion), (Karl Maria von Weber); "Three Etudes without Opus", (Frederic Chopin); "Lenda Brasileira No. 1", (Francisco Mignone); "Quasi Modinha", (Mignone); "Congada", (Danca Brasileira), (Mignone); Ethel Rose Rogers.

Ushers: Bonita Bankhead and Joe Monroe.

WHO'S WHO

High school students: Carol Downes, Rayville; Ann Hebert, Monroe; Mary Jane Carter, Sterlington. All three are active in church and school music. Carol attends school in Rayville, Ann and Mary Jane attend Ouachita Parish High School, Monroe.

College Freshmen, September, 1950: Mary Anne McDade, Oak Grove, plans to enter music education. Frances Ritter, Monroe and Jane Wallace, West Monroe have chosen the piano major's course. Jane promises a full recital at Northeast Louisiana State College in November.

Seniors, L. S. U. School of Music, September 1950: Ethel Rose Rogers, Columbia, is student of Carleton Liddle at the university. She returned to Mrs. Allbritton to keep busy at the piano during her summer vacation. Bonita Bankhead, recently from Oklahoma, has a minor in piano at N. L. S. C. Her interest is in music education. Joe Monroe, sophomore at N. L. S. C. and in his tenth year of study with Mrs. Allbritton, will be heard from at the piano again during the fall term.

Cops 'Arrest' Two Animals

The West Monroe police department is arresting armadillas and monkeys these days instead of human beings, according to Chief Jeff Caldwell.

Friday night a call came to headquarters from a very frantic woman who lived at 2201 Trenton street saying that a strange creature was scaring her chickens and for the police to come quick. Upon arrival the officers made a thorough search of the yard and found an armadilla. The arresting officers were Walter Wilhite and J. R. Cullipher.

Thursday night a monkey got loose on North Fourth street from a house close to that vicinity and the owner called the police to help him catch the animal. Officers captured the monkey and returned him to his owner.

These two animal calls on Thursday and Friday were the only arrests made by the West Monroe police department.

Judge Jesse Heard is having a hard time passing judgment on these cases, since he can't decide what to charge them with, disturbing the peace, resisting arrest, or damage to property.

Some Still Yield To Russian Ambitions

CLEAR LAKE, Ia., Aug. 5.—(AP)—Senator Hickenlooper (R.-Ia.) asserted today that there are still a number of persons in the state department who have been "advocating a yielding attitude toward Russian ambitions."

"Our whole foreign policy for a number of years has been influenced by a group of men within the state department who are sympathetic to Russia's ambitions," he said in an interview.

Hickenlooper mentioned no names. He said he does not accuse these men of being Communists. "But they certainly are far, far to the left," he said.

The senator said Senator McCarthy (R.-Wis.) is only one of many who have called the attention of the president and the state department to this group of people.

Daredevil Event Is Scheduled Here Aug. 20

At last week's meeting of the North Monroe Lion's Club, President W. E. Moore, Jr., announced that the club would sponsor a daredevil show to be held Sunday, August 20, featuring 20 death defying events.

The stunts will consist of crashes with autos and motorcycles. The show will be held at the Gentry Rodeo Arena in West Monroe.

There will be no charge for children, but admission for adults will be $1 plus tax.

President Moore also stated at the meeting that despite the fact that the club did not make any money on the Water Carnival, the main objectives had been accomplished. The members then voted to sponsor it again next year.

GRAIN

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Grains scored moderate advances in fairly brisk trading today, gathering support from less favorable war news and trade reports American exports of wheat would be stepped up to Japan. The bread cereal showed the most strength.

Wheat closed 1 1/8-1 3/4 higher, September $2.25-$2.24 7/8, corn was 5/8-1 1/2 higher, September $1.50-7/8-$1.51, oats were 1/4 lower to 1/4 higher, September 76 5/8-3/4, rye was 1 to 2 cents higher, September $1.41-$1.41 1/4, soybeans were 1 1/2-2 5/8 higher, November $2.50 1/2-2.51, and lard was 38 to 48 cents a hundred pounds higher, September $14.40.

Many of the adobe dwellings in the Indian pueblos of New Mexico have walls up to two feet thick, providing insulation against both heat and cold.

DANISH DEFENSE BUDGET IS GIVEN

Smallest Member Of Atlantic Alliance To Spend $57,100,000

By Birgit Mangor

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Aug. 5.—(AP)—The kingdom of Denmark, one of the smaller members of the North Atlantic alliance, announced plans today to spend 400,000,000 kroner (about $57,100,000) on rearmament and civil defense in the next two years.

Defensive outlays by this nation of 4,045,000 will be boosted to 29.1 per cent of the national budget for this year, or 3.6 per cent of the national income.

A memorandum was addressed to the U. S. state department in answer to a request by the United States to all its 11 Atlantic pact allies for information on what they could contribute to tightening western defenses against communism aggression.

Foreign Minister Gustav Rasmussen delivered the Danish note to the U. S. charge d'affaires, Edward J. Sparks, for relay to Washington.

"We are very pleased that Denmark has made this proposal to increase her defense effort," a key U. S. official commented in Washington.

Denmark said she is willing to discuss immediately a plan to produce light arms and ammunition for both herself and other members of the alliance.

She leaves her husband, J. J. Cooper; five daughters, Mrs. J. M. Hodge, West Monroe; Mrs. L. Nelson, Ruston; Mrs. L. A. Shoenforf, West Monroe; and Misses Patsy and Sue Cooper, Ruston; two sons, Bill Cooper and Robert Cooper and a sister, Mrs. Eugene Colvin, Dubach; besides four brothers.

Edgar Akin

RUSTON, La., Aug. 5.—(Special)—Edgar P. Akin, 64, of Bernice, died in a Ruston hospital Friday. The Kilpatrick Funeral Home had charge of the arrangements. The funeral will be held in the Ala Methodist church Sunday at 10:30 a.m. with interment in the church cemetery.

He leaves his wife; a daughter, Miss Margaret L. Akin; a son, Dr. E. D. Akin, Ruston; two brothers, W. E. Akin, Sibley; and J. M. Akin, Bernice; three sisters, Mrs. T. W. DeVille, Bernice; Mrs. J. M. Butler, Bernice and Mrs. Julia Manshof, Bernice.

Daredevil Event Is Scheduled Here Aug. 20

At last week's meeting of the North Monroe Lion's Club, President W. E. Moore, Jr., announced that the club would sponsor a daredevil show to be held Sunday, August 20, featuring 20 death defying events.

The stunts will consist of crashes with autos and motorcycles. The show will be held at the Gentry Rodeo Arena in West Monroe.

There will be no charge for children, but admission for adults will be $1 plus tax.

President Moore also stated at the meeting that despite the fact that the club did not make any money on the Water Carnival, the main objectives had been accomplished. The members then voted to sponsor it again next year.

GRAIN

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Grains scored moderate advances in fairly brisk trading today, gathering support from less favorable war news and trade reports American exports of wheat would be stepped up to Japan. The bread cereal showed the most strength.

Wheat closed 1 1/8-1 3/4 higher, September $2.25-$2.24 7/8, corn was 5/8-1 1/2 higher, September $1.50-7/8-$1.51, oats were 1/4 lower to 1/4 higher, September 76 5/8-3/4, rye was 1 to 2 cents higher, September $1.41-$1.41 1/4, soybeans were 1 1/2-2 5/8 higher, November $2.50 1/2-2.51, and lard was 38 to 48 cents a hundred pounds higher, September $14.40.

Many of the adobe dwellings in the Indian pueblos of New Mexico have walls up to two feet thick, providing insulation against both heat and cold.

DANISH DEFENSE BUDGET IS GIVEN

By Birgit Mangor

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Aug. 5.—(AP)—The kingdom of Denmark, one of the smaller members of the North Atlantic alliance, announced plans today to spend 400,000,000 kroner (about $57,100,000) on rearmament and civil defense in the next two years.

Defensive outlays by this nation of 4,045,000 will be boosted to 29.1 per cent of the national budget for this year, or 3.6 per cent of the national income.

A memorandum was addressed to the U. S. state department in answer to a request by the United States to all its 11 Atlantic pact allies for information on what they could contribute to tightening western defenses against communism aggression.

Foreign Minister Gustav Rasmussen delivered the Danish note to the U. S. charge d'affaires, Edward J. Sparks, for relay to Washington.

"We are very pleased that Denmark has made this proposal to increase her defense effort," a key U. S. official commented in Washington.

Denmark said she is willing to discuss immediately a plan to produce light arms and ammunition for both herself and other members of the alliance.

RECENTLY WED

Mr. and Mrs. John Gebhardt shown leaving the St. Matthew's Catholic Church following their wedding of July 8. Mrs. Gebhardt is the former Miss Elizabeth Perry.

Miss Elizabeth Perry And John Gebhardt United In Marriage

Miss Elizabeth Perry and John Gebhardt were united in a lovely and impressive nuptial mass at Saint Matthew's Catholic Church on July 8th at eight o'clock in the morning by the Rev. Daniel Francis Gebhardt O.F.M. brother of the groom.

The bridal couple exchanged their vows as they knelt before the altar which was beautifully decorated in white gladiolus, maidenhair fern and huckleberry. Four tall glass baskets placed in the sanctuary were filled with long stemmed glads and fernery.

Reserved pews were marked with large bows of white satin ribbons.

Preceding the ceremony Mr. William Huckabay, talented organist of Mer Rouge played several selections and accompanied Mr. Charles Bigger as he sang "Ave Maria." The traditional wedding marches were played at the beginning and end of the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in her wedding gown of sheer white Swiss organza. Her bodice was tight fitting with high round neckline, her skirt was very full, floor length over a white taffeta hoop skirt. Three rows of eyelet organdie trimmed the skirt in which narrow white satin ribbons were threaded and tied with bows on the left side. She wore white organdy mittens. Her veil of net illusion reaching to the waistline was fastened to a beautiful white satin tiara trimmed with four rows of seed pearls. Her only ornament was a string of pearls, a gift from the groom.

She was carrying a white ivory prayer book belonging to her deceased sister, her bouquet was a cascade of white shasta daisies centered with a white orchid, tied with long satin ribbons.

Miss Mary Joe Andires of Overton, Texas, cousin of the bride, was her only attendant. She was gowned in a pale blue eyelet organdy made with tight fitting bodice and boloro effect. Her full skirt covered a taffeta under skirt. She also wore blue organdy mittens and a Juliet cap of blue lace trimmed with fresh daisies and carried a nosegay of shasta daisies tied with ribbons.

Mr. Ralph Gebhardt served his brother as best man. Ushers were Bernard Scheen, Jack Meehan, Leo Loviza and J. V. Spatafora.

Mrs. Perry, mother of the bride wore a sheer imported dotted navy organza, full skirt over navy tafcta, and accessories of navy. Her corsage was of pink carnations.

Mrs. Gebhardt, mother of the groom wore a sheer navy floral crepe with corsage of white carnations. Her accessories were navy.

The reception was held at the home of Mrs. Laura Aucoin, 303 Glenmar. Throughout the living room and dining room tall baskets of white gladioli were placed at vantage points and a large bowl of pink and green camelias graced the coffee table.

Centering the dining table which was overlaid with a Canadian cutwork table cloth was a wedding ring made with eight tall white candles, interspersed at the base with buds of pink gladiolus and fern.

The tiered wedding cake at one end of the table was beautifully decorated in a pale pink rosebud confection and green leaves, surrounded by bows of pink tulle. Mrs. D. S. Norris of Bastrop ,presided over the cake cutting.

Mrs. Gene Spatafora presided over the crystal punch bowl on the other end of the table.

Guest were received by the bride and groom, Mrs. Foster Perry and Mrs. Ann Gebhardt.

Assisting in the serving were three dainty tea girls dressed in floor length organdies. Misses Marilyn, Sylvia and Sara Gail Cloutier of Shreveport, cousins of the bride, also Miss Nell Jordan of Many, Mrs. Tess Cloutier of Shreveport and Mrs. M. C. Hall of Bernice.

Mrs. Laura Aucoin presided at the guest book.

For her wedding trip to Hot Springs and Dallas, Texas, the bride wore a two-piece grey airspun broadcloth, trimmed n white eyelet, she wore white accessories and her corsage was the single white orchid from her bridal bouquet.

The bridal couple are at home on 5331 DeSiard Road.

The bride is a graduate of Bastrop High School and a member of Phi Iota Gamma sorority, and attended business college in Monroe.

The groom is a graduate of St. Matthew's school and served in the U. S. Navy in World War II.

Out of town guests were Mrs. Mary B. Jordan, Miss Nell Jordan, Mr. J. J. Blake, Miss Sarah Vandegaer, all of Many; Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Cloutier and children of Shreveport; Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Andries, Francis and Bert Andries and Miss Mary Jo Andries of Overton, Texas; Miss June Andries of Port Arthur, Texas; Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Hall and children of Bernice and Mr. and Mrs. Hartwell Riser and mother of Ruston.

Lois Spencer Weds John E. Garland

A lovely bride of July 23 was Miss Lois Spencer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Douglas Spencer of Girard, to John E. Garland, son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Garland of Crew Lake. The wedding was solemnized in the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Arthur Spencer of Girard, by the Rev. R. L. Harris of Rayville.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was wearing a sheer navy model with white accessories and carried a lovely bouquet of gladioli and shasta daisies, given to her by an aunt, Mrs. Lonnie Robinson.

Miss Ann Spencer, cousin of the bride, served as maid of honor. She was wearing a lovely pink model with a corsage of white rose buds and white accessories. Mr. Arnold Garland, served his brother as best man.

After the traditional cutting of the first slice of the wedding confection, the bride handed the knife to an aunt, Mrs. Mason McEnery, who served the cake to the concourse of friends and relatives.

Mrs. O. T. Lindsay Hostess At Recent Eros Club Meeting

After the meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. W. A. Downs, minutes were read and approved, roll was called with each member answering with a household hint. Mrs. Billy Lindsay was added as a new member.

Mrs. Iness Bowman gave a demonstration on aids in sewing.

A delicious luncheon was served to Mrs. Corene Chambless, Mrs. Alton Stuckey, Mrs. O. F. Wheelis, Mrs. W. A. Downs, Mrs. R. E. Wingate, Mrs. R. N. Hearne, Mrs. O. T. Lindsay, Mrs. Billy Lindsay and Mrs. Keith Yeager. Mrs. Ethel Head, Miss Vera Canady and Mrs. Johnnie Walsworth were visitors.

Sanford-Malone

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Malone of Downsville announce the marriage of their daughter, Carol Jean, to Kenneth Sanford, son of Mr. Vollie Sanford and the late Mrs. Sanford of Calhoun. The wedding was solemnized on July 29 at seven o'clock in the evening at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Frank Smith.

Mrs. Fred Graves, the bride's only attendant, served as matron-of-honor. Mr. Graves served the groom as best man.

The bride and groom both attended school in Calhoun and plan to make their future home near there.

The Sardis Home

Mrs. D. L. Calhoun was hostess to the Sardis Home Demonstration Club when they met in her home recently.

Pledge to the flag, poem and song were included on the program.

Roll call was answered by members, mentioning the foods they had prepared by canning or freezing.

Reports were given by Mrs. P. L. Owens, Mrs. D. A. Coon, Mrs. G. E. Rutledge and Mrs. F. T. Burnette.

During the business session the trip to the short course in Baton Rouge was discussed with three members planning to attend.

Brooks-Fatheree

Miss Billie Dolores Fatheree and Overton Brooks of Monroe were united in marriage July 29 at four o'clock at the home of Mrs. K. C. Brooks in Olla, mother of the groom, with the Rev. J. O. James, pastor of the Olla Baptist Church, officiating.

The bride was wearing a suit of pink gabardine with a corsage of sweetheart roses. Her accessories were white.

Julia Marie Thompson

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Thompson of Jonesboro announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Miss Julia Marie Thompson, to William A. Jimerson, son of Mr. Dave Jimerson and the late Mrs. Jimerson of Quitman.

The marriage will take place at the Jonesboro Methodist Church in Jonesboro August 20, with the Rev. A. A. McKnight officiating in the double ring ceremony.

Mrs. W. H. Jones, friend of the bride, will serve as her only attendant. John Earl Jimerson, brother of the groom, will serve as best man and the groom's sister, Miss Katherine Jimerson, will light the candles.

Miss Thompson is a graduate of Louisiana Polytechnic Institute of Ruston. Mr. Jimerson is also a graduate of Louisiana Tech.

One plant of the common pigweed produces as many as 117,000 seeds.

Married Recently

Mr. and Mrs. J ohnWilliam McClendon cut their wedding confection following their marriage on July 21, which took place at the First Methodist Church in West Monroe. Mrs. McClendon is the former Miss Patricia Elizabeth Whaley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Shelby L. Whaley.

PATRICIA ELIZABETH WHALEY BRIDE OF JOHN WILLIAM M'CLENDON

The First Methodist Church in West Monroe was the scene Friday, July 21 at four o'clock in the afternoon of the wedding of Miss Patricia Elizabeth Whaley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Shelby L. Whaley, and John William McClendon, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. McClendon.

The Rev. R. H. Staples, pastor, officiated in the impressive double ring ceremony which took place before the altar decorated with baskets of gladioli and fern and candelabra holding slender white tapers.

Mrs. Jack Willis at the organ rendered a program of prenuptial music and accompanied Miss Jane Blanchard who sang "I Love You Truly", and "Because." The traditional wedding marches were used to begin and end the ceremony.

Miss Alma Forde was maid-of-honor and the bride's only attendant. She was gowned in a yellow organdy with matching bandeau. Her bouquet was of majestic daisies tied with yellow satin streamers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in her ankle length wedding dress. The full organza skirt was attached to the bodice of pale blue satin with bias collar. She was wearing matching shoes and mitts. In her hair was a bandeau of flowers in pale blue and she carried a white Bible topped with a single white orchid and tube roses tied with streamers of white and blue satin.

Johnnie Rogers served the groom as best man. Ushers were Bobby Allbritton and Paul Davey.

Mrs. Shelby Whaley, mother of the bride, was wearing a black sheer dress with black accessories. Her corsage was of pink carnations and tube roses. Mrs. McClendon, the groom's mother, was wearing a navy and white voile with a corsage of white carnations and tube roses.

For their wedding trip the bride chose a white suit with blue accessories and a corsage of white orchids. Upon their return they will be at home on Coleman avenue in West Monroe.

The bride is a graduate of Neville High School. The groom graduated from Ouachita Parish High School, Northeast Junior College and served two years in the navy.

NEWS FROM THE PARISH LIBRARY

Miss Frances Flanders, librarian of the Ouachita parish public library has returned from the convention of the American Library Association, which was held in Cleveland, Ohio from July 16 to July 22. Miss Flanders reports that the meetings were most interesting and instructive. One of the most valuable activities of the convention was a public relations workshop conducted on July 16th. Miss Kate Copeland, director of public relations at the Enoch Pratt library in Baltimore gave very practical advice about window exhibits, newspaper publicity and radio publicity. Miss Flanders stated that the information she received that day was worth her trip to Cleveland.

The speakers at the general sessions were brilliant men who had important messages not only for librarians but for the general public. Mr. Brooks Emeny, president of the Foreign Policy Association, was the speaker at the first general session. His topic was "A Marshall Plan of Ideas." He feels that the only hope for this world is for the general public to be informed about world affairs. He placed a large part of the responsibility for this on the librarians of the country. Mr. Luther Evans, librarian of the Library of Congress spoke at the second general session. He traced the history of the Library of Congress and showed how our National Library was much more the library of all the people than were the libraries of foreign countries. At the third general session Mr. S. R. Ranganathan, professor of library science, University of Delhi, Delhi, India and president of the Indian Library Association gave a most moving address. At the last general session Mr. Irving Jacoby, president of the New York film council talked about the subject of films and libraries. A delightful feature of this closing session was a pageant of folk dances given by the different racial groups who live in Cleveland. Many of the costumes had been brought to this country from European homes by the ancestors of the dancers. This was a very colorful and inspiring sight.

At a conference of such a large size it is impossible to attend all the sectional meetings. Miss Flanders chose the ones that she thought would be most helpful in her work. The meetings of the adult education section were especially inspiring. Mrs. Florence Craig, director of adult education at the Cuyahoga County Library stressed the importance of leading our public to read socially significant books. She also urged that we give people books that will help them understand themselves and the world in which they live.

Another interesting meeting was one at which the subject of "What books should we buy for our libraries" was discussed by a four-member panel. The best informed and most valuable speaker on the panel was Miss Esther Johnson, head of the circulation department of the New York Public Library. She said that it was the function of the public library to fill the expressed and unexpressed need of the public. She stressed the fact that the library is a storehouse of ideals.

Probably the most delightful speaker whom Miss Fland[illegible] heard was Mrs. May Hill Arb[illegible]not who spoke on the subject "Children's reading in toda[illegible] world." Mrs. Arbuthnot is an [illegible]sociate professor at Western [illegible] serve University and the autho[illegible] "Children and Books". She [illegible] in part: "Children of this gen[illegible]tion are not growing up in eithe[illegible] secure world or a happy [illegible] There are enough stories in [illegible] papers of neglected and delinqu[illegible] children to make all Americ[illegible] cringe. Our job as librarians i[illegible] give our children something to [illegible] for and something to grow on. [illegible] job is to find strong books [illegible] will be a record of the fact [illegible] life is good."

The last day of the confere[illegible] was spent in a tour to Mala[illegible] Farm, the home of Louis Br[illegible]field. This farm is a model [illegible] progressive farming. Mr. Br[illegible]field, who had made his fame a[illegible] novelist before he moved to [illegible] farm, has in the last few years [illegible]voted all his energies to farm[illegible] and to writing books about his [illegible]periences. Mr. Bromfield took o[illegible] three run-down farms in cent[illegible] Ohio and has brought them b[illegible] to life. His soil erosion factor [illegible] zero. He now feeds 200 cattle [illegible] an area that formerly fed 30. [illegible] is an interesting man and has [illegible] good understanding of the wo[illegible] food situation. His books on [illegible] farming experiences are availa[illegible] at the Ouachita Parish Public [illegible]brary and make most interest[illegible] reading. They are "Pleasant V[illegible]ley"; "Out of the Earth" and "M[illegible]labar Farm." Miss Flanders fe[illegible] that her trip was a great inspi[illegible]tion to her from a professio[illegible] viewpoint.

Mr. and Mrs. John Gebhardt shown leaving the St. Matthew's Catholic Church following their wedding of July 8. Mrs. Gebhardt is the former Miss Elizabeth Perry.

Miss Elizabeth Perry and John Gebhardt were united in a lovely and impressive nuptial mass at Saint Matthew's Catholic Church on July 8th at eight o'clock in the morning by the Rev. Daniel Francis Gebhardt O.F.M. brother of the groom.

The bridal couple exchanged their vows as they knelt before the altar which was beautifully decorated in white gladiolus, maidenhair fern and huckleberry. Four tall glass baskets placed in the sanctuary were filled with long stemmed glads and fernery.

Reserved pews were marked with large bows of white satin ribbons.

Preceding the ceremony Mr. William Huckabay, talented organist of Mer Rouge played several selections and accompanied Mr. Charles Bigger as he sang "Ave Maria." The traditional wedding marches were played at the beginning and end of the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in her wedding gown of sheer white Swiss organza. Her bodice was tight fitting with high round neckline, her skirt was very full, floor length over a white taffeta hoop skirt. Three rows of eyelet organdie trimmed the skirt in which narrow white satin ribbons were threaded and tied with bows on the left side. She wore white organdy mittens. Her veil of net illusion reaching to the waistline was fastened to a beautiful white satin tiara trimmed with four rows of seed pearls. Her only ornament was a string of pearls, a gift from the groom.

She was carrying a white ivory prayer book belonging to her deceased sister, her bouquet was a cascade of white shasta daisies centered with a white orchid, tied with long satin ribbons.

Miss Mary Joe Andires of Overton, Texas, cousin of the bride, was her only attendant. She was gowned in a pale blue eyelet organdy made with tight fitting bodice and boloro effect. Her full skirt covered a taffeta under skirt. She also wore blue organdy mittens and a Juliet cap of blue lace trimmed with fresh daisies and carried a nosegay of shasta daisies tied with ribbons.

Mr. Ralph Gebhardt served his brother as best man. Ushers were Bernard Scheen, Jack Meehan, Leo Loviza and J. V. Spatafora.

Mrs. Perry, mother of the bride wore a sheer imported dotted navy organza, full skirt over navy tafteta, and accessories of navy. Her corsage was of pink carnations.

Mrs. Gebhardt, mother of the groom wore a sheer navy floral crepe with corsage of white carnations. Her accessories were navy.

The reception was held at the home of Mrs. Laura Aucoin, 303 Glenmar. Throughout the living room and dining room tall baskets of white gladioli were placed at vantage points and a large bowl of pink and green camelias graced the coffee table.

Centering the dining table which was overlaid with a Canadian cutwork table cloth was a wedding ring made with eight tall white candles, interspersed at the base with buds of pink gladiolus and fern.

The tiered wedding cake at one end of the table was beautifully decorated in a pale pink rosebud confection and green leaves, surrounded by bows of pink tulle. Mrs. D. S. Norris of Bastrop ,presided over the cake cutting.

Mrs. Gene Spatafora presided over the crystal punch bowl on the other end of the table.

Guest were received by the bride and groom, Mrs. Foster Perry and Mrs. Ann Gebhardt.

Assisting in the serving were three dainty tea girls dressed in floor length organdies. Misses Marilyn, Sylvia and Sara Gail Cloutier of Shreveport, cousins of the bride, also Miss Nell Jordan of Many, Mrs. Tess Cloutier of Shreveport and Mrs. M. C. Hall of Bernice.

Mrs. Laura Aucoin presided at the guest book.

For her wedding trip to Hot Springs and Dallas, Texas, the bride wore a two-piece grey airspun broadcloth, trimmed n white eyelet, she wore white accessories and her corsage was the single white orchid from her bridal bouquet.

The bridal couple are at home on 5331 DeSiard Road.

The bride is a graduate of Bastrop High School and a member of Phi Iota Gamma sorority, and attended business college in Monroe.

The groom is a graduate of St. Matthew's school and served in the U. S. Navy in World War II.

Out of town guests were Mrs. Mary B. Jordan, Miss Nell Jordan, Mr. J. J. Blake, Miss Sarah Vandegaer, all of Many; Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Cloutier and children of Shreveport; Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Andries, Francis and Bert Andries and Miss Mary Jo Andries of Overton, Texas; Miss June Andries of Port Arthur, Texas; Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Hall and children of Bernice and Mr. and Mrs. Hartwell Riser and mother of Ruston.

Lois Spencer Weds John E. Garland

A lovely bride of July 23 was Miss Lois Spencer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Douglas Spencer of Girard, to John E. Garland, son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Garland of Crew Lake. The wedding was solemnized in the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Arthur Spencer of Girard, by the Rev. R. L. Harris of Rayville.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was wearing a sheer navy model with white accessories and carried a lovely bouquet of gladioli and shasta daisies, given to her by an aunt, Mrs. Lonnie Robinson.

Miss Ann Spencer, cousin of the bride, served as maid of honor. She was wearing a lovely pink model with a corsage of white rose buds and white accessories. Mr. Arnold Garland, served his brother as best man.

After the traditional cutting of the first slice of the wedding confection, the bride handed the knife to an aunt, Mrs. Mason McEnery, who served the cake to the concourse of friends and relatives.

After the meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. W. A. Downs, minutes were read and approved, roll was called with each member answering with a household hint. Mrs. Billy Lindsay was added as a new member.

Mrs. Iness Bowman gave a demonstration on aids in sewing.

A delicious luncheon was served to Mrs. Corene Chambless, Mrs. Alton Stuckey, Mrs. O. F. Wheelis, Mrs. W. A. Downs, Mrs. R. E. Wingate, Mrs. R. N. Hearne, Mrs. O. T. Lindsay, Mrs. Billy Lindsay and Mrs. Keith Yeager. Mrs. Ethel Head, Miss Vera Canady and Mrs. Johnnie Walsworth were visitors.

Sanford-Malone

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Malone of Downsville announce the marriage of their daughter, Carol Jean, to Kenneth Sanford, son of Mr. Vollie Sanford and the late Mrs. Sanford of Calhoun. The wedding was solemnized on July 29 at seven o'clock in the evening at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Frank Smith.

Mrs. Fred Graves, the bride's only attendant, served as matron-of-honor. Mr. Graves served the groom as best man.

The bride and groom both attended school in Calhoun and plan to make their future home near there.

The Sardis Home

Mrs. D. L. Calhoun was hostess to the Sardis Home Demonstration Club when they met in her home recently.

Pledge to the flag, poem and song were included on the program.

Roll call was answered by members, mentioning the foods they had prepared by canning or freezing.

Reports were given by Mrs. P. L. Owens, Mrs. D. A. Coon, Mrs. G. E. Rutledge and Mrs. F. T. Burnette.

During the business session the trip to the short course in Baton Rouge was discussed with three members planning to attend.

Brooks-Fatheree

Miss Billie Dolores Fatheree and Overton Brooks of Monroe were united in marriage July 29 at four o'clock at the home of Mrs. K. C. Brooks in Olla, mother of the groom, with the Rev. J. O. James, pastor of the Olla Baptist Church, officiating.

The bride was wearing a suit of pink gabardine with a corsage of sweetheart roses. Her accessories were white.

Julia Marie Thompson

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Thompson of Jonesboro announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Miss Julia Marie Thompson, to William A. Jimerson, son of Mr. Dave Jimerson and the late Mrs. Jimerson of Quitman.

The marriage will take place at the Jonesboro Methodist Church in Jonesboro August 20, with the Rev. A. A. McKnight officiating in the double ring ceremony.

Mrs. W. H. Jones, friend of the bride, will serve as her only attendant. John Earl Jimerson, brother of the groom, will serve as best man and the groom's sister, Miss Katherine Jimerson, will light the candles.

Miss Thompson is a graduate of Louisiana Polytechnic Institute of Ruston. Mr. Jimerson is also a graduate of Louisiana Tech.

One plant of the common pigweed produces as many as 117,000 seeds.

Married Recently

Mr. and Mrs. J ohnWilliam McClendon cut their wedding confection following their marriage on July 21, which took place at the First Methodist Church in West Monroe. Mrs. McClendon is the former Miss Patricia Elizabeth Whaley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Shelby L. Whaley.

PATRICIA ELIZABETH WHALEY BRIDE OF JOHN WILLIAM M'CLENDON

The First Methodist Church in West Monroe was the scene Friday, July 21 at four o'clock in the afternoon of the wedding of Miss Patricia Elizabeth Whaley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Shelby L. Whaley, and John William McClendon, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. McClendon.

The Rev. R. H. Staples, pastor, officiated in the impressive double ring ceremony which took place before the altar decorated with baskets of gladioli and fern and candelabra holding slender white tapers.

Mrs. Jack Willis at the organ rendered a program of prenuptial music and accompanied Miss Jane Blanchard who sang "I Love You Truly", and "Because." The traditional wedding marches were used to begin and end the ceremony.

Miss Alma Forde was maid-of-honor and the bride's only attendant. She was gowned in a yellow organdy with matching bandeau. Her bouquet was of majestic daisies tied with yellow satin streamers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in her ankle length wedding dress. The full organza skirt was attached to the bodice of pale blue satin with bias collar. She was wearing matching shoes and mitts. In her hair was a bandeau of flowers in pale blue and she carried a white Bible topped with a single white orchid and tube roses tied with streamers of white and blue satin.

Johnnie Rogers served the groom as best man. Ushers were Bobby Allbritton and Paul Davey.

Mrs. Shelby Whaley, mother of the bride, was wearing a black sheer dress with black accessories. Her corsage was of pink carnations and tube roses. Mrs. McClendon, the groom's mother, was wearing a navy and white voile with a corsage of white carnations and tube roses.

For their wedding trip the bride chose a white suit with blue accessories and a corsage of white orchids. Upon their return they will be at home on Coleman avenue in West Monroe.

The bride is a graduate of Neville High School. The groom graduated from Ouachita Parish High School, Northeast Junior College and served two years in the navy.

NEWS FROM THE PARISH LIBRARY

Miss Frances Flanders, librarian of the Ouachita parish public library has returned from the convention of the American Library Association, which was held in Cleveland, Ohio from July 16 to July 22. Miss Flanders reports that the meetings were most interesting and instructive. One of the most valuable activities of the convention was a public relations workshop conducted on July 16th. Miss Kate Copeland, director of public relations at the Enoch Pratt library in Baltimore gave very practical advice about window exhibits, newspaper publicity and radio publicity. Miss Flanders stated that the information she received that day was worth her trip to Cleveland.

The speakers at the general sessions were brilliant men who had important messages not only for librarians but for the general public. Mr. Brooks Emeny, president of the Foreign Policy Association, was the speaker at the first general session. His topic was "A Marshall Plan of Ideas." He feels that the only hope for this world is for the general public to be informed about world affairs. He placed a large part of the responsibility for this on the librarians of the country. Mr. Luther Evans, librarian of the Library of Congress spoke at the second general session. He traced the history of the Library of Congress and showed how our National Library was much more the library of all the people than were the libraries of foreign countries. At the third general session Mr. S. R. Ranganathan, professor of library science, University of Delhi, Delhi, India and president of the Indian Library Association gave a most moving address. At the last general session Mr. Irving Jacoby, president of the New York film council talked about the subject of films and libraries. A delightful feature of this closing session was a pageant of folk dances given by the different racial groups who live in Cleveland. Many of the costumes had been brought to this country from European homes by the ancestors of the dancers. This was a very colorful and inspiring sight.

At a conference of such a large size it is impossible to attend all the sectional meetings. Miss Flanders chose the ones that she thought would be most helpful in her work. The meetings of the adult education section were especially inspiring. Mrs. Florence Craig, director of adult education at the Cuyahoga County Library stressed the importance of leading our public to read socially significant books. She also urged that we give people books that will help them understand themselves and the world in which they live.

Another interesting meeting was one at which the subject of "What books should we buy for our libraries" was discussed by a four-member panel. The best informed and most valuable speaker on the panel was Miss Esther Johnson, head of the circulation department of the New York Public Library. She said that it was the function of the public library to fill the expressed and unexpressed need of the public. She stressed the fact that the library is a storehouse of ideals. Probably the most delightful speaker whom Miss Flanders heard was Mrs. May Hill Arbuthnot who spoke on the subject of "Children's reading in today's world." Mrs. Arbuthnot is an associate professor at Western Reserve University and the author of "Children and Books". She said in part: "Children of this generation are not growing up in either a secure world or a happy one. There are enough stories in the papers of neglected and delinquent children to make all Americans cringe. Our job as librarians is to give our children something to live for and something to grow on. Our job is to find strong books that will be a record of the fact that life is good."

The last day of the conference was spent in a tour to Malabar Farm, the home of Louis Bromfield. This farm is a model of progressive farming. Mr. Bromfield, who had made his fame as a novelist before he moved to this farm, has in the last few years devoted all his energies to farming and to writing books about his experiences. Mr. Bromfield took over three run-down farms in central Ohio and has brought them back to life. His soil erosion factor is zero. He now feeds 200 cattle on an area that formerly fed 30. He is an interesting man and has a good understanding of the world food situation. His books on his farming experiences are available at the Ouachita Parish Public Library and make most interesting reading. They are "Pleasant Valley"; "Out of the Earth" and "Malabar Farm." Miss Flanders feels that her trip was a great inspiration to her from a professional viewpoint.

Mrs. Russell Kynoch Entertains At Bayou DeSiard Country Club

Luncheon Honors Mrs. Bernard Webb, Mrs. Jack Howe, And Mrs. John R. Miller

Mrs. Russell Kynoch was recent hostess to the Bayou DeSiard Country Club when she entertained at luncheon complimentary to Mrs. Bernard Webb of St. Louis, Missouri, the former Miss Mary Hayward; Mrs. Jack Howe of Houston, Texas, the former Miss Libby Haynes, and Mrs. John Richard Miller of Brewerton, Alabama, who will be remembered as Miss Virginia Kersh.

MRS. J. L. DOLLAR, RECENT BRIDE, FETED AT MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER

Mrs. J. L. Dollar, who until her recent marriage was Miss Jo Ann Roberts, was delightfully entertained with a miscellaneous shower in the home of Mrs. A. J. Speer, Jr. with Mrs. J. W. Huitt, co-hostess.

The lace covered table in the dining room was very attractive with a white gladioli and tube rose arrangement for its central decor. Other arrangements of pink and white specimen zinnias were placed at vantage points throughout the reception rooms. Pink and white frosted punch was served from the table. Further carrying out the color scheme were pink and white embossed miniature wedding cakes.

Clever games were played and awards were received by Mrs. Cliff McAmis, Mrs. R. H. Dollar and Mrs. C. W. Dodgen. Many beautiful and useful gifts were presented to the honoree.

Those enjoying the occasion with the honoree were her mother, Mrs. T. H. Roberts, Mrs. R. H. Dollar, Mrs. P. J. Newman, Mrs. Cliff McAmis, Mrs. Cecil C. Johnson, Jr. Mrs. E. T. Watson, Mrs. L. M. Posey, Mrs. H. L. Moore, Mrs. J. A. Dollar, Mrs. C. W. Dodgen, Mrs. J. W. Reynolds, Mrs. B. R. Roe, Mrs. C. E. Bedwell, Mrs. W. L. Perce, Mrs. H. V. Reitzell, Mrs. M. R. Hausherr, and the hosts, Mrs. A. J. Speer, Jr. and Mrs. J. W. Huitt.

Lambert Loses His Fiancee To Flynn

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Sammy Lambert, New York producer who thought he was Patrice Wymore's fiance, still has hopes he can win her back from Movie Hero Errol Flynn.

Flynn's engagement to the 21-year-old Miss Wymore was announced yesterday, but:

"The ball game isn't won until the last pitch," the 40-year-old Lambert told reporters.

He said that some months ago he had taken a new apartment which he expected to share with the red-haired dancer as his bride on her return from Hollywood.

This dream was shattered by a 4 a.m. phone call from Patrice in Hollywood.

"Sorry," she told Lambert, 'but I am going to marry Errol Flynn."

Lambert was stunned.

"People said I was a fool to let her go to Hollywood," he commented ruefully as he gazed at a sweater-girl photo of Patrice. "I've heard those things happened there. I never believed it until now."

TIRES NEVER TOUCH

AKRON, O.,—(AP)—The new C-124 four engined Globemaster II, largest cargo and troop transport now in production for the U. S. air force, uses four six-inch tires—but they never touch the ground. The tires serve as driving wheels for an electric cargo elevator hoist.

Sweeper Finds $1,000 In Trash

BATON ROUGE, La., Aug. 5.—(AP)—Suppose you were sweeping up a bank and saw a bundle of $20 bills mixed up with the waste paper on the floor.

Police say it happened to Bernon Lee Otis, 24-year-old porter in a Baton Rouge bank, two months ago and that Otis pocketed the bills $1,000 worth.

Detectives E. J. Dominguez and R. S. Trigg arrested Otis yesterday and charged him with theft. They said they were led to the man by his heavy spending—$500 down on an automobile, $200 for food and clothes, the rest "just good times away."

No cash was recovered.

Celebrates Seventh Birthday

John Long Celebrates Seventh Birthday

John Long, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Long, recently celebrated his seventh birthday at the home of his parents in West Monroe.

During the afternoon cowboy hats, flags and merry-makers in a western theme were presented to the children. Delicious hot dogs, potato salad and cold drinks were served after several games were played.

SCOUTS TOURING INTO SALT MINE

Monroe Lions Club Sponsor Of Expedition Conducted At Winnfield

Boy Scouts of Troop 32, sponsored by the Monroe Lions Club, made a tour to Winnfield, La., Thursday to visit the Carey salt mine. Twenty-one Scouts and several parents were in the tour group.

At the mine, which is located a few miles from Winnfield, members of the troop were taken over 800 feet below the ground by elevator and then guided throughout the mine. Here they learned all about the actual mining and other processing of the salt. This was very interesting and educational as most of the scouts had never been in a mine before.

After visiting the salt mine, the scouts went to nearby Gum Springs recreation area where they enjoyed a cool swim and prepared a very tasty lunch. After lunch the group began its trip back to Monroe. Some of the scouts stopped on the return trip to visit one of the national forest fire towers.

Ancestor of the American celery is a wild plant of Europe, which grows in swamps from Sewden southward to Africa.

JUNIOR CHARITY LEAGUE MEMBERS PLAN 'WHITE ELEPHANT' SALE

Members of the Monroe Junior Charity League are completing arrangements for their yearly project to raise money for their many charities to under privileged children under twelve years of age in this community. This year they have borrowed an idea from the French and are having a gigantic "white elephant" sale that will be called the Flea Market. In Paris the Flea Market is world - renowned as a place where the sale of former elegancies of French homes have made it a collectors paradise. In the same manner the members of the Junior League, with the cooperation of the people of the twin cities, plan to have such a sale for two days this month. Everyone is being asked to call a league member, or to bring any items from their homes that they no longer need to this sale. The place of sale will be announced later.

The entire membership of the Monroe Junior Charity League will be working to make this sale a success. Committees and chairmen of this project are: General finance chairman, Mrs. Durwood Griffin assisted by Mrs. Allen Turpin; building chairman, Mrs. Bailey Grant assisted by Mrs. Frank Smith and Mrs. Richard Pierce; publicity, radio chairman, Mrs. Walter Schubert; newspaper chairman, Mrs. Credille Calhoun assisted by Miss Martha Roddey; collecting items for sale, chairman, Mrs. Francis Barnett assisted by Mrs. Jack Knowles, Mrs. Aileen Guthrie, Mrs. Edgar Hemphill, Mrs. J. Arthur Smith, Jr., and Miss Jo Ann Biedenharn; marking items for sale, chairman, Mrs. Floyd Stone, Jr. assisted by Mrs. Merton Alington, Mrs. Cyril Yancey, Mrs. Charles Searcy, and Miss Josephine McCranie.

Sales personel, chairman, Mrs. Allen Turpin assisted by Mrs. Robert Easterling, and Mrs. Edwin Rowan; calling life members, chairman, Miss Florence Fluker assisted by Miss Martha Roddey, Miss Bennie Fluker, Miss Sue Dickard, Miss Rosalie Riley, Mrs. Thomas May, Mrs. Winnie Cole and Mrs. Gilbert Faulk; cashiers, chairman, Mrs. James Murphy assisted by Mrs. C. G. Pearce, Jr., Mrs. Hoy Anders and Mrs. L. J. McStravick; sweet shop, chairman, Mrs. Jim Cox assisted by Mrs. Leo Terzia, Jr. and Mrs. William Husted, Jr.; contacting merchants for shopworn items, chairman, Mrs. Richard Bradley assisted by Mrs. Amos Shelton, Mrs. Walter Schubert, and Mrs. C. P. Gray, Jr.

This sale will be held all day on August 25 and 26.

Rosa Penselle Is Seeking Divorce

BALTIMORE, Aug. 5. — (AP) — Former Opera Star Rosa Ponselle testified yesterday "It was rather a shock" when her husband announced in front of dinner guests:

"Rosa, I have very unpleasant news for you. I have apparently failed you as a husband and as of 6:20 I am leaving you."

"And," said one of the dinner guests, "at 6:20, he walked out."

The soprano is seeking an absolute divorce from Carle A. Jackson, son of a former Baltimore mayor, and the right to resume her maiden name. She charges desertion.

There was no immediate decision on her request. A decree cannot be granted until Aug. 17, when her complaint will have been on file 30 days.

Miss Ponselle, who joined the Metropolitan Opera in 1918, quit her singing career in 1936 when she and Jackson were married in New York. At that time she described him as her "prince charming." There were no children.

Hatchery Is Suing Telephone Company

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 5.—(AP)—A Miami chicken hatchery has sued Southern Bell Telephone Company for $150,021 damages in circuit court for allegedly omitting its name from the telephone directory.

Tropical Hatcheries, Inc., said in the suit filed yesterday that most of its business — exporting baby chicks to South America—has come through advertising in the classified section of the phone book.

Failure to get it, the suit contends, has cost the hatchery "large sums of money" and brought "extreme setbacks in its export business.

The suit says the hatchery president, W. A. Albrecht, ordered directory advertising for the July, 1949, issue of the directory and got it, but that following directories omitted the hatchery from both the classified and alphabetical listings.

No Smiles Shown By U. S. Wounded

MOBILE, Ala., Aug. 5.—(AP)—The wounded of the Korean war are a young looking lot.

Twenty-three were flown here yesterday.

Snatched in a breathless rush from the fury of combat, safe under a soft southern sky, they neither laughed, nor cried, nor smiled.

They looked straight ahead and said nothing as they were lowered from a giant C-74 mercy plane.

They were still silent as they were placed in waiting ambulances and carried away to Brookley air force base hospital.

There they were fed and made comfortable. They are on the way to hospitals near their homes.

Most of the soldiers had suffered arm or leg wounds.

The Globemaster transport picked up 62 wounded who had been brought across the Pacific to San Francisco. Thirty-nine others were discharged at Westover air force base Mass.

The huge plane can carry 112 litter patients at a time.

C-54s of the newly formed 1735th air evacuation squadron at Mobile were scheduled to take the men to hospitals near Lowery Field, Colo., Shepard Field, Tex., and Brooks Field, Tex.

Included among the wounded brought here were:

Pfc. C. T. Wainwright, Hammond, La.; Pfc. B. M. Start, Hillsboro, Tenn.; Cpl. J. Phillips, New Orleans.

Celebrates Seventh Birthday

John Long Celebrates Seventh Birthday

John Long, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Long, recently celebrated his seventh birthday at the home of his parents in West Monroe.

During the afternoon cowboy hats, flags and merry-makers in a western theme were presented to the children. Delicious hot dogs, potato salad and cold drinks were served after several games were played.

SCOUTS TOURING INTO SALT MINE

Monroe Lions Club Sponsor Of Expedition Conducted At Winnfield

Boy Scouts of Troop 32, sponsored by the Monroe Lions Club, made a tour to Winnfield, La., Thursday to visit the Carey salt mine. Twenty-one Scouts and several parents were in the tour group.

At the mine, which is located a few miles from Winnfield, members of the troop were taken over 800 feet below the ground by elevator and then guided throughout the mine. Here they learned all about the actual mining and other processing of the salt. This was very interesting and educational as most of the scouts had never been in a mine before.

After visiting the salt mine, the scouts went to nearby Gum Springs recreation area where they enjoyed a cool swim and prepared a very tasty lunch. After lunch the group began its trip back to Monroe. Some of the scouts stopped on the return trip to visit one of the national forest fire towers.

Ancestor of the American celery is a wild plant of Europe, which grows in swamps from Sewden southward to Africa.

Members of the Monroe Junior Charity League are completing arrangements for their yearly project to raise money for their many charities to under privileged children under twelve years of age in this community. This year they have borrowed an idea from the French and are having a gigantic "white elephant" sale that will be called the Flea Market. In Paris the Flea Market is world - renowned as a place where the sale of former elegancies of French homes have made it a collectors paradise. In the same manner the members of the Junior League, with the cooperation of the people of the twin cities, plan to have such a sale for two days this month. Everyone is being asked to call a league member, or to bring any items from their homes that they no longer need to this sale. The place of sale will be announced later.

The entire membership of the Monroe Junior Charity League will be working to make this sale a success. Committees and chairmen of this project are: General finance chairman, Mrs. Durwood Griffin assisted by Mrs. Allen Turpin; building chairman, Mrs. Bailey Grant assisted by Mrs. Frank Smith and Mrs. Richard Pierce; publicity, radio chairman, Mrs. Walter Schubert; newspaper chairman, Mrs. Credille Calhoun assisted by Miss Martha Roddey; collecting items for sale, chairman, Mrs. Francis Barnett assisted by Mrs. Jack Knowles, Mrs. Aileen Guthrie, Mrs. Edgar Hemphill, Mrs. J. Arthur Smith, Jr., and Miss Jo Ann Biedenharn; marking items for sale, chairman, Mrs. Floyd Stone, Jr. assisted by Mrs. Merton Alington, Mrs. Cyril Yancey, Mrs. Charles Searcy, and Miss Josephine McCranie.

Sales personel, chairman, Mrs. Allen Turpin assisted by Mrs. Robert Easterling, and Mrs. Edwin Rowan; calling life members, chairman, Miss Florence Fluker assisted by Miss Martha Roddey, Miss Bennie Fluker, Miss Sue Dickard, Miss Rosalie Riley, Mrs. Thomas May, Mrs. Winnie Cole and Mrs. Gilbert Faulk; cashiers, chairman, Mrs. James Murphy assisted by Mrs. C. P. Gray, Jr.

This sale will be held all day on August 25 and 26.

Rosa Penselle Is Seeking Divorce

BALTIMORE, Aug. 5. — (AP) — Former Opera Star Rosa Ponselle testified yesterday "It was rather a shock" when her husband announced in front of dinner guests:

"Rosa, I have very unpleasant news for you. I have apparently failed you as a husband and as of 6:20 I am leaving you."

The soprano is seeking an absolute divorce from Carle A. Jackson, son of a former Baltimore mayor, and the right to resume her maiden name. She charges desertion.

There was no immediate decision on her request. A decree cannot be granted until Aug. 17, when her complaint will have been on file 30 days.

Miss Ponselle, who joined the Metropolitan Opera in 1918, quit her singing career in 1936 when she and Jackson were married in New York. At that time she described him as her "prince charming." There were no children.

CUT WEDDING CAKE

WEDDING CEREMONY UNITES MISS GLORIA HARE AND ALAN JONES

At a ceremony characterized by simple dignity and beauty, Miss Gloria Kathryn Hare, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Nelson Hare, of Swartz exchanged marriage vows with Mr. Alan Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Jones of Jonesboro. The marriage was solemnized at 7 o'clock in the evening, July 8, in the home of the bride's parents, the Rev. Raymond B. Crotts, pastor of the Swartz Baptist Church officiating.

The bridal couple exchanged the vows of the impressive double ring service in the living room which was beautifully decorated with blush-pink rosebuds, pink gladioli interspersed with maiden hair fern, and English ivy.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in pale pink organdy with blue rosebuds intertwined at the waist line. Her accessories were of beige and pink. The bridal bouquet was a colonial creation of white gladioli.

Miss Mamie Dumas, friend of the bride was her maid of honor, and the bride's only attendant. She wore a blue organdy dress, perfect replica of the brides dress. Her accessories were of black and white. She wore a corsage of white carnations.

Mr. Gregory Hare, cousin of the bride, served the groom as best man.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held. The brides table was covered in a cloth of crocheted lace, and was centered with the beautifully embossed wedding cake, and decorated punch bowl. Miss Barbara Ann Burney served the brides cake, while Mrs. Samuel Hixon, Jr., and Mrs. Lavelle Hart presided at the punch bowl.

The bride is a graduate of Ouachita Parish High School and attended Northeast Junior College. Mr. Jones served overseas in the second world war.

The couple will be at home at 113 Height street, West Monroe.

PLANNING GROUP BEING APPOINTED

Tech's Acting President Names Special Committee To Aid Nationally

RUSTON, Aug. 5—(Special)—In cooperation with a request from the federal security agency, office of education, a special committee of faculty members at Louisiana Tech has been appointed by R. L. Ropp, acting president, to work on the development of projects at the college "that conceivably might be of use in the present and current national effort."

Roy T. Sessums, dean of the School of Engineering, was appointed chairman of the group, and Calvin T. Watts, associate professor of civil engineering, was named vice-chairman.

Other members include Burton R. Risinger, dean of the School of Business Administration and Economics; Mrs. Alice M. Graham, dean of the School of Home Economics; Dr. H. E. Ruff, Jr., head of the physics department; Dr. W. J. Bordelon, associate professor of education; Dr. John A. Moore, associate professor of botany; E. M. Shirley, professor of mathematics; and H. J. Smolinski, associate professor of accounting.

In his letter of appointment President Ropp said, "You are hereby appointed a member of a special planning committee, the purpose of which is to make a critical review of the experiences of the institution during the period of 1941-1946 and to work on the development of projects at the college that conceivably might be of use in the present and current national effort."

COBRA CAUGHT

SINGAPORE—(AP)—Three Chinese greenkeepers caught a live 15-foot snake they took for a python. While one seized it by the neck, the other two held the tail and body. It turned out to be a King Cobra, one of the largest to be caught on the island, according to museum authorities.

CUT WEDDING CAKE

At a ceremony characterized by simple dignity and beauty, Miss Gloria Kathryn Hare, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Nelson Hare, of Swartz exchanged marriage vows with Mr. Alan Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Jones of Jonesboro. The marriage was solemnized at 7 o'clock in the evening, July 8, in the home of the bride's parents, the Rev. Raymond B. Crotts, pastor of the Swartz Baptist Church officiating.

The bridal couple exchanged the vows of the impressive double ring service in the living room which was beautifully decorated with blush-pink rosebuds, pink gladioli interspersed with maiden hair fern, and English ivy.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in pale pink organdy with blue rosebuds intertwined at the waist line. Her accessories were of beige and pink. The bridal bouquet was a colonial creation of white gladioli.

Miss Mamie Dumas, friend of the bride was her maid of honor, and the bride's only attendant. She wore a blue organdy dress, perfect replica of the brides dress. Her accessories were of black and white. She wore a corsage of white carnations.

Mr. Gregory Hare, cousin of the bride, served the groom as best man.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held. The brides table was covered in a cloth of crocheted lace, and was centered with the beautifully embossed wedding cake, and decorated punch bowl. Miss Barbara Ann Burney served the brides cake, while Mrs. Samuel Hixon, Jr., and Mrs. Lavelle Hart presided at the punch bowl.

The bride is a graduate of Ouachita Parish High School and attended Northeast Junior College. Mr. Jones served overseas in the second world war.

The couple will be at home at 113 Height street, West Monroe.

Tech's Acting President Names Special Committee To Aid Nationally

RUSTON, Aug. 5—(Special)—In cooperation with a request from the federal security agency, office of education, a special committee of faculty members at Louisiana Tech has been appointed by R. L. Ropp, acting president, to work on the development of projects at the college "that conceivably might be of use in the present and current national effort."

Roy T. Sessums, dean of the School of Engineering, was appointed chairman of the group, and Calvin T. Watts, associate professor of civil engineering, was named vice-chairman.

Other members include Burton R. Risinger, dean of the School of Business Administration and Economics; Mrs. Alice M. Graham, dean of the School of Home Economics; Dr. H. E. Ruff, Jr., head of the physics department; Dr. W. J. Bordelon, associate professor of education; Dr. John A. Moore, associate professor of botany; E. M. Shirley, professor of mathematics; and H. J. Smolinski, associate professor of accounting.

In his letter of appointment President Ropp said, "You are hereby appointed a member of a special planning committee, the purpose of which is to make a critical review of the experiences of the institution during the period of 1941-1946 and to work on the development of projects at the college that conceivably might be of use in the present and current national effort."

COBRA CAUGHT

SINGAPORE—(AP)—Three Chinese greenkeepers caught a live 15-foot snake they took for a python. While one seized it by the neck, the other two held the tail and body. It turned out to be a King Cobra, one of the largest to be caught on the island, according to museum authorities.

WILL BE SEPTEMBER BRIDE

Miss Helen Grace Oliphant of Baton Rouge, whose engagement and approaching marriage to Gerald Philip Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Johnson of Lecompte, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Coy L. Oliphant of Newellton. The wedding will be solemnized at the Newellton Union Church at three o'clock September 3.

TALLULAH

Miss Mary Alice Rogillio, the bride-elect of Jimmy Wall was complimented with a delightful tea-shower given by Mrs. Whit Erwin and Miss Virginia Erwin at their home on Elm street.

Receiving with the honoree who were a lace trimmed nylon print afternoon dress with corsage of carnations and tube roses, were her mother, Mrs. J. W. Rogillio in yellow sheer with a gladioli corsage and Mrs. J. A. Wall, the groom-elect's mother in black bemburg with white gladioli, and the hostesses. Mrs Erwin's dress was gray and she wore pink roses and Miss Erwin's was blue organdy with which she wore pink asters.

A crystal bowl of painted daisies and salvia, flanked by white tapers in crystal candelabra formed the centerpiece for the refreshment table with its homemade cover of ecru linen. Alternating at the punch bowl were Mrs. James Ellis, Jr., in white organza with blue asters and Miss Joyce Anderson in sies was Mrs. Childress Armstrong blue print with matching corsage of asters. Assisting in courte- of Delhi in blue with which she wore red roses.

Miss Billye Davis and Mrs. Dick Burnside presided at the bride's book for registration of the guests. The bride-elect was the recipient of many beautiful gifts which were attractively displayed in the reception rooms, among them silver in her chosen pattern presented by the hostesses.

A large number of friends called including the following out of town guests: Miss Katherine Lambert, Mrs. "Bubba" Cutler, Mrs. Childress Armstrong, Mrs. Innis Wood, Miss Madge McEachan, Mrs. Charles Wyly, Miss Jeanne Knight, Mrs. Coates, Miss Rowena Ramage, Mrs. Nell Williamson, Mrs. Malcolm Rogillio, Mrs. A. DE MOLAYS TO MEET SUNDAY

Session Called For West Monroe Temple This Afternoon At 2:30 O'Clock

A special meeting of Ouachita Chapter, Order of DeMolay, has been called for this afternoon, opening promptly at 2:30 o'clock, in West Monroe Masonic Temple. Brother Bob Shirley, deputy grand master councilor of the state of Louisiana for the northern district, of Shreveport, and other state officers will pay their official visit. All members are urged to attend this meeting.

Those members who have been away to various colleges and universities are especially urged to attend this meeting. All master Masons are invited. The meeting will not last too long, and immediately following the close of the chapter, a social hour will be held when delicious refreshments will be served. You that have not enjoyed the cool comfort of the beautiful air-conditioned Masonic Temple of West Monroe have missed a real treat. All DeMolay and master Masons are urged to attend.

At a regular meeting of Ouachita Chapter, held Wednesday night, August 2, the regular election of officers for the ensuing six months term was held and resulted in the following: Tommy Trawick as master councilor; Don Pendarvis as senior councilor and Raymond Beasley as junior councilor. A public installation will be held in the near future. Tom D. Wafer, Jr., is the outgoing master councilor.

REFUGEE CHALLENGED

KARACHI, Pakistan —(AP)— Pakistan contends that 500,000 Moslem refugees from Kashmir who now live in Pakistan should be permitted to vote in the proposed plebiscite on Kashmir's future. Officials say the refugees cannot return to Kashmir because conditions have not returned to normal. Therefore, they say, their votes should be collected in Pakistan.

DE MOLAYS TO MEET SUNDAY

Session Called For West Monroe Temple This Afternoon At 2:30 O'Clock

A special meeting of Ouachita Chapter, Order of DeMolay, has been called for this afternoon, opening promptly at 2:30 o'clock, in West Monroe Masonic Temple. Brother Bob Shirley, deputy grand master councilor of the state of Louisiana for the northern district, of Shreveport, and other state officers will pay their official visit. All members are urged to attend this meeting.

Those members who have been away to various colleges and universities are especially urged to attend this meeting. All master Masons are invited. The meeting will not last too long, and immediately following the close of the chapter, a social hour will be held when delicious refreshments will be served. You that have not enjoyed the cool comfort of the beautiful air-conditioned Masonic Temple of West Monroe have missed a real treat. All DeMolay and master Masons are urged to attend.

At a regular meeting of Ouachita Chapter, held Wednesday night, August 2, the regular election of officers for the ensuing six months term was held and resulted in the following: Tommy Trawick as master councilor; Don Pendarvis as senior councilor and Raymond Beasley as junior councilor. A public installation will be held in the near future. Tom D. Wafer, Jr., is the outgoing master councilor.

REFUGEE CHALLENGED

KARACHI, Pakistan —(AP)— Pakistan contends that 500,000 Moslem refugees from Kashmir who now live in Pakistan should be permitted to vote in the proposed plebiscite on Kashmir's future. Officials say the refugees cannot return to Kashmir because conditions have not returned to normal. Therefore, they say, their votes should be collected in Pakistan.

Announcement

This is to notify the public that Owen Johnson and William B. Ragland, Jr., have opened new offices for the general practice of law at Rooms 310-312 Heninger Building, formerly the Central Savings Bank Building.

Weekly activities:
Tuesday, W. M. U., 2:30 (Sunbeams, 2:30) G. A.'s, 3:30
Wednesday, Officers and teachers meeting, 7:00; midweek prayer service, 7:45 (I Thess. 5); choir practice, 8:45.

We extend a cordial invitation to all to worship with us this Lord's day. To many people, church life is the most important activity of all and surely is missed when they cannot attend services on Sunday. We pray that many more will join those earnest Christians.

This Sunday, Rev. Olin Horman of the First Church, Independence, La., will preach at both services. The Emmanuel pastor urges every member to be present, and for all visitors possible to hear this great man of God. Rev. Horman comes to this city with a good reputation of several other ministers who have known him and worked with him in the past — he is an earnest devout and courageous minister and preaches the plain, simple New Testament truths.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST SCIENTIST
224 Auburn Ave.

"Spirit" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, August 6, 1950.

The Golden Text is: "The fruit of the spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance; against such there is no law". (Gal. 5:22, 23).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Whither shall I go from thy spirit? Or whither shall I flee from thy presence." (Ps. 139:7).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "God is infinite, the only life, substance, spirit, or soul, the only intelligence of the universe, including man". (P. 330).

THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH OF MONROE
Grammont at Catalpa

Ernest Duncan Holloway, Minister.

The congregation functioning through the session, the elders of the church, has granting the minister a leave of absence from his task for the month of August. And during this month there will be no Wednesday or Sunday evening worship services. The services of the Sabbath will be confined to the Sabbath school, the morning worship and the vespers of the youth of the church.

The supply pastor and preacher is Robert Freeman, a rising senior, Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, Virginia. He has been with us during June and July, working at the chapels. He will preach each Sabbath morning at the eleven o'clock hour worship. We bespeak for him a large hearing, and the prayers of God's people.

A hearty welcome awaits you at all hours of worship.

Mrs. Griggs And Daughters Hurt

Word was received here Saturday of an auto accident near Morgan City, Friday, in which Mrs. S. C. Griggs, of Shreveport and two daughters were rather badly injured and are now in a hospital there.

The daughters, both of whom had taught school at St. Matthew's here, are Miss Virginia Griggs and Miss Mary Christiana Griggs.

Bible Comments
By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

The Old Testament books of Ezra and Nehemiah tell the story of two men of vision and courage who led an exiled people from Babylon back to the Jewish homeland. It is also the story of the rebuilding of Jerusalem.

The great story has a present-day aspect for Jews once more are seeking to fulfill their age-long dream of living in the historic Holy Land. In that ancient time many Jews remained in Babylon, where they had established roots in their exile, and gained considerable prosperity. There they built so strong a Babylonian Judaism that it lasted until the 11th century A. D.

Similarly many Jews of today will continue to make their contribution to the lands in which they are so well established. But the homing instinct is strong in some, and thousands of displaced persons still dream of finding a secure place in a Promised Land.

Let me recall briefly the events leading up to the life and work of Ezra and Nehemiah. The northern kingdom of Israel was established after Solomon's death, when 10 tribes rebelled under Jeroboam.

One hundred years later the armies of Babylon overwhelmed the southern kingdom of Judah and carried most of the people to exile in Babylon. A vivid account of that exilement is to be found in Psalm 137.

The best things in life are sometimes valued only after they are lost and the Israelites in exile recounted the sins of the past and their failure to heed God's command and call.

When King Artaxerxes inquired as to the cause of the evident sadness of his cupbearer, Nehemiah, he found this devout Jew troubled over the desolate state of Jerusalem. The king commissioned Nehemiah governor, entrusting him with power to lead an expedition there.

Nehemiah was a soldier, a man of action, and a man of spiritual devotion as well. The great spiritual leader in the movement of restoration, however, was Ezra.

Ezra, a revivalist at heart, championed the rediscovery of the "Law of the Lord." Through public readings of the Law and organized worship in the Holy City, Ezra launched a successful movement against the idolatry in certain high places.

It is unfortunate that the detailed achievements of Ezra and Nehemiah have not been recorded in a chronologically clear order. Through the centuries scholars have found the two books difficult to read because of vague references to time and circumstance.

It is my opinion, however, that the first expedition failed. I believe the later work of Nehemiah made reconstruction possible, as well as the religious revival and the national restoration.

Minor details, though, are unimportant beside the actual achievments of these great leaders, who accomplished their purpose in spite of delays, enemies, and countless frustrations. The devotion of Ezra and the courage of efficient Nehemiah, triumphing in a great era of Jewish history, combine to form an inspiring story.

THE NEW CONSTITUTION

Monroe, La.
Aug. 4, 1950.

To the Editor:

I would like to submit the following statement to the people of Ouachita parish:

The regular bi-annual session of the Louisiana legislature for 1950, adopted a resolution to be submitted to a vote of the people this fall, as to whether or not we shall have a constitutional convention to be held next winter for the purpose of revising and rewriting the constitution of this state.

That our constitution badly needs revision is admitted by practically everyone; the only questions being as to when it should be done, how its membership shall be selected and whether the new constitution shall be ratified by the people. More recently Governor Long has announced that he would call a special session soon to recast the membership of that convention. It is my understanding that the membership of the convention will comprise about 140-150 members, to be chosen as follows:

(a) 100 members to be elected, as are the present membership of the house of representatives of the state legislature. That means we shall elect two (2) members from Ouachita parish.

(b) The governor will appoint some fifteen (15) members at large:

(c) Certain designated public officials will be members ex-officio.

(d) The Louisiana Law Institute and the supreme court will name some members.

(e) Four living ex-governors may be members.

The only objections which have come to my knowledge to the holding of this convention at this time are three:

(1) That these times are not normal; and,

(2) That according to the way the convention call has set up its membership (ex-officio members and the governor's appointees) Governor Earl Long will have "control" or will exercise too much influence in the convention.

(3) The present call does not contemplate submitting the new constitution to the people for ratification after the convention.

Personally I do not attach very much importance to any of those suggestions. "Times" are rarely, if ever, "normal". I see no reason why a sound constitution cannot be written by sincere, honorable and right thinking men now as well as at any other time in the foreseeable future.

Governor Long has stated that he has no desire to dominate such a convention; that he will appoint only good solid citizens of outstanding ability. If the new constitution is to be confined to basic fundamentals, omitting most if not all legislative details—as I think it should—there would seem to be little, if anything, any governor would want to "control" or "influence". I personally believe in Governor Long's integrity and sincerity in that regard.

I understand that there is some objection to having elected department heads as ex-officio members of the convention, since their departments may become involved. After all they are elected officials mostly and, in any event, there might be some advantage in having them there as they are thoroughly familiar with those departments and their functioning. That, at best, is a two-edged concept. I do not believe that those elected officials or departmental heads would ignore the best interests of the state in such an important matter where factional politics has no proper place.

As to submitting the new constitution to the people for ratification, there are substantial arguments both ways. The 1921 constitution was not submitted; others have been submitted. I personally do not believe it matters as much as some contend; because if submitted few persons will study it out sufficiently to enable them to pass upon it. To submit it might afford organized minority groups an opportunity to indulge in misleading propaganda. On the other hand, I believe that the people can be trusted to do the right thing and it might be an additional safeguard.

However, those are issues to be determined by the people in deciding by their vote, whether or not to hold the convention at all. I shall be personally content with their decision. I expect to vote to hold the convention. I shall have no quarrel with those who vote otherwise.

If the convention is voted, I very much desire to become a member of it; to be elected from my home parish.

I should like to be able to say to you that I am being compelled by a great number of friends to offer myself as a candidate as one (1) of the members of the constitutional convention from Ouachita parish. That, however, would not be true. There have been some such suggestions but my desire and ambition to become a member of the constitutional convention, of held, is primarily my own idea and is based upon the following considerations:

First: I deem myself qualified because:

(1) I am an experienced practicing lawyer;

(2) As a member of the Louisiana Law Institute and of the group thereof which was directed so to do by the legislature, I have spent considerable time and effort during the past several years (at considerable personal expense and no pay) in the preparation of a project for a new constitution; which project and the vast amount of research data developed in that undertaking will be made available for consideration as the convention desires to afford it. No completed constitution will be presented for adoption as were the recently enacted revised statutes. Our work will be offered as a guide and as a suggestion, including alternative suggestion upon disputed issues.

(3) For the past six (6) years I have served (without pay) as a member of the Louisiana revenue code commission, which held over 200 public hearings, has made exhaustive investigations, studies and submitted several printed reports to the legislature, relative to the tax problems and fiscal policies of Louisiana. Many of the recommendations of our commission have been already enacted into law; other proposed taxes it disapproved have been rejected by the legislature; and the revenue code compiled by it was recently adopted as a part of the revised statue of 1950.

Second: I frankly admit a somewhat sentimental reason. I would take great pride in standing, as it were, in the shoes of my revered father, who was an active member of the constitutional convention of 1898. Also my kinsman, then law partner and respected lifelong friend, the late Allen Sholars, was a member of the constitutional convention of 1921; with whom I spent considerable time and did considerable work at that convention.

Third: I have never been and never intend or desire to be a candidate for remunerative public office. My activity at legislative sessions for many years in behalf of private clients and some public affairs has given me a knowledge and insight into many of the practical problems which must be determined by the next constitutional convention.

Fourth: I feel that the above experience places me in a position to be of real service to my state and to all of its people in the drafting of a new constitution for Louisiana, where I have resided for the greater part of my life.

Fifth: If I should become a member of the 1951 constitutional convention my sole aim would be to serve the best interest of this state and of all of its people and not of any particular class, group or faction.

Sixth: I believe the new constitution should be much shorter, more basic, general and flexable in concept than is the present; without so much, if any, of legislative matter it now contains. I think it should be more difficult to amend and of such a character that the present absurd method of numerous amendments every two years would be unnecessary and uncalled for; that the importance of the legislature as a proper agency of a Democratic government should be recognized and practically effected with a minimum of necessary restraint.

I believe many defects in the existing processes need improvement to better effect the will of the people, which should always control. I do not believe that our constitutior should be, as it now is, a "burial ground" for local issues which can and should be best determined in the locality affected. I think our system of public assistance contains a number of inequities and inefficiencies which should be carefully studied for possible and practical revision.

I think serious consideration should be given to basic future fiscal policies and the expenditure of public funds; to our system of public education ;to municipal affairs; to the multiplication and limitation of taxation and the conservation of our natural resources.

As a member of the convention I would consult and give every consideration to the views and wishes of my home people whom I ask to send me there.

My purpose in making this early and candid public statement is to put myself on record. If the convention is approved by the people this fall I shall have more to say and in greater detail, but I shall not undertake to make the usual campaign as for a political office.

There is no profit or personal gain involved, instead, much hard work will be required. I feel sincerely that such an office should seek a competent man rather than be sought as are ordinary public offices. If the people of my home parish desire that I serve them in this capacity I am not only willing but, for the reasons stated, frankly anxious to do so. If my home people do not wish my services, however, I shall not seek to over-persuade them or hold any resentment against anyone on that account. I merely now desire that you be fully advised. I request your consideration.

Respectfully,
Fred G. Hudson, Jr.

Lake Providence Plans Affair To Be Held On Thursday Night

James R. Wallace has announced that Voiture No. 1396 of Lake Providence will hold an initiation at 7 p.m. August 10 at the Legion Home there.

Voiture No. 1396 has just recently been organized and this will be the first members they have taken in since they received their charter.

Being newly organized they have requested the assistance of Voiture No. 168 in putting on the initiation so that the Monroe wrecking crew under the leadership of Chef de Gare Zeagler will go over to Lake Providence to put on the initiation.

Chef de Gare Wallace advises they will have about six or eight to be initiated including Sheriff Long and Post Commander John Markey. The Monroe Voiture also expects to have three or four candidates to initiate at the same time.

The Lake Providence Voiture has extended an invitation to the members of Voiture No. 168 to come over and join with them in a big evening and promise to have plenty of good food to satisfy all.

Voiture No. 168 was signally honored by the state convention of the Forty and Eight recently in that Chef de Gare Zeagler was elected grande garde de la porte and Sam Rubin was endorsed for the office of sous chef chemin de fer.

Chef de Gare Zeagler requests that all of those from Voiture No. 168 contemplating going to Lake Providence to please notify him so that he in turn can notify the Lake Providence Voiture of how many visitors to expect.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST SCIENTIST
224 Auburn Ave.

"Spirit" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, August 6, 1950.

The Golden Text is: "The fruit of the spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance; against such there is no law". (Fal. 5:22, 23).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Whither shall I go from thy spirit? Or whither shall I flee from thy presence." (Ps. 139:7).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "God is infinite, the only life, substance, spirit, or soul, the only intelligence of the universe, including man". (P. 330).

THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH OF MONROE
Grammont at Catalpa

Ernest Duncan Holloway, Minister.

The congregation functioning through the session, the elders of the church, has granting the minister a leave of absence from his task for the month of August. And during this month there will be no Wednesday or Sunday evening worship services. The services of the Sabbath will be confined to the Sabbath school, the morning worship and the vespers of the youth of the church.

The supply pastor and preacher is Robert Freeman, a rising senior, Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, Virginia. He has been with us during June and July, working at the chapels. He will preach each Sabbath morning at the eleven o'clock hour worship. We bespeak for him a large hearing, and the prayers of God's people.

A hearty welcome awaits you at all hours of worship.

This Sunday we will again celebrate the Lord's Supper. All who wish to attend are kindly asked to make their wishes known to the pastor before the service.

Mrs. Griggs And Daughters Hurt

Word was received here Saturday of an auto accident near Morgan City, Friday, in which Mrs. S. C. Griggs, of Shreveport and two daughters were rather badly injured and are now in a hospital there.

The daughters, both of whom had taught school at St. Matthew's here, are Miss Virginia Griggs and Miss Mary Christiana Griggs.

Bible Comments

By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

The Old Testament books of Ezra and Nehemiah tell the story of two men of vision and courage who led an exiled people from Babylon back to the Jewish homeland. It is also the story of the rebuilding of Jerusalem.

The great story has a present-day aspect for Jews once more are seeking to fulfill their age-long dream of living in the historic Holy Land. In that ancient time many Jews remained in Babylon, where they had established roots in their exile, and gained considerable prosperity. There they built so strong a Babylonian Judaism that it lasted until the 11th century A. D.

Similarly many Jews of today will continue to make their contribution to the lands in which they are so well established. But the homing instinct is strong in some, and thousands of displaced persons still dream of finding a secure place in a Promised Land.

Let me recall briefly the events leading up to the life and work of Ezra and Nehemiah. The northern kingdom of Israel was established after Solomon's death, when 10 tribes rebelled under Jeroboam.

One hundred years later the armies of Babylon overwhelmed the southern kingdom of Judah and carried most of the people to exile in Babylon. A vivid account of that exilement is to be found in Psalm 137.

The best things in life are sometimes valued only after they are lost and the Israelites in exile recounted the sins of the past and their failure to heed God's command and call.

When King Artaxerxes inquired as to the cause of the evident sadness of his cupbearer, Nehemiah, he found this devout Jew troubled over the desolate state of Jerusalem. The king commissioned Nehemiah governor, entrusting him with power to lead an expedition there.

Nehemiah was a soldier, a man of action, and a man of spiritual devotion as well. The great spiritual leader in the movement of restoration, however, was Ezra.

Ezra, a revivalist at heart, championed the rediscovery of the "Law of the Lord." Through public readings of the Law and organized worship in the Holy City, Ezra launched a successful movement against the idolatry in certain high places.

It is unfortunate that the detailed achievements of Ezra and Nehemiah have not been recorded in a chronologically clear order. Through the centuries scholars have found the two books difficult to read because of vague references to time and circumstance.

It is my opinion, however, that the first expedition failed. I believe the later work of Nehemiah made reconstruction possible, as well as the religious revival and the national restoration.

Minor details, though, are unimportant beside the actual achievments of these great leaders, who accomplished their purpose in spite of delays, enemies, and countless frustrations. The devotion of Ezra and the courage of efficient Nehemiah, triumphing in a great era of Jewish history, combine to form an inspiring story.

THE NEW CONSTITUTION

Monroe, La.
Aug. 4, 1950.

To the Editor:

I would like to submit the following statement to the people of Ouachita parish:

The regular bi-annual session of the Louisiana legislature for 1950, adopted a resolution to be submitted to a vote of the people this fall, as to whether or not we shall have a constitutional convention to be held next winter for the purpose of revising and rewriting the constitution of this state.

That our constitution badly needs revision is admitted by practically everyone; the only questions being as to when it should be done, how its membership shall be selected and whether the new constitution shall be ratified by the people. More recently Governor Long has announced that he would call a special session soon to recast the membership of that convention. It is my understanding that the membership of the convention will comprise about 140-150 members, to be chosen as follows:

(a) 100 members to be elected, as are the present membership of the house of representatives of the state legislature. That means we shall elect two (2) members from Ouachita parish.

(b) The governor will appoint some fifteen (15) members at large:

(c) Certain designated public officials will be members ex-officio.

(d) The Louisiana Law Institute and the supreme court will name some members.

(e) Four living ex-governors may be members.

The only objections which have come to my knowledge to the holding of this convention at this time are three:

(1) That these times are not normal; and,

(2) That according to the way the convention call has set up its membership (ex-officio members and the governor's appointees) Governor Earl Long will have "control" or will exercise too much influence in the convention.

(3) The present call does not contemplate submitting the new constitution to the people for ratification after the convention.

Personally I do not attach very much importance to any of those suggestions. "Times" are rarely, if ever, "normal". I see no reason why a sound constitution cannot be written by sincere, honorable and right thinking men now as well as at any other time in the foreseeable future.

Governor Long has stated that he has no desire to dominate such a convention; that he will appoint only good solid citizens of outstanding ability. If the new constitution is to be confined to basic fundamentals, omitting most if not all legislative details—as I think it should—there would seem to be little, if anything, any governor would want to "control" or "influence". I personally believe in Governor Long's integrity and sincerity in that regard.

I understand that there is some objection to having elected department heads as ex-officio members of the convention, since their departments may become involved. After all they are elected officials mostly and, in any event, there might be some advantage in having them there as they are thoroughly familiar with those departments and their functioning. That, at best, is a two-edged concept. I do not believe that those elected officials or departmental heads would ignore the best interests of the state in such an important matter where factional politics has no proper place.

As to submitting the new constitution to the people for ratification, there are substantial arguments both ways. The 1921 constitution was not submitted; others have been submitted. I personally do not believe it matters as much as some contend; because if submitted few persons will study it out sufficiently to enable them to pass upon it. To submit it might afford organized minority groups an opportunity to indulge in misleading propaganda. On the other hand, I believe that the people can be trusted to do the right thing and it might be an additional safeguard.

However, those are issues to be determined by the people in deciding by their vote, whether or not to hold the convention at all. I shall be personally content with their decision. I expect to vote to hold the convention. I shall have no quarrel with those who vote otherwise.

If the convention is voted. I very much desire to become a member of it; to be elected from my home parish.

I should like to be able to say to you that I am being compelled by a great number of friends to offer myself as a candidate as one (1) of the members of the constitutional convention from Ouachita parish. That, however, would not be true. There have been some such suggestions but my desire and ambition to become a member of the constitutional convention, of held, is primarily my own idea and is based upon the following considerations:

First: I deem myself qualified because:

(1) I am an experienced practicing lawyer;

(2) As a member of the Louisiana Law Institute and of the group thereof which was directed so to do by the legislature, I have spent considerable time and effort during the past several years (at considerable personal expense and no pay) in the preparation of a project for a new constitution; which project and the vast amount of research data developed in that undertaking will be made available for consideration as the convention desires to afford it. No completed constitution will be presented for adoption as were the recently enacted revised statutes. Our work will be offered as a guide and as a suggestion, including alternative suggestion upon disputed issues.

(3) For the past six (6) years I have served (without pay) as a member of the Louisiana revenue code commission, which held over 200 public hearings, has made exhaustive investigations, studies and submitted several printed reports to the legislature, relative to the tax problems and fiscal policies of Louisiana. Many of the recommendations of our commission have been already enacted into law; other proposed taxes it disapproved have been rejected by the legislature; and the revenue code compiled by it was recently adopted as a part of the revised statue of 1950.

Second: I frankly admit a somewhat sentimental reason. I would take great pride in standing, as it were, in the shoes of my revered father, who was an active member of the constitutional convention of 1898. Also my kinsman, then law partner and respected lifelong friend, the late Allen Sholars, was a member of the constitutional convention of 1921; with whom I spent considerable time and did considerable work at that convention.

Third: I have never been and never intend or desire to be a candidate for remunerative public office. My activity at legislative sessions for many years in behalf of private clients and some public affairs has given me a knowledge and insight into many of the practical problems which must be determined by the next constitutional convention.

Fourth: I feel that the above experience places me in a position to be of real service to my state and to all of its people in the drafting of a new constitution for Louisiana, where I have resided for the greater part of my life.

Fifth: If I should become a member of the 1951 constitutional convention my sole aim would be to serve the best interest of this state and of all of its people and not of any particular class, group or faction.

Sixth: I believe the new constitution should be much shorter, more basic, general and flexable in concept than is the present; without so much, if any, of legislative matter it now contains. I think it should be more difficult to amend and of such a character that the present absurd method of numerous amendments every two years would be unnecessary and uncalled for; that the importance of the legislature as a proper agency of a Democratic government should be recognized and practically effected with a minimum of necessary restraint.

I believe many defects in the existing processes need improvement to better effect the will of the people, which should always con trol. I do not believe that our constitutior should be, as it now is, a "burial ground" for local issues which can and should be best determined in the locality affected. I think our system of public assistance contains a number of inequities and inefficiencies which should be carefully studied for possible and practical revision.

I think serious consideration should be given to basic future fiscal policies and the expenditure of public funds; to our system of public education ;to municipal affairs; to the multiplication and limitation of taxation and the conservation of our natural resources.

As a member of the convention I would consult and give every consideration to the views and wishes of my home people whom I ask to send me there.

My purpose in making this early and candid public statement is to put myself on record. If the convention is approved by the people this fall I shall have more to say and in greater detail, but I shall not undertake to make the usual campaign as for a political office.

There is no profit or personal gain involved, instead, much hard work will be required. I feel sincerely that such an office should seek a competent man rather than be sought as are ordinary public offices. If the people of my home parish desire that I serve them in this capacity I am not only willing but, for the reasons stated, frankly anxious to do so. If my home people do not wish my services, however, I shall not seek to over-persuade them or hold any resentment against anyone on that account. I merely now desire that you be fully advised. I request your consideration.

Respectfully,
Fred G. Hudson, Jr.

Lake Providence Plans Affair To Be Held On Thursday Night

James R. Wallace has announced that Voiture No. 1396 of Lake Providence will hold an initiation at 7 p.m. August 10 at the Legion Home there.

Voiture No. 1396 has just recently been organized and this will be the first members they have taken in since they received their charter.

Being newly organized they have requested the assistance of Voiture No. 168 in putting on the initiation so that the Monroe wrecking crew under the leadership of Chef de Gare Zeagler will go over to Lake Providence to put on the initiation.

Chef de Gare Wallace advises they will have about six or eight to be initiated including Sheriff Long and Post Commander John Markey. The Monroe Voiture also expects to have three or four candidates to initiate at the same time.

The Lake Providence Voiture has extended an invitation to the members of Voiture No. 168 to come over and join with them in a big evening and promise to have plenty of good food to satisfy all.

Voiture No. 168 was signally honored by the state convention of the Forty and Eight recently in that Chef de Gare Zeagler was elected grande garde de la porte and Sam Rubin was endorsed for the office of sous chef chemin de fer.

Chef de Gare Zeagler requests that all of those from Voiture No. 168 contemplating going to Lake Providence to please notify him so that he in turn can notify the Lake Providence Voiture of how many visitors to expect.

W.M. Policeman Jake Hennen Has Business Of Repairing Machines

By Percy Fant
(Of the Morning World Staff)

Jake Hennen is a West Monroe police officer who has developed a profitable sideline—that of repairing washing and sewing machines.

While on duty Jake watches parking meters downtown. When he goes home (114 Register street, West Monroe), he discards his uniform for work clothes and starts repairing the machine that's first in line.

Interesting as it is, Jake has never used a medium of advertising. In his own words, he explains the success of his somewhat "booming" business like this:

"When I do a job for a person, he tells other people about me and right now, I have on the average of 20 machines a month to turn out."

The son of a Lincoln parish railroad man and merchant, Jake was born June 2, 1897 in Lincoln parish and moved to Ouachita parish in 1925.

He was employed with the state highway department as stockroom clerk for eleven years prior to accepting a position with the local Singer company.

Since that time, he has worked as timekeeper for a railroad company.

Jake, who joined the West Monroe police department almost nine years ago, married the former Miss Clara Myrtle Davis, of Choudrant August 4, 1916.

He has two children, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth DuVall, Jr., of Strong, Ark., and a son, Howard "Speedy" Hennen, an employee of Glenn Radiator and Repair Shop, West Monroe.

Jake says he only repairs "home" sewing machines and has $700 worth of tools and parts to make most any repair needed for either a washing machine or sewing machine.

Analog-Computer Stimulates Wrecks

By Robert Goldenstein

EVANSTON, Ill.—There was a gusty cross-wind and the pilot was coming in fast. Cautiously, he nosed his heavy four engine plane toward the narrow landing strip and started setting her down.

Without warning the wind shifted, throwing him badly off course. He slammed at the controls. Too sharp and too fast. The big plane crashed.

So he tried again.

This time, when the wind hit, he cut her back more slowly. But he was too slow. He missed the strip and plowed into a hangar.

So he kept on trying until he had it just right.

Tries Wrecking a Car

Satisfied, he turned to new problems. He ran a car over rock-strewn roads at 60 miles an hour to test the springs. He took over the controls of a locomotive to test the shimmy on sharp curves at high speed.

He did all these things in a few seconds.

No—this isn't a super man, a Walter Mitty or a fugitive from a flying saucer. It is any one of several scientists in the aerial measurements laboratory at Northwestern University.

They undergo these harrowing experiences by analogy in their search for the right answers to complicated technical problems. A massive electronic brain called the Aeracom makes it possible.

Electronics Does the Trick

The machine is an electronic analog-computer that gives almost instantaneous answers to indicate problems fed to it electrically. These problems may range from engineering design to economics.

This is how the computer works: On the airplane landing problem the Aeracom operator first drafts a series of mathematical equations that represent all the factors involved—weight of the craft, its speed, the pattern and velocity of the winds, etc.

Then a solution is attempted by analogy. Any equation in mathematics can be represented almost exactly by a particular electric circuit. So the equations are plugged into the Aeracom in the form of electric circuits.

The Aeracom operator next simulates a landing on the basis of how fast he believes the controls should be manipulated to compensate for the treacherous wind gust.

Quick on the Answers

He gets his answer almost instantaneously. It appears in graphical form on an oscilloscope which resembles a television screen. If he wants to make the plane turn more quickly or slowly, he merely adjusts a dial on the Aeracom. Other adjustable dials represent wind velocity and the other factors involved in the problem. Problems or condition can be changed at will and the answer always pops out on the screen. These answers need only to be interpreted to be understood.

This kind of data is needed before automatic pilots can safely bring planes in for landings.

Similarly, in the automobile trial over bumpy roads the Aeracom operator can get a quick answer on what kind of springs and shock absorbers are needed for the smoothest ride under various road conditions and speeds. For all practical purposes, the size of the bumps or rigidity of the springs can be altered simply by twisting dials.

The analog-computer cost $250,000 to develop and build and weighs more than 10 tons. It was built by Westinghouse Electric Corp., and Northwestern University students and is owned by the U. S. navy's bureau of aeronautics.

It is a cousin to the digital type computers that quickly lick complicated mathematical problems ordinarily requiring years of calculations.

France Uses Taxes To Rebuild Casino

By Carl Hartman

LE TOUQUET, France—France is busy rebuilding, not only its bombed-out homes and factories, but the tennis courts and gambling casino of this channel resort where some of Europe's wealthiest playboys cavorted before World War II.

Some Frenchmen don't care for spending $1,400,000 of tax money to lift the face of a casino. But from the government's point of view it's a good investment—the tax collector gets 60 per cent of the take.

Besides, like all property-owners in France, the hotel and club proprietors have a legal claim on the state for damages caused by the war. In Le Touquet they put the sum at about $20,000,000 and point out that rival Deauville was hardly touched.

Famed as Paris Beach

Le Touquet began life humbly as Paris-Plage—Paris Beach—probably because it is one of the closest seaside resorts to the capital. The 128 miles are an easy three hours by car, and only a little more by train.

Shortly after the turn of the 20th century, some wealthy British investors came in and the tonier-sounding name of a nearby cape was added. Now the official books call it Le Touquet-Paris-Plage.

High up on the French coast between Boulogne and Dieppe, the beach somehow particularly appealed to the British.

"It's the coldest spot in France," one Parisian explained sourly. "The British love it because it reminds them of home."

Well-heeled Britons came in droves—including the royal family. Local inhabitants will show you a little white villa with green shutters where the Duke of Windsor first met Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson. The fact that the duke maintains they met at a hunting party in Leicestershire, England, does not shake the faith of Le Touquet.

Its Famous Hotels

The oddly-named Hermitage Hotel, according to local legend, was the only one in the world which could and did house four kings and their suites at the same time.

Another hotel specializes in baths. It had not one but two baths for every double room, plus half a dozen suites with private swimming pools for wealthy Hindus prevented by their faith from bathing in public.

The big hotels are open for business, and hoping that the old prewar crowd won't all go to Deauville. There is still plenty to remind the visitor of war-twisted girders, blind windows, and peeling wallpaper in rooms open to the sky. But Europeans have learned to overlook such things.

Giant Compress In Franklin Is Largest In U. S.

By Otis Hassell
(Of the Morning World Staff)

WINNSBORO, La., Aug. 5.—Franklin parish is one of the more prosperous agricultural parishes of Louisiana, with cotton its main money crop. Last year a record cotton crop of 60,-500 bales was produced in this parish.

The Union Compress & Warehouse Company in Winnsboro handles all this cotton and also thousands of bales from surrounding parishes. Last year it handled 75,-000 bales.

Several years ago, when a farmer had a bale of cotton ginned, he took the bale of cotton home, then hauled it back to town to get the buyers to sample it in order to sell the cotton, or else he left the bales at the gin until he finished gathering his crop and then took it home, or sold it there.

Now, thanks to the "compress," all this is made much easier for the cotton grower. After the cotton is ginned he does not touch or see the bale any more. The ginner sends the cotton to the compress and there, after a sample is taken from the bale, it is weighed, insured and stored. From then until he either sells his cotton or puts it in a government loan, all the owner has to keep up with is the sample and the compress receipt.

The compress then handles the cotton for the buyer. The cotton is stored, compressed and shipped to all parts of the world. A few places to which Franklin parish cotton has been shipped are: Milan, Italy; Bremen, Germany; Havre, France, and Liverpool, England.

The Union Compress & Warehouse Company owns nine compress and warehouses. They are located in Vicksburg, Greenwood and Rosedale, Mississippi; Decatur, Alabama; Hope, Arkansas; Rayville, Delhi, Ferriday and Winnsboro, Louisiana.

According to T. B. Dickey, superintendent of the Winnsboro compress, the compress and warehouse at Winnsboro is the largest of the nine. It is also the largest inland compress and warehouse in the United States.

The Union Compress & Warehouse Company was first established at Winnsboro in 1928, with two units.

It now has 11 compartments with an average of 35,000 square feet of floor space in each compartment, with a federal bonded capacity of 87,000 bales.

A sprinkler system is installed throughout the plant and is supplied by two tanks which hold 100,-000 gallons of water each.

The compress is equipped with a Webb-80 press with a high density attachment and will press 100 bales per hour to one-half their normal size. The regular payroll of the Union Compress & Warehouse Company in Winnsboro is $1,600 weekly and during the fall and winter rush season it jumps up to about $3,200 weekly.

Society Hunts Secret Of Climate Of Glacier

NEW YORK—To wrest from a glacier some of the climatic secrets of a thousand years, William O. Field, Jr., of the American Geographical Society has returned once more to Alaska.

Field, head of the AGS department of exploration and field research, will visit the 15-man team operating from the glaciological laboratories set up June 22 near the center of a 700-square mile expanse of snow and ice near Juneau in Southeastern Alaska.

The project is sponsored by federal agencies, including the U. S. Forest Service and U. S. Geological Survey, and its findings will be made available to the government. Representatives of several U. S. agencies are visiting the project this summer.

Now in its second year, the project seeks also new information on the physical properties of ice and the climate controls affecting glacier expansion and recession.

(Of the Morning World Staff)

"I love the United States very much, but the weather is too hot," was the remark which an 18 year-old Polish refugee made in reference to his new home in Monroe.

Henry Filocha, his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Jan Filocha, and four sisters, were brought to this country by the Catholic Legion. They landed at New Orleans on April 5, 1949, and from there went to a plantation near Lake Providence to work as farm laborers.

The Catholic sisters in Monroe took an interest in this family and decided to bring them to Monroe. They knew that farm labor was not the kind of task for a tailor and an accomplished musician like Henry, who had studied music for three years from some of the best instructors in Europe before the war.

Henry is now an employee of the M. and S. Manufacturing Company in Monroe, serving in the capacity of a bundle boy. He hopes to earn enough money in the future to be able to further his studies in music.

Jan, the father of the family, is employed as a janitor at St. Paschal's in West Monroe. He stated that he hopes to rejoin the tailoring field when his English becomes more fluent. "Working as a janitor and meeting so many people will help me further my ambition," replied Jan when asked about his position.

Upon asking the family why they didn't wish to remain in their homeland, this reporter recognized a sudden change come over the whole family. Henry, who speaks for the group, finally answered by saying, "We cannot live anywhere that we don't believe in the policies of the government which is leading us. I do not believe in communism, since I have seen how unmerciful it can be, and I do not believe that God meant for his people to be ruled as dogs."

The whole Filocha family were interned in a prison camp at Kothen, Germany. Father and son were sent to a labor camp in 1941 and Mrs. Filocha and her four daughters were sent to a woman's camp. In the early part of the next year they were reunited at Kothen and were not separated again. This was unusual treatment for the Germans according to Jan, who said that he had seen them break up many families who never saw each other again.

Maria, the oldest girl is also employed by a local manufacturing firm; Sophia, age 15, and Danuda, 10, attended St. Matthews grammar school last year. Their studies were concentrated on English, but they will begin concentrating on other subjects this fall. The two younger girls remain at home with their mother.

The only son of the family excels himself in that he speaks three languages fluently and two others with only a degree of fluency. Polish, German, and English he has mastered, and French and Latin he reads very well.

The whole family is making a quick adjustment to the American way of life. Although circumstance have not benefitted them, they have the confidence in life itself, that everything will turn out all right.

Telephone Classes Give Dentists Their Fill-In

The University of Illinois College of Dentistry started a series of talks on advances in dentistry last October. Once a month for six months, the programs were carried over a 15,000 mile wire hookup. They were heard by 6,000 dentists in 163 cities.

A new series will begin this fall. The sponsors report they have worked out plans to pipe the lectures to 10,000 dentists in 250 cities in 45 states and Canada.

Other Classes Foreseen

Dr. Isaac Schour, associate dean, and Dr. Saul Levy, director of the extension division of post-graduate studies of the dental school say: "The future holds great opportunities for the expansion of this revolutionary new technic for post-graduate education."

The purpose is to keep dentists abreast of new developments in their field. They pay a $10 fee. In return, they get the privilege of listening throughout the series and an illustrated manual that summarizes the views of the speakers.

Scientists Lead Discussions

There is a different topic for each session. Six men—teaching and practicing dentists, physicians and surgeons and other scientists—speak on each subject. Then they go into a round-table discussion.

Classes start at 8:30 p.m. eastern standard time and run for two hours. Dentists gather in hospital amphitheaters, lodge halls and private homes. They used an American Legion ballroom in Canton, Ohio, and a radio station studio in Salt Lake City. It was dinner time on the Pacific coast, so the students ate while they listened in a Seattle hotel. The waitresses wore mocassins.

The project has fared well financially. Fees collected for the 1949-50 series added up to $66,574. Expenses, chiefly for wire rental and printing, came to $66,490. The balance was $84.

METRIC SYSTEM

CAIRO—(AP)—Egypt, which since the days of the Pharaohs has followed a system of weights and measures of her own, soon may turn to the metric system. She Whistles At Boys Without Taking Lesson

A whistler of seven months' standing, Linda Joann Parker never took lessons. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Parker of Denver, have no idea how she learned to pucker her lips and make pretty sounds. At 11 months she suddenly started whistling and now at a year and a half she whistles tunes with considerable trueness. Apparently she picks up her material entirely by ear from listening to the radio. At any rate, Linda is going to be able to give the boys some of their own medicine when she gets a little older.

CHURCHILL HOME SHOW

WESTERHAM, England — (AP) — Mrs. Winston Churchill had 3,000 guests in a single day at the Churchills' country home, Chartwell, near here recently. Each paid a shilling to get into the grounds, and many also paid two shillings to see some paintings by her famous husband, who wasn't around at the time.

2 U.S. Armies Named "Lost Battalion" In Fighting Communism

By Yvonne Brett
(Of The Morning World Staff)

Conflict breeds drama . . . and each war adds its touch to the lore of the fighting forces. Usually the romantic nicknames from one war are not duplicated, but one title from the year 1919 has been appearing lately in stories date lined Korea.

That name is "The Lost Battalion," a phrase that means terror and sadness to those who remember the story of the original one, and admiration and wonderment of what is to come for the present day battalion which fought north Korean Communist.

On July 9 General MacArthur issued a statement saying that a United States battalion had been cut off from other forces behind north Korean lines. The battalion was without reinforcements for nearly two days and in drastic circumstances when the hard hitting American troops started slugging their way out.

The battalion had been in a forward position during the battle when it was encircled by the Communists. The exact number of men lost during the campaign is not known, but all indications show that it was a large number.

Reporters attached to MacArthur's headquarters in Japan began calling this group the "Lost Battalion," not realizing that they were using a name which was given to men a generation before them had dedicated to a battalion which was in Russia after the close of World War I.

A detailed description of the reason why American troops were in Russia in 1919 and 1920 was given to this reporter by Major Charles W. Phillips, medical corps, who was one of the few men to return to the states after having been a member of this "Lost Battalion."

Major Phillip's story is as follows:

The original name of the battalion was the North Russia Transportation Corps Expedition. When Russia withdrew from World War I following the Brest-Litovsk Treaty, Finland was still an ally of Germany. A new railroad had been built north from Petrograd, now Lenigrad, to Murmansk, thus affording Russia an outlet to the sea through Finland. If Germany should get possession of this railroad and its terminus she would have in her power excellent facilities for a submarine base in Kola Bay with all that it meant to north Atlantic shipping."

The possibilities of such a move by the Germans became alarming so the allies agreed to send troops into this area to keep the railroad clear.

Late in March, 1919, the 39th Infantry Regiment, the First Battalion, the 310th Engineers, and the 337th Field Hospital and Ambulance Company were detoured from their course to France and sent direct from England to Murmansk, Russia.

About this time the Russians became hostile to the allies because the Bolshevik revolution was in progress.

The allies at Murmansk began to push their way down Soroka, which was a railway division point. When the Bolsheviks were driven out they burned the shops and demolished most of the equipment. The few loyal Russians who remained were unable to operate the line to sustain the advance of troops.

This necessitated the breaking up of the battalion into special detachments. One group of show repair men proceeded to Soroka and began whipping the rolling stock into shape for service. Another group took over the operation of trains from Kem to Soroka. Permanent headquarters were established at Soroka.

We were now in a position to lend material aid to the British advance, which was planned to relieve the pressure on the Archangel front. Our work was to demolish bridges and culverts as we went. Rank nor profession meant anything now for the medical corps, engineers, and infantry all worked together.

We placed a special work train, built in the shops at Soroka, on the tracks where our demolishing work had ended. It consisted of bunk cars, shop cars, kitchen and supply car, with a flat car on the front upon which was mounted a gun.

The group fought with pick and shovel, often in view of the enemy, with only a small detachment out as advance guard.

A small detachment of us were placed with the British troops to accompany them in their attack on Maselskaya, the first town of real importance.

We left the regiment and joined the advancing British forces. Early in the morning of May 2 we were stopped by machine gun fire from a brigade of Bolsheviks near a railroad siding.

Their armored train was located on this siding, so plans were made at once to send a patrol around through the woods and swamps on a flanking movement for the purpose of destroying a bridge back of the siding, and cutting off their retreat. Our section volunteered for the job.

We traveled cautiously through unfamiliar woods, wading in icy water up to our waist. We came out upon a little wooded hill in back of the enemy. We were sighted by a guard on the bridge who opened fire on us with a machine gun.

This told the enemy that we were in the rear of them. They gave up all resistance to the frontal attack and began a retreat. But during this time we were being subjected to machine gun fire, and snipers. Snipers bullets caught our two commanding officers.

After this was over the armored train came down the track sweeping the hill with machine gun fire as it went. This made another large dent in our man power. The number of casualties from this campaign made all of us sick at heart since it had taken so many of our close friends.

We saw no more trouble after this battle and headquarters began making plans for our return home. We boarded a ship in Murmansk the first part of September and landed in New York the latter part of the month.

Here Major Phillips story ends, having brought a connecting link between two American armies, and though they were 31 years apart, in battles which have been waged and become known as "Lost Battalions" fighting Russia.

A sprinkler system is installed throughout the plant and is supplied by two tanks which hold 100,000 gallons of water each.

The compress is equipped with a Webb-80 press with a high density attachment and will press 100 bales per hour to one-half their normal size. The regular payroll of the Union Compress & Warehouse Company in Winnsboro is $1,600 weekly and during the fall and winter rush season it jumps up to about $3,200 weekly.

Society Hunts Secret Of Climate Of Glacier

NEW YORK—To wrest from a glacier some of the climatic secrets of a thousand years, William O. Field, Jr., of the American Geographical Society has returned once more to Alaska.

Field, head of the AGS department of exploration and field research, will visit the 15-man team operating from the glaciological laboratories set up June 22 near the center of a 700-square mile expanse of snow and ice near Juneau in Southeastern Alaska.

The project is sponsored by federal agencies, including the U. S. Forest Service and U. S. Geological Survey, and its findings will be made available to the government. Representatives of several U. S. agencies are visiting the project this summer.

Now in its second year, the project seeks also new information on the physical properties of ice and the climate controls affecting glacier expansion and recession.

(Of the Morning World Staff)

"I love the United States very much, but the weather is too hot," was the remark which an 18 year-old Polish refugee made in reference to his new home in Monroe.

Henry Filocha, his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Jan Filocha, and four sisters, were brought to this country by the Catholic Legion. They landed at New Orleans on April 5, 1949, and from there went to a plantation near Lake Providence to work as farm laborers.

The Catholic sisters in Monroe took an interest in this family and decided to bring them to Monroe. They knew that farm labor was not the kind of task for a tailor and an accomplished musician like Henry, who had studied music for three years from some of the best instructors in Europe before the war.

Henry is now an employee of the M and S. Manufacturing Company in Monroe, serving in the capacity of a bundle boy. He hopes to earn enough money in the future to be able to further his studies in music.

Jan, the father of the family, is employed as a janitor at St. Paschal's in West Monroe. He stated that he hopes to rejoin the tailoring field when his English becomes more fluent. "Working as a janitor and meeting so many people will help me further my ambition," replied Jan when asked about his position.

Upon asking the family why they didn't wish to remain in their homeland, this reporter recognized a sudden change come over the whole family. Henry, who speaks for the group, finally answered by saying, "We cannot live anywhere that we don't believe in the policies of the government which is leading us. I do not believe in communism, since I have seen how unmerciful it can be, and I do not believe that God meant for his people to be ruled as dogs."

The whole Filocha family were interned in a prison camp at Kothen, Germany. Father and son were sent to a labor camp in 1941 and Mrs. Filocha and her four daughters were sent to a woman's camp. In the early part of the next year they were reunited at Kothen and were not separated again. This was unusual treatment for the Germans according to Jan, who said that he had seen them break up many families who never saw each other again.

Maria, the oldest girl is also employed by a local manufacturing firm; Sophia, age 15, and Danuda, 10, attended St. Matthews grammar school last year. Their studies were concentrated on English, but they will begin concentrating on other subjects this fall. The two younger girls remain at home with their mother.

The only son of the family excels himself in that he speaks three languages fluently and two others with only a degree of fluency. Polish, German, and English he has mastered, and French and Latin he reads very well.

The whole family is making a quick adjustment to the American way of life. Although circumstance have not benefitted them, they have the confidence in life itself, that everything will turn out all right.

Telephone Classes Give Dentists Their Fill-In

The University of Illinois College of Dentistry started a series of talks on advances in dentistry last October. Once a month for six months, the programs were carried over a 15,000 mile wire hookup. They were heard by 6,000 dentists in 163 cities.

A new series will begin this fall. The sponsors report they have worked out plans to pipe the lectures to 10,000 dentists in 250 cities in 45 states and Canada.

Other Classes Foreseen

Dr. Isaac Schour, associate dean, and Dr. Saul Levy, director of the extension division of post-graduate studies of the dental school say: "The future holds great opportunities for the expansion of this revolutionary new technic for post-graduate education."

The purpose is to keep dentists abreast of new developments in their field. They pay a $10 fee. In return, they get the privilege of listening throughout the series and an illustrated manual that summarizes the views of the speakers.

Scientists Lead Discussions

There is a different topic for each session. Six men—teaching and practicing dentists, physicians and surgeons and other scientists—speak on each subject. Then they go into a round-table discussion.

Classes start at 8:30 p.m. eastern standard time and run for two hours. Dentists gather in hospital amphitheaters, lodge halls and private homes. They used an American Legion ballroom in Canton, Ohio, and a radio station studio in Salt Lake City. It was dinner time on the Pacific coast, so the students ate while they listened in a Seattle hotel. The waitresses wore mocassins.

The project has fared well financially. Fees collected for the 1949-50 series added up to $66,574. Expenses, chiefly for wire rental and printing, came to $66,490. The balance was $84.

The exceptions include the feddan (equivalent of an acre) which breaks down to kirats and sahms.

She Whistles At Boys Without Taking Lesson

A whistler of seven months' standing, Linda Joann Parker never took lessons. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Parker of Denver, have no idea how she learned to pucker her lips and make pretty sounds. At 11 months she suddenly started whistling and now at a year and a half she whistles tunes with considerable trueness. Apparently she picks up her material entirely by ear from listening to the radio. At any rate, Linda is going to be able to give the boys some of their own medicine when she gets a little older.

CHURCHILL HOME SHOW

WESTERHAM, England — (AP) — Mrs. Winston Churchill had 3,000 guests in a single day at the Churchills' country home, Chartwell, near here recently. Each paid a shilling to get into the grounds, and many also paid two shillings to see some paintings by her famous husband, who wasn't around at the time.

The Churchills put their place on show to raise money for the Young Women's Christian Association. A prime attraction was a brick wall containing a plaque which read:

2 U.S. Armies Named "Lost Battalion" In Fighting Communism

By Yvonne Brett
(Of The Morning World Staff)

Conflict breeds drama . . . and each war adds its touch to the lore of the fighting forces. Usually the romantic nicknames from one war are not duplicated, but one title from the year 1919 has been appearing lately in stories date lined Korea.

That name is "The Lost Battalion," a phrase that means terror and sadness to those who remember the story of the original one, and admiration and wonderment of what is to come for the present day battalion which fought north Korean Communist.

On July 9 General MacArthur issued a statement saying that a United States battalion had been cut off from other forces behind north Korean lines. The battalion was without reinforcements for nearly two days and in drastic circumstances when the hard hitting American troops started slugging their way out.

The battalion had been in a forward position during the battle when it was encircled by the Communists. The exact number of men lost during the campaign is not known, but all indications show that it was a large number.

Reporters attached to MacArthur's headquarters in Japan began calling this group the "Lost Battalion" not realizing that they were using a name which newspaper men a generation before them had dedicated to a battalion which was in Russia after the close of World War I.

A detailed description of the reason why American troops were in Russia in 1919 and 1920 was given to this reporter by Major Charles W. Phillips, medical corps, who was one of the few men to return to the states after having been a member of this "Lost Battalion."

Major Phillip's story is as follows:

The original name of the battalion was the North Russia Transportation Corps Expedition. When Russia withdrew from World War I following the Brest-Litovsk Treaty, Finland was still an ally of Germany. A new railroad had been built north from Petrograd, now Lenigrad, to Murmansk, thus affording Russia an outlet to the sea through Finland. If Germany should get possession of this railroad and its terminus she would have in her power excellent facilities for a submarine base in Kola Bay with all that it meant to north Atlantic shipping."

The possibilities of such a move by the Germans became alarming so the allies agreed to send troops into this area to keep the railroad clear.

Late in March, 1919, the 39th Infantry Regiment, the First Battalion, the 310th Engineers, and the 337th Field Hospital and Ambulance Company were detoured from their course to France and sent direct from England to Murmansk, Russia.

About this time the Russians became hostile to the allies because the Bolshevik revolution was in progress.

The allies at Murmansk began to push their way down Soroka, which was a railway division point. When the Bolsheviks were driven out they burned the shops and demolished most of the equipment. The few loyal Russians who remained were unable to operate the line to sustain the advance of troops.

This necessitated the breaking up of the battalion into special detachments. One group of show repair men proceeded to Soroka and began whipping the rolling stock into shape for service. Another group took over the operation of trains from Kem to Soroka. Permanent headquarters were established at Soroka.

We were now in a position to lend material aid to the British advance, which was planned to relieve the pressure on the Archangel front. Our work was to demolish bridges and culverts as we went. Rank nor profession meant anything now for the medical corps, engineers, and infantry all worked together.

We placed a special work train, built in the shops at Soroka, on the tracks where our demolishing work had ended. It consisted of bunk cars, shop cars, kitchen and supply car, with a flat car on the front upon which was mounted a gun.

The group fought with pick and shovel, often in view of the enemy, with only a small detachment out as advance guard.

A small detachment of us were placed with the British troops to accompany them in their attack on Maselskaya, the first town of real importance.

We left the regiment and joined the advancing British forces. Early in the morning of May 2 we were stopped by machine gun fire from a brigade of Bolsheviks near a railroad siding.

Their armored train was located on this siding, so plans were made at once to send a patrol around through the woods and swamps on a flanking movement for the purpose of destroying a bridge back of the siding, and cutting off their retreat. Our section volunteered for the job.

We traveled cautiously through unfamiliar woods, wading in icy water up to our waist. We came out upon a little wooded hill in back of the enemy. We were sighted by a guard on the bridge who opened fire on us with a machine gun.

This told the enemy that we were in the rear of them. They gave up all resistance to the frontal attack and began a retreat. But during this time we were being subjected to machine gun fire, and snipers. Snipers bullets caught our two commanding officers.

After this was over the armored train came down the track sweeping the hill with machine gun fire as it went. This made another large dent in our man power. The number of casualities from this campaign made all of us sick at heart since it had taken so many of our close friends.

We saw no more trouble after this battle and headquarters began making plans for our return home. We boarded a ship in Murmansk the first part of September and landed in New York the latter part of the month.

Here Major Phillips story ends, having brought a connecting link between two American armies, although they were 31 years apart, in battles which have been waged and become known as "Lost Battalions" fighting Russia.

Women's Jail Evils Shown In Warner Film, 'Caged'

Eleanor Parker Heads Cast In Startling Drama Of Prisons

From the studio that brought forth some of the most powerfully-enacted prison dramas in recent years, there now comes another film so startling as to cause unheard-of advance comment from all sides. That film is "Caged," which will make its local debut at the Paramount Theater today.

"Caged" is the heralded Warner Bros. picture that tells the story of women behind bars, first-offender women turning into a lost legion who, harassed and embittered throughout their confinement go out to prey upon society when released. This, often through no fault of their own.

It was the Warner Bros. studio, starting with the famed "I Am a Fugitive From A Chain Gang," and extending through such epic dramas as "Alcatraz Island," "San Quentin" and "Angels With Dirty Faces," that caused the spotlight to focus on corrupt penal systems and prison injustices throughout the country. At the same time, efficient prisons and a few other such institutions were employed as background for films like "20,000 Years in Sing Sing." This way, the Warner studio was able to project on the nation's screens so highly authentic and thrilling film fare for avid action fans.

"Thus "Caged," starring the beautiful Eleanor Parker, with Agnes Moorehead and Jan Sterling, directed by John Cromwell, follows in the tradition of some strong dramatic predecessors. Even the writing of the screenplay followed the tradition. For Virginia Kellogg, the scenarist, voluntarily had herself incarcerated in a woman's state prison in order to gather the facts for the Warner film.

Jerry Wald produced "Caged."

'WAGONMASTER' COLORFUL FILM

Ben Johnson, Joanne Dru And Harry Carey, Jr., Starred In Western

Bringing to the screen a melodrama based upon a hitherto-untold experience of Mormon adventure in the Territory of Utah, "Wagonmaster" stars Ben Johnson, Joanne Dru, Harry Carey, Jr. and Ward Bond at the head of a notable cast assembled by Producers John Ford and Merian C. Cooper. Opens a three day engagement at the Paramount theater Thursday.

Directed by Ford, the film recreates the adventure of a Mormon party which set out to establish a new colony along the distant San Juan River, in 1879. Johnson, who scored a hit as Sergeant Tyree in Ford's "She Wore a Yellow Ribbon," plays the title role of a youthful frontiersman who is hired to guide the wagon train across trackless deserts and forbidding mountain passes to its destination.

The heroic task, with the little party beset by bandits and hostile Navajos, makes for a vivid picture of what western pioneering was really like in the days of the covered wagons.

Miss Dru, who was the feminine star in Ford's "She Wore a Yellow Ribbon," is cast in the spirited role of a dancer in a stranded medicine show. Young Carey portrays Johnson's partner, with Bond as a fiery-tempered elder of the Mormon party. Charles Kemper, as a smiling but murderous bandit, heads the supporting cast, along with Alen Mowbray as the medicine show owner and Jane Darwell as a militant frontierswoman.

The show comes as a successor to Ford's hit melodramas, "Fort Apache" and "She Wore a Yellow Ribbon."

Four new western songs written and composed by Stan Jones are sung in the picture. They are called: Rollin' Dust, Song of the Wagonmaster, Wagons West and Chuckawalla Swing. They are recorded by The Sons of the Pioneers.

War Hero Audie Murphy Knows How To Use Guns

The fastest gunslinging since the days of William S. Hart was watched with awe on the set of "The Kid From Texas," Universal-International Technicolor film currently showing at the Joy Drive-In.

Audie Murphy, World War II hero, stars in the western epic and slung the guns, two six-shooters, and veteran movie pistoleros stood amazed at the dexterity with which he handled his brace of shooting irons.

Seagoing Cameras Used In Filming 'Duchess Of Idaho'

Esther Williams Starred In Spectacular New Romance With Music

Technicolor cameras became seagoing for the lush and spectacular water ballets created for Esther Williams in "Duchess of Idaho," M-G-M's new romance with music, in which Miss Williams costars with Van Johnson and John Lund on the Joy screen.

Focal point for the underwater activities of the glittering new production was the studio's huge Stage 30, containing a 100-foot pool. An elevator-type derrick made possible "zoom" shots of the swimming star in a high dive through the air and below the surface in one "take." Overhead rails carried the derrick on which the camera was raised or lowered by high-speed electric motors and pulleys. The ingenious structure had full lateral and forward motion. The camera was enclosed in a glass diving bell, permitting one continuous shot above water, coinciding with the striking surface and continuing with underwater acrobatics.

Specially constructed underwater speakers answered the problem of performers keeping time with the music while swimming under water. These speakers were placed beneath the surface of the pool, providing musical accompaniment and at the same time enabling the director to instruct his players during rehearsals and filming.

To make underwater shots feasible, 40 giant 5,000-watt globes were placed in weighted frames with reflectors and were then lowered into the pool. Five days of constant filtering were required to get the water transparent enough for the filming.

In "Duchess of Idaho" an underwater boom shot was used for the first time. A waterproof "bucket camera" was suspended over the water from a long boom attached to a camera truck stationed beside the pool. As Esther Williams dove, the camera was lowered into the water and was carried alongside the star by the truck.

These eye-filling water routines involve problems which script writers usually ignore. They note simply: Scene 34—swimming number.'" What happens next is usually up to Jack Donohue, who has directed the water ballets for "On An Island With You" and "Neptune's Daughter" and who was responsible for the aquatic routines of the current offering.

There are two spectacular water ballets in "Duchess of Idaho." In one, the pool is encased in scientifically arranged mirrors reflecting twelve separate images of Miss Williams as she does her routine. A moonlit pool provides the setting for the second ballet, which combines ballet and adagio dancing, solo and group swimming, with 36 dancer-swimmers, 24 girls and 12 boys, joining the star in the routine.

'Gal Who Took West' Coming To Joy Soon

Comedy and music have been added to the tense theme of an outdoor drama in "The Gal Who Took the West" and the net result is a very enjoyable motion picture.

The Technicolor movie, which opens soon at the Joy Theater, stars Yvonne De Carlo, Charles Coburn, Scott Brady and John Russell. The latter two he-men carry the action. Yvonne and Coburn handle the comedy.

Miss De Carlo proves a smart and entertaining comedienne, easily keeping pace with the veteran Coburn in sparking laughs.

The curvaceous Yvonne also handles her musical sequences in grand style. Her "Frankie and Johnny" number is a riot of harmony and laughs, and one of the best musical moments she has given the screen.

"Clancy Lowered the Boom," also in a comedy vein, is another outstanding song sequence.

One of the picture's chief charms is the way in which it is unfolded. A magazine writer, probing into the history of the O'Hara family of pioneer Arizona, gets most of his facts from three old men in a decrepit saloon.

But the trio disagrees on the character of the pseudo-opera singer played by Yvonne, so each relates the story in his own way. The film fades back to the late '90's when the central characters take over, against the magnificent backgrounds of cactus forests and distant mountains.

The singer is brought to pioneer Arizona by Coburn, wealthy landholdeer to appear at the opening of his opera house. His grandsons and heirs, Brady and Russell, dislike each other intensely. When both fall in love with Yvonne, it appears their smoldering feud will develop the town in a murderous battle. Yvonne's womanly wiles save the day.

They are co-starred with Harry Carey, Jr. and Ward Bond in "Wagonmaster" which opens a three day engagement at the Paramount Theatre Thursday.

'WAGONMASTER' COLORFUL FILM

Bringing to the screen a melodrama based upon a hitherto-untold experience of Mormon adventure in the Territory of Utah, "Wagonmaster" stars Ben Johnson, Joanne Dru, Harry Carey, Jr. and Ward Bond at the head of a notable cast assembled by Producers John Ford and Merian C. Cooper. Opens a three day engagement at the Paramount theater Thursday.

Directed by Ford, the film recreates the adventure of a Mormon party which set out to establish a new colony along the distant San Juan River, in 1879. Johnson, who scored a hit as Sergeant Tyree in Ford's "She Wore a Yellow Ribbon," plays the title role of a youthful frontiersman who is hired to guide the wagon train across trackless deserts and forbidding mountain passes to its destination.

The heroic task, with the little party beset by bandits and hostile Navajos, makes for a vivid picture of what western pioneering was really like in the days of the covered wagons.

Miss Dru, who was the feminine star in Ford's "She Wore a Yellow Ribbon," is cast in the spirited role of a dancer in a stranded medicine show. Young Carey portrays Johnson's partner, with Bond as a fiery-tempered elder of the Mormon party. Charles Kemper, as a smiling but murderous bandit, heads the supporting cast, along with Alen Mowbray as the medicine show owner and Jane Darwell as a militant frontierswoman.

The show comes as a successor to Ford's hit melodramas, "Fort Apache" and "She Wore a Yellow Ribbon."

Four new western songs written and composed by Stan Jones are sung in the picture. They are called: Rollin' Dust, Song of the Wagonmaster, Wagons West and Chuckawalla Swing. They are recorded by The Sons of the Pioneers.

War Hero Audie Murphy Knows How To Use Guns

The fastest gunslinging since the days of William S. Hart was watched with awe on the set of "The Kid From Texas," Universal-International Technicolor film currently showing at the Joy Drive-In.

Audie Murphy, World War II hero, stars in the western epic and slung the guns, two six-shooters, and veteran movie pistoleros stood amazed at the dexterity with which he handled his brace of shooting irons.

AT THE JOY

Esther Williams Starred In Spectacular New Romance With Music

Technicolor cameras became seagoing for the lush and spectacular water ballets created for Esther Williams in "Duchess of Idaho," M-G-M's new romance with music, in which Miss Williams co-stars with Van Johnson and John Lund on the Joy screen.

Focal point for the underwater activities of the glittering new production was the studio's huge Stage 30, containing a 100-foot pool. An elevator-type derrick made possible "zoom" shots of the swimming star in a high dive through the air and below the surface in one "take." Overhead rails carried the derrick on which the camera was raised or lowered by high-speed electric motors and pulleys. The ingenious structure had full lateral and forward motion. The camera was enclosed in a glass diving bell, permitting one continuous shot above water, coinciding with the striking surface and continuing with underwater acrobatics.

Specially constructed underwater speakers answered the problem of performers keeping time with the music while swimming under water. These speakers were placed beneath the surface of the pool, providing musical accompaniment and at the same time enabling the director to instruct his players during rehearsals and filming.

To make underwater shots feasible, 40 giant 5,000-watt globes were placed in weighted frames with reflectors and were then lowered into the pool. Five days of constant filtering were required to get the water transparent enough for the filming.

In "Duchess of Idaho" an underwater boom shot was used for the first time. A waterproof "bucket camera" was suspended over the water from a long boom attached to a camera truck stationed beside the pool. As Esther Williams dove, the camera was lowered into the water and was carried alongside the star by the truck.

These eye-filling water routines involve problems which script writers usually ignore. They note simply: Scene 34—swimming number." What happens next is usually up to Jack Donohue, who has directed the water ballets for "On An Island With You" and "Neptune's Daughter" and who was responsible for the aquatic routines of the current offering.

There are two spectacular water ballets in "Duchess of Idaho." In one, the pool is encased in scientifically arranged mirrors reflecting twelve separate images of Miss Williams as she does her routine. A moonlit pool provides the setting for the second ballet, which combines ballet and adagio dancing, solo and group swimming, with 36 dancer-swimmers, 24 girls and 12 boys, joining the star in the routine.

'Gal Who Took West' Coming To Joy Soon

Comedy and music have been added to the tense theme of an outdoor drama in "The Gal Who Took the West" and the net result is a very enjoyable motion picture.

The Technicolor movie, which opens soon at the Joy Theater, stars Yvonne De Carlo, Charles Coburn, Scott Brady and John Russell. The latter two he-men carry the action. Yvonne and Coburn handle the comedy.

Miss De Carlo proves a smart and entertaining comedienne, easily keeping pace with the veteran Coburn in sparking laughs.

The curvaceous Yvonne also handles her musical sequences in grand style. Her "Frankie and Johnny" number is a riot of harmony and laughs, and one of the best musical moments she has given the screen.

"Clancy Lowered the Boom," also in a comedy vein, is another outstanding song sequence.

One of the picture's chief charms is the way in which it is unfolded. A magazine writer, probing into the history of the O'Hara family of pioneer Arizona, gets most of his facts from three old men in a decrepit saloon.

But the trio disagrees on the character of the pseudo-opera singer played by Yvonne, so each relates the story in his own way. The film fades back to the late '90's when the central characters take over, against the magnificent backgrounds of cactus forests and distant mountains.

The singer is brought to pioneer Arizona by Coburn, wealthy landholdeer to appear at the opening of his opera house. His grandsons and heirs, Brady and Russell, dislike each other intensely. When both fall in love with Yvonne, it appears their smoldering feud will develop the town in a murderous battle. Yvonne's womanly wiles save the day.

LET'S EXPLORE YOUR MIND

By ALBERT EDWARD WIGGAM, D. S.

Answer to Question No. 1

1. Yes. Few high schools or colleges give students instruction in how to apply for a job, or how to prepare themselves for interviewing employers. For a self-addressed, stamped post card I will tell you of a cheap booklet, published at cost, entitled What Employers Want. It is written by experts and may help you. It includes an instructors guide and provides background for discussions and teachers, parents and friends.

Answer To Question No. 2

2. Yes. It will be helpful to read Pearl Buck's moving and beautiful story in the May Ladies' Home Journal in which she tells of her own mentally retarded child. This is an epic of dissappointed, but finally triumphant motherhood. In my studies of heredity I've had to deal with many such situations. They are often not due to heredity and are never the "fault" of the parents. Yet, many mothers spend a life-time in blaming themselves.

Answer to Question No. 3

3. Yes. Three educators, G. G. Mallinson, H. E. Sturm, and R. E. Patton, studied a number of widely-used books and found them to be far too hard. Many of the words were beyond a child's vocabulary, and many of the sentences were too long and complicated. In the future, all school books should be measured beforehand by the new readability yardstick that has been devised to tailor books to fit the pupil instead of expecting the pupil to fit the book.

Want To Learn Self-Control?

How to manage your feelings and emotions is Dr. Wiggam's new illustrated booklet.

It describes clearly what happens to both your mind and body when your feelings and emotions conquer you and it also fully explains what you can do about it—how you can master your feelings and gain self-confidence.

This remarkable booklet is yours for 15 cents (in coin only). Address Dr. A. E. Wiggam care of this newspaper. Include a stamped (3 cent) self-addressed return envelope.

FEDERAL REVENUE FUNDS INCREASED

Also Crackdown On 'Collapsible Corporations' Used To Evade Tax

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—(AP)—The Senate Finance Committee today approved tax law provisions increasing federal revenues about $144,000,000, including a crackdown on "collapsible corporations" when used for tax evasion.

But the group rejected house-approved revisions that would have picked-up an additional $176,000,000. President Truman has requested Congress to provide a quick increase of $5,000,000,000 in new revenue to help meet war and preparedness costs. This is what the committee is working on.

A vigorous battle lies ahead on the question whether to impose now or later an excess profits tax to prevent "profiteering" in the defense boom.

Chairman George (D-GA) of the Senate Finance Committee told newsmen he expects congress to act in November ,or January, on the various proposals to take profits out of war.

But Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo). chairman of the House Senate Economic Committee, announced he will carry to the senate floor a fight for immediate action.

None of the tax law revisions acted upon by the finance committe today dealt with direct individual or corporation income taxes. They were mostly technical changes.

The senate group approved a house bill provision to end a practice which President Truman said is followed by some motion picture figures. The practice is to create a corporation, then disband it after the production of one picture, so that those participating in it pay the much lower capital gains rather than the stiff income taxes. This is a so-called "collapsible" corporation.

Elimination of this practice would pick up about $3,000,000.

The committee approved a house formula for taxation of the investment income of life insurance companies. The senate decided to make the formula applicable to 1949 and 1950 income, so as to put $110.,000,000 in the treasury.

As approved by the house the formula would have been retroactive to cover life insurance investment income for 1947 and 1948, as well, for a total of $166,000.000 in revenue for the four years 1947-50 inclusive.

"You realize that all I had to do was: How could Lou persue them you'd have lost the hand," West continued.

Lou was charitable enough to refrain from pointing out that West actually had not set the contract. Although West could have set the contract by putting up his ace of spades, he hadn't done so. And the reason that he hadn't done so was that he gave Larceny Lou credit for making a "sensible" play—exactly as Lou had foreseen.

The play began without fireworks. West opened the ten of clubs, and Larceny Lou, playing the South hand, won with the king. Lou could see at a glance that he was doomed to lose a spade and three diamonds if the defenders took their tricks when they had a chance to do so. The question was: How could Lou persuade them to refrain from taking their tricks?

If Lou led his singleton spade immediately, West could take the ace of spades at once. He would then see that the defense depended on winning three diamond tricks at once. West would therefore begin the diamonds immediately, thus defeating the contract.

Lou could not see West's cards but he could see clearly enough that West would have no choice, no matter what he held.

In order to make his contract, Lou began by drawing three rounds of trumps, thus taking out dummy's only entry. Only then did Lou lead his singleton six of spades!

It was perfectly true that West could now set the contract by taking his ace. As a matter of fact the situation was no different from what it had always been—except in the mind of West.

West could not believe that Lou had deliberately removed dummy's only entry before leading a singleton spade. He was sure that Lou must have a second spade in his hand. In that case it was foolish to play the ace on the first spade since that would give declarer a chance to finesse dummy's king-jack when he played a second round of spades.

Naturally Lou put up dummy's king of spades, winning the trick. He was then willing to concede three diamonds to the opponents.

West should not be criticized severely for falling for Lou's deceptive play. From his point of view it was a cinch that South had two spades, and it was quite possible that South also had the king of diamonds. It looked as though West could not lose by ducking the "first" spade and he thought that this play would give declarer a chance to lose three diamond tricks.

Opening lead—♣ 10

"You realize that all I had to do was: How could Lou persue them you'd have lost the hand," West continued.

Lou was charitable enough to refrain from pointing out that West actually had not set the contract. Although West could have set the contract by putting up his ace of spades, he hadn't done so. And the reason that he hadn't done so was that he gave Larceny Lou credit for making a "sensible" play—exactly as Lou had foreseen.

The play began without fireworks. West opened the ten of clubs, and Larceny Lou, playing the South hand, won with the king. Lou could see at a glance that he was doomed to lose a spade and three diamonds if the defenders took their tricks when they had a chance to do so. The question was: How could Lou persuade them to refrain from taking their tricks?

If Lou led his singleton spade immediately, West could take the ace of spades at once. He would then see that the defense depended on winning three diamond tricks at once. West would therefore begin the diamonds immediately, thus defeating the contract.

Lou could not see West's cards but he could see clearly enough that West would have no choice, no matter what he held.

In order to make his contract, Lou began by drawing three rounds of trumps, thus taking out dummy's only entry. Only then did Lou lead his singleton six of spades!

It was perfectly true that West could now set the contract by taking his ace. As a matter of fact the situation was no different from what it had always been—except in the mind of West.

West could not believe that Lou had deliberately removed dummy's only entry before leading a singleton spade. He was sure that Lou must have a second spade in his hand. In that case it was foolish to play the ace on the first spade since that would give declarer a chance to finesse dummy's king-jack when he played a second round of spades.

Naturally Lou put up dummy's king of spades, winning the trick. He was then willing to concede three diamonds to the opponents.

West should not be criticized severely for falling for Lou's deceptive play. From his point of view it was a cinch that South had two spades, and it was quite possible that South also had the king of diamonds. It looked as though West could not lose by ducking the "first" spade and he thought that this play would give declarer a chance to lose three diamond tricks.

MAGAZINES BANNED

CAIRO —(AP)—Three French and one German magazine have been added to the long list of foreign publications banned in Egypt. No reason was given for outlawing the Hamburg magazine "Terstern." The French publications "Paris Hollywood," "Paris Pin Up" and "Paris Cocktail" were forbidden because they are "suggestive."

I'M TERRIBLY NERVOUS LATELY
YOU OUGHT TO GET MARRIED, EDDIE
LOOK HOW MY HAND SHAKES
YOU LOOK LIKE YOU'RE WAVING AT SOMEONE--- YOU NEED A LITTLE WIFE TO TAKE CARE OF YOU
I JUMP WHEN THE PHONE RINGS
YOU NEED PEACE AND CONTENTMENT-- THE PITTER-PATTER OF TINY FEET AROUND YOUR HOUSE
YOU'RE WINNING ME OVER, DAGWOOD
COME HOME TO DINNER WITH ME TONIGHT AND SEE FOR YOURSELF HOW SERENE AND BLISSFUL MARRIED LIFE CAN BE WE'LL MEET AT QUITTING TIME
I'LL CALL UP THE BOYS AND TELL THEM I'M NOT GOING OUT WITH THEM TONIGHT
NOW WHO RANG OUR DOORBELL? THERE'S NO ONE HERE
IT'S THOSE NEW KIDS UP THE STREET-- THEY RING DOORBELLS AND RUN
LOOK AT ALL THESE HAPPY, CONTENTED HUSBANDS, EDDIE
I'M BEGINNING TO REALIZE ALL I'VE MISSED BY BEING SINGLE THE PEACE AND JOY OF MARRIED LIFE IS ALL YOU NEED, EDDIE RING
BOO
WE WERE TRYING TO SCARE SOME FRESH LITTLE KIDS WHO WERE RINGING OUR DOORBELL
YOUR FRIEND RAN AWAY, POP
DON'T LET ME GET MARRIED, BOYS!

DON'T TELL ME SLUG'S TWINS ARE TALKING ALREADY!
THAT'S THE NICE THING ABOUT LIVING IN A COMIC.. YOU DON'T HAVE TO BE RATIONAL.
FOR TWO CENTS I'D GET OUT OF THIS FEATURE AND JOIN UP WITH SOME NICE, PEACEFUL ADVENTURE COMIC.
BUT, FREDDIE! I THOUGHT YOU WERE THE HOME TYPE!
HEAR THAT, MINNIE? THEY CALLED YOU MAMA!
SLUG LOWERS THE BOOM
I DON'T KNOW WHY THEY WANT A RECORD OF THAT.
IT WON'T BE ANYTIME UNTIL MINNIE IS TELLING THEM TO PIPE DOWN AND KEEP QUIET.
I'LL BET SLUG DIDN'T TALK UNTIL HE WAS TEN YEARS OLD.
AND THE FIRST THING HE SAID WAS, GIMME.
I TELL YOU, ALICE, THE ROUND ONES WERE CHASING THE SQUARE ONES AND I 'DOVE' RIGHT BETWEEN 'EM... BLUE HAZE AND ALL.
YOU CHILDREN RUN ALONG.. I WANT TO TALK TO YOUR FATHER ALONE.

WELL, WHEN WE FIND A NICE PLACE, STOP.
SAY, I THOUGHT YOU BROUGHT SOME DEVILED EGGS AND SANDWICHES AND SOME BANANAS.
I DID, BUT I GOT HUNGRY.
SO DID I.
NOW JUST WAIT AND I'LL GO OVER TO THAT FARM HOUSE AND SEE IF THEY'LL SELL US SOME EGGS.
HMM- HOW DID YOU AND MAMIE HAPPEN TO PASS UP THIS SAUSAGE AND THE CHICKEN, KAYO?
WELL, MAMIE DON'T LIKE SAUSAGE.
AND SHE SAID SHE WAS SORTA SUSPICIOUS OF THAT CHICKEN BECAUSE SHE'D FORGOT TO PUT IT IN THE ICE BOX.
WELL, ANYWAY I CAN DEPEND ON A CUP OF GOOD COFFEE.
IF YOU DRINK IT WITH A BLOTTER, YOU CAN.
THAT'S MAMIE'S VOICE.
RUN FER YER LIFE! THAT DOG'S CHASED ME CLEAR THROUGH THEM WOODS!
WOOF!
HE AIN'T MAD! LOOK- HE'S JEST PLAYFUL.
HEY, COME BACK HERE, YOU!
WILLIE, DIDN'T YOU TELL THE GIRL TO BRING US SOMETHING?
SERVICE WITH A SMILE
